ONE DEAD

Peace Corpsmen Shot By Mistake At Latin Capital

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A U. S. Peace Corps member was shot to death and a comrade seriously wounded by police who mistook them for Communist terrorists Friday night.

Shot through the heart when he stepped from his Jeep with his hands up was Joseph R. Rupley, 24, Orinda, Calif., the driver who was on the Peace Corps staff in Venezuela.

Peace Corps volunteer David Glover, 25, Grosse Ile, Mich., also stepped from the auto with his hands raised and was shot in the stomach. He underwent surgery in a Caracas hospital and his condition was reported satisfactory.

TWO NOT HIT

Two other Peace Corps volunteers in the back seat of the vehicle established their identities and police took the victims to a hospital. The other two were Ronald Bean, Fairfield, Maine, and Donald Carluccio, Hoboken, N.J.

Venezuelan authorities began an investigation. The U.S. Embassy gave this account of the incident:

Carluccio returned from the funeral of his father in Hoboken and the others went to the airport and picked him up.

Police had been fighting with students who were rioting in connection with a taxi strike that the government says is Communist inspired. One student was killed and 12 were injured.

The vehicle carrying the Peace Corps men passed the post of the judicial technical police at 11 p.m. on the return from the airport.

Police in a patrol car, who said they assumed the Jeep was carrying terrorists, pursued and shot out the rear tires. Then Rupley and Glover were shot as they stepped out of the vehicle.

Police said the same station had been attacked earlier in the evening by terrorists firing machine guns from an automobile.

Bean and Carluccio said they had observed about 30 plain clothesmen around the station and drove on by thinking they might be demonstrators.

"It was senseless," said Rupley's father, Joseph W. Rupley, in Orinda. "When they got out of the Jeep they had their hands up."

Rupley joined the Peace Corps in 1962 after graduation from the University of California at Berkeley. He served two years in Peru before going to Venezuela last September. As assistant director in charge of establishing farm cooperatives, he had been working recently near Merida in western Venezuela.

Bible Flyleaf Means Doom For Arsonist

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Boasts and threats written on a flyleaf torn from a hotel Bible led to the surrender of a young Air Force veteran who admitted kindling a string of church and business building fires from Boston to Minneapolis.

Joseph Frank Neussendorfer, 22, of Drayton Plains, Mich. appeared in Municipal Court Saturday. The wavy-haired youth was ordered to return Tuesday, with counsel, to plead to a charge of aggravated arson. Bond was set at $50,000.

COLLEGIATE

David Jamieson, head of the fire department arson squad, said Neussendorfer, son of a fire equipment manufacturer and nephew of a nun, is well groomed and looked like a college student.

Neussendorfer signed a statement relating to three recent fires, Jamieson said, and told of setting other fires. Six were in Minneapolis, one in a St. Paul hotel, and others in Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Washington, St. Louis, New Orleans, Lafayette, La., New London, Conn., Morgan City, La., and Ann Arbor, Mich.

Thursday night, a few hours after a $30,000 blaze in the downtown Walker Building here, the fire department received an anonymous note which had been dropped into a mail box. The writer boasted of setting more than a dozen fires, in the Twin Cities and in the East, and added, "I will burn four more buildings here, then move on."

Police and fire department investigators stepped up their hunt. Jamieson noticed the note appeared to have been written on a blank page torn from a Gideon Bible. He put his men to checking hotels to find a Bible with a missing page.

Friday afternoon Jamieson himself found a bible with a missing page in a downtown hotel. The last occupant of the room, Neussendorfer, had checked out the day before.

Neussendorfer told authorities he was watching television in a bar about 8 p.m. and heard a news report that he was wanted. He walked outside, hailed a passing squad car and surrendered.

Area Man, 25, Drowns; Lake Being Dragged

FARMERVILLE (Special) — A Choudrant man drowned in a boating accident Saturday just below the spillway of D'Arbonne Lake four miles east of Farmerville, according to the Union Parish Sheriff's office.

Bobby Jack Holstead, 25, son Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Holstead of Choudrant, was fishing alone when his boat got too close to the swirling waters of the spillway and capsized at about 3:15 p.m.

Several witnesses reported they saw the accident and watched Holstead's body come to the surface of the water twice, but were unable to save him.

The sheriff's office reported that the body had not been found late Saturday. Searching operations were called off because of rough waters, but two boats were to patrol the area all night. Dragging operations will be resumed early today.

Lincoln Parish officers also were assisting in the search.

Twin City Man Dies In Mishap

A 44-year old West Monroe man, Lawrence William Simpson, accidentally drowned about 3 p.m. Saturday when his boat overturned in Iatt Lake about three miles north of Colfax.

Sheriff J. T. Morgan of Grant Parish said the body was recovered about 5:10.

The accident happened while Mr. Simpson was with two companions in a fishing boat. The other two were picked up by two men in a nearby boat and were taken to safety.

Officers said Mr. Simpson was visiting Colfax with his family on business for the weekend. He reportedly owned a sawmill in the area.

His family returned to West Monroe late Saturday.

The Sheriff's Department said the drowning victim's body was transferred to the Baptist Hospital in Alexandria to await further arrangements.

KREWE OF CHOCTAW

New Year's Theme Opens Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An offbeat Chief Choctaw, disregarding themes and some of the other traditions of royalty, opened the parade season today with the most unusual of all carnival processions — a boat parade on the Mississippi River.

Ships in the busy port saluted the Indian chief with loud blasts of their whistles and horns, sounding the start of 10 days of warmups for this city's big fun blast, Mardi Gras, on March 2.

Escorted by coast guard vessels, Choctaw and his krewe (club) of Indians boarded a yacht, fishing trawler and smaller boats for their kickoff parade up and down the river. The yacht was labeled the "royal canoe."

The Indians then went ashore for a more traditional 12-float parade through the streets of Algiers, on the west bank of New Orleans.

Indian riders on the floats threw trinkets and souvenirs to the crowds that lined both sides of the streets along the long parade route.

Cloudy, 60 - degree weather greeted chief Choctaw.

Chief Choctaw wore an Indian dress instead of the traditinoal robes worn by other carnival royalty. He also insisted on the title of chief, rather than king.

Theme of the Choctaw street parade was "New Year's Festivals," but a couple of astronaut and clown - decorated floats sneaked into the procession, theme or no theme.

Choctaw, who was difficult to distinguish among the dozens of Indians in his krewe, apparently was not disturbed about a lack of connection between astronauts, clowns and the Indian New Year festival theme.

One of his subjects said the astronaut and clown floats were borrowed from the Freret Parade, which will be seen on the east bank of the river next week.

With that casual explanation the carnival season was off to its usual mixed-up, who-cares ways.

Cove Yields Arms Hidden By Viet Cong

Russian, Chinese Munitions Found In Coastal Cache

TUY HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) — By far the biggest haul of Communist weapons for the Viet Cong was uncovered Saturday near a remote cove where a large mystery vessel was sighted and sunk earlier las tweek. Officials estimated 80 tons of armaments — much of it Russian and Chinese — had fallen into government hands.

SHIPPED BY SEA

The weapons, ammunition and medical supplies, including whole blood, apparently had been shipped along the coast from Communist North Viet Nam to equip Red guerrillas fighting in the South, U.S. and South Vietnamese officials said.

"We thought the suppiy routes were through Laos and Cambodia, but look at this lot," said Col. Theodore Mataxis, Seattle, Wash., a senior adviser. "They could easily be arming to launch against us up here."

The material was found in the hull of the sunken vessel and in caches on the beaches of a cove on Vung Ro Bay here, 240 miles northeast of Saigon and about 50 miles south of Nha Trang, site of a major U.S. military installation.

A routine helicopter patrol uncovered the cache Tuesday. Flying over the bay, the helicopter crew sighted what looked like a drifting island. Then, heavy fire came up from the island. It turned out to be a well-camouflaged ship, about 400 feet long. South Vietnamese fighter-bombers were called in and sank the vessel.

Jes' Ramblin'

Tours Florida

Visiting in Florida is Mrs. Mae Hancock, 206 Harcey St., Sterlington.

She was listed as touring in the Silver Springs area, center of "the largest group of natural springs in the world."

Mrs. Hancock is expected home around the first of next month.

Recovering

Mrs. Joyce T. Smith, a West Monroe alderman and local bank official, is shooting for a return to work Monday.

She's been out about two weeks for tests at Glenwood Hospital and recuperation at home from a "viral" ailment. Mrs. Smith says getting back to work would be welcome. She likes the work naturally, and it also might be an escape from her "bland" diet, pills and castor oil.

She's missed two aldermen's meetings as well, and is eager to get back into city work.

Long Wants United Front On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., urged Saturday night that the country present a united front behind President Johnson in whatever course he decides to pursue in the Viet Nam crisis.

"More than any one thing that should be stressed is the need for unity," Long said in discussing the Viet Nam situation in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana.

STICK TOGETHER

Long, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said the President, is the country's commander in chief and: "No matter what the Congress says, he is still the President, and he is the one who is going to have to handle this matter. Now, in my judgment, we should stick together behind the President."

Long said that if the Communists think the country won't stand and act together "they are going to take all sorts of risks that could lead to war." But if they believe Americans will "stand together and fight together" they will take fewer chances, he added.

He said he believes that the country avoided war in the Cuban missile crisis and "could have even taken Cuba without going to war." The Communists were convinced that "we were going to fight and see this thing through," he said.

Long drew a parallel between the present Viet Nam situation and Korea. At the time of the Korean War, he said, the country had a choice between Secretary of State Dean Acheson's theory of restraint and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's theory of attacking Red China. President Harry S. Truman, he said, backed the Acheson theory.

The chances are, Long said, that "we could have come out taking either policy and managed to get out of that mess." But, he said, "the point was that somebody has to run the thing."

Urging that the country "stay with the President," Long said: "I wish these fellows making these speeches on the Senate floor, instead of just getting out and issuing press releases and getting their names in the newspapers on the basis that they differ with the President's policy would just go down and tell it to the President, because, after all, it doesn't help matters at all to have those Communists thinking that America is not unified, that we are not together."

Heart Sunday Funds Canvass Set For Today

Volunteers from throughout Ouachita Parish are joining hands today in observance of Heart Sunday to raise funds to combat heart and blood vessel diseases.

A house-to-house canvass will be made, with Mrs. Cy Epler of Monroe and Mrs. Bennie Andrews of West Monroe serving as co-chairmen.

Area chairmen are Mrs. Frances Morman of Sterlington, Mrs. Jane Humble of Calhoun, Mrs. Sturgeon Welch of Fairbanks, and Roland Thomas of the Claiborne area.

Persons who haven't already volunteered who desire to participate in the Heart Sunday solicitations, or volunteers who have questions concerning their assignment, are urged to call the heart fund office at 387-0062.

Heart Council members and volunteers will be at Heart Sunday headquarters, 124 No. Grand, after 2:30 p.m. to help with collections and reports.

Dr. August G. Danti, professor of pharmacy at Northeast State, is president of the local Heart Council and Frank McDermott, civic and church leader, is serving as 1965 Heart Fund chairman.

The local unit of the Louisiana Heart Association has $10,000 as its goal.

Laotians Hit U.S. Aircraft, Peking Says

TOKYO (AP) — Four U.S. F101 jets on bombing missions over Communist Pathet Lao areas of Laos were shot down Friday, Radio Peking claimed Saturday, quoting the Pathet Lao.

Several other planes were damaged, the broadcast added. All the planes were said to have been shot down over Sam Neua Province, a Pathet Lao stronghold in northeastern Laos.

PILOT MISSING

The Defense Department in Washington confirmed that a U.S. Air Force pilot is missing on a flight from a base in South Viet Nam but said it had no information on the Communist claim that four F101s had been shot down.

A defense spokesman said Maj. Robert F. Ronca, 41, Norristown, Pa., was missing after taking off Friday from an unnamed field in South Viet Nam. Ronca was one of the leaders of an air strike against North Viet Nam last week.

Without hinting on the fate of the downed fliers, Radio Peking said 12 F101 jets and five T28 planes — the latter of a type flown by royal Laotion pilots — flew over Sam Neua Province between 1 and 8 p.m.

The broadcast said the planes were hit by Pathet Lao troops. It is known that there are radar-directed 37mm antiaircraft guns in Laos, probably manned by North Vietnamese troops.

Cloudy, Colder Seen For Area

Clouds and scattered showers today will replace the fair skies of the past two days — if the weatherman's predictions for the Twin Cities are correct.

Also, the mild temperatures will change to considerable colder ones with a low of 28-32 forecast for tonight. The high today will range between 64 and 68.

SHOWERS

Thundershowers moved into the area Saturday night, but FAA at Selman Field reported only a trace of rainfall.

Monday's forecast is for partly cloudy skies and cold.

Winds today will be southerly eight to 18 miles per hour before shifting to northerly 12 to 22 miles per hour.

SCIENTISTS DIG IN

Ranger Returns Mass Of Photos

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ranger 8 sent to earth Saturday a dramatic series of thousands of pictures of the moon's surface. Scientists marveled, but disagreed in interpreting them.

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, head of a team that will spend months analyzing the pictorial bonanza, said to him the lunar surface looks treacherous.

While its strength can't be determined from photos, he said, "I think there is only about three to six feet of loose material covering the surface."

LAVA TUNNELS

The first lunar explorers, he said, may have to probe the surface ahead with long poles to keep from falling into lava tunnels.

Another expert thought the surface would support a space ship.

And another thought there might be 50 to 60 feet of dust covering the broad plain where Ranger 8 crashed at 1:57 a.m. after a 65-hour journey from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The insect-shaped spacecraft's six cameras returned at least 7,000 closeups during a 23-minute sweep across the face of the moon. It hit just 15 miles from its target in the Sea of Tranquillity.

The point is 1,000 miles east of the point in the Mare Cognitum, or Sea That Has Become Known, where Ranger 7 crashed last July after returning a historic set of first lunar closeups.

A group of experts, taking turns addressing a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which makes and guides the Rangers, said the quality of Saturday's pictures is at least as good as those of Ranger 7.

Train Collision Claims 7 Lives

SKOVDE, Sweden (AP) — An express train crashed into the rear of a halted passenger train at the Skultorp railway station near here Saturday. Officials said seven persons were killed and 35 others were injured.

The Goteborg-Stockholm express smashed the two last cars of the passenger train. Most of the dead and injured passengers were in these cars, police said.

No passengers aboard the express train were reported seriously injured.

PERSONAL VIEW

Local Solon Against One College Board

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe, chairman of the Legislative budget committee, said Saturday he cannot agree with a proposal to put all Louisiana higher education under one superboard.

Adcock told an alumni leadership conference at Louisiana State University he was giving only his personal opinion, and was not speaking as a top lieutenant of Gov. John McKeithen.

The governor has shown an interest in a proposal by Sen. Fred Eagan, New Orleans, to set up a statewide plan for higher education and one overall board to determine its course.

"I think he's on solid ground — something must be done," Adcock said of Eagan, who also is a member of the legislative budget committee.

He said Louisiana has reached the end of its road and the state must husband its funds for higher education use.

Executive director Ed Stagg of the Council for a Better Louisiana (CABL) said public higher education is "in grave danger" if Louisiana continues to use its dollars for this purpose unwisely and allows such things as "proliferation of courses."

Both Stagg and Adcock emphasized duplication and unplanned growth in higher education must be ended.

Stagg suggested the Louisiana Constitution already provides for coordination of higher education statewide. He cited Article 12, Section 2 of the constitution.

This article reads:

The elementary and secondary schools and the higher educational institutions shall be so coordinated as to lead to the standards of higher education established by the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College."

Stagg predicted the public would support a sound plan to get quality education while doing the best possible with available dollars.

Khanh Stripped Of Power By Men Who Rescued Him

Disappears; Whereabouts Not Reported

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Military leaders who rescued Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh from South Viet Nam's latest coup turned on him Saturday with a vote of no confidence and decided to strip him of power, informed sources reported.

Moving into Khanh's spot as the national strong man appeared to be Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, 39, who rose quickly in the armed forces after Khanh took power 13 months ago.

'LONG VOYAGE'

Khanh vanished from Saigon and the sources said he was on "a long voyage." Earlier Thi said vaguely of Khanh's whereabouts: "He is on an inspection tour in the 2nd Corps area."

Khanh was last seen leaving Saigon at noon Saturday and was believed then to have been leaving for Cap St. Jacques, the coastal resort southeast of here where military men hold their councils.

The new developments did not appear to have any immediate effect on the nation's new civilian government, headed by Premier Phan Huy Quat, installed Tuesday. Thi's military group expressed confidence in him.

The informants said 15 young generals met with Quat Saturday afternoon at Bien Hoa Air Base, 12 miles north of Saigon, and there turned thumbs down on Khanh.

After the meeting, Thi met newsmen and said in response to questions about Khanh:

"Up to this moment, Khanh is still commander in chief. In the near future we will talk more about it."

Thi, formerly commander of the 4th Corps in upper South Viet Nam, became commander of the armed forces in Saigon. He gave 15 leaders of Friday's coup, 24 hours to surrender or face military trials. They include Lam Van Phat and Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, formerly assigned to the South Vietnamese Embassy in Washington.

Thi said the coup leaders had gone into hiding and that a search for them had been started.

Phat was last seen at Saigon Airport after the coup collapsed. He dismissed his bodyguards with handshakes and had tears in his eyes. He then drove to another part of the airport and could not be traced.

Thi's junta includes Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, the air force commander who flew the lead plane in a South Vietnamese air attack on Communist North Viet Nam Feb. 8. Another member is Maj. Gen Nguyen Van Thieu.

There appeared to be widespread suspicion among the young officers that the United States sparked the anti-Khanh coup. Khanh and U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor have had a frosty relationship recently. The suspicion among the officers was that Thao was sent back from Washington under U.S. orders to launch a coup.

The U.S. Embassy has formally denied these claims.

Thi and Ky also have been cool toward Taylor since they purged the civilian High National Council — the nation's legislative body — Dec. 20. That purge was denounced by the United States.

TOP HONORS AWARDED

Winners Selected At Camellia Show

Top honors at the second annual Camellia Show, sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Society, were taken Saturday by Mrs. M. L. Johnson of Monroe and Joe Brinkerhoff, Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Johnson won the best blossom of the show grown out of doors with Gullio Nuccio, solid deep rose bloom.

Brinkerhoff's winning bloom was a Betty Sheffield Blush Supreme, which was grown indoors.

Both winners, showing in the Monroe competition for the first time, were awarded the American Camellia Society's gold certificate. Their names will be inscribed on the John M. Breard Memorial Trophy, which remains in the lobby of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., where the show is being held.

The displays will be open today from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., when all blooms must be burned. This stipulation is required by the American Camellia Society in an effort to hold to a minimum the spread of camellia petal blight.

Taking top honors in the arrangements division of the show was Mrs. Philip F. Bernhardt, 1309 Spencer Ave., Monroe.

Other winners in the various categories include:

Best of three blooms, same variety, grown under glass, or indoors, Mrs. A. T. Bond, 305 Filhiol Ave., Monroe, with the Pink Champaign.

Best of three blooms, same variety, grown out of doors, Mrs. J. Hunter Thatcher Jr., 501 Speed Ave., Monroe, with Donckelarii.

Best of 10 in a tray, different varieties, grown under glass, Mrs. Jack F. Ward, El Dorado, Ark.

Best of 10 in a tray, different varieties, grown out of doors, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Montgomery Sr., 1804 Island Drive, Monroe. Last year the Montgomery entry in the best-of-three tray took top honors in that category.

Runners up in the honors for the blooms grown under glass was Lee Hodges, 1305 Hawthorne St., Monroe, and Mrs. Woodrow Hathorn, 201 Gilbert St., Monroe, in the grown-out-of-doors competition.

Mrs. Nick Medica, Ruston, took the honors with the best hybrid, a pink Carousel.

MAKING PRESENTATIONS for the best blossoms in the show, Saturday at the second annual Camellia show in the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., was Mrs. John M. Breard, center, widow of the late J. M. Breard in whose name and honor the award was given. Mrs. M. L. Johnson, left received the honor for the best bloom grown out of doors, while Joe Brinkerhoff Memphis, Tenn., had the best bloom grown indoors. (Staff photo by Richard Greene)

Ranger Success Comes 3 Years After Glenn Trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Ranger 8 photographed the moon Saturday exactly three years after astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.'s orbital flight committed the United States inescapably to the great adventure of a manned lunar landing.

Both are significant links in a chain of fantastic events whose goal is to land Americans on the moon by 1970. Glenn proved that man can survive and perform effectively in hostile space. Ranger 8 snapped pictures of the moon's Sea of Tranquility, a relatively flat plain which is considered a prime target for the first astronaut exploration.

As experts were analyzing the Ranger 8 photos at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California, plans were moving full speed ahead here for three major launchings in the next five weeks which are to advance the nation nearer the objective.

They are Ranger 9; the first launching of a dynamic model of the Surveyor lunar expedition spacecraft, and the initial Gemini orbital flight by astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young.

Even before Ranger 8 reached its target, the Atlas booster rocket for Ranger 9 was erected on Cape Kennedy launching pad.

This last of the Ranger series is scheduled to set sail in a seven-day favorable period starting March 19. Its lunar photographic target has not been selected, but it may be aimed at a mountainous region.

The Ranger program will be followed by Project Surveyor, which is to gently set seven spacecraft on the moon to take on-the-surface color photos, dig up and analyze mineral samples and scout possible astronaut landing sites.

The first Surveyor metal dynamic model, which simulates the weight — 2,200 pounds — and shape of the real thing, is to be hurled into space on March 2 by an Atlas Centaur rocket, a more powerful vehicle than Ranger's Atlas-Agena. The craft is to be fired toward a spot in space where the moon will be next October when the first operational Surveyor is to be launched.

On March 22, according to the present schedule, astronauts Grissom and Young are to end nearly a two-year drought in American manned space flights. They are to circle the globe three times to give the two-seat Gemini craft a thorough engineering checkout.

Madrid Students Want Freedom

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Some 1,000 Madrid university students met Saturday without government permission amid continuing indications of student unrest in Gen. Francisco Franco's Spain.

University sources said the students assembled at the university following the cancellation of a lecture by Prof. Aguilar Navarro on peace and democracy in the world. The sources said the cancellation had obviously been ordered by the Ministry of Education.

The students demanded "a free and democratic student union independent of political power" at the meeting, the sources said. They also asked for amnesty for students punished by academic or syndical authorities, complete cultural and political independence for Spanish students and freedom of speech.

The student assembly is the fourth such gathering held without a permit. Unrest among Madrid's students has been apparent for several weeks. Police have quickly dissolved attempted student demonstrations.

Steel Vote Tally Of Bitter Battle Starts Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The official count in the bitter United Steelworkers election starts Monday with an estimated 650,000 votes to be tabulated.

How soon the count will be completed is problematical. Under the union's constitution, the international tellers must report the official count to the locals by May 1.

However, the guess is the outcome will be announced earlier — possibly within a week.

The count will be made by the tellers under supervision of the Honest Ballot Association. About 980,000 steelworkers in some 3,300 locals were eligible to vote.

Both incumbent President David J. McDonald, bidding for a fourth straight four-year term, and challenger I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, claim victory.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department announced in Washington that by mutual agreement of the candidates it will have representatives witness the opening, examination and tabulation of votes.

McDonald proposed that the American Arbitration Association conduct the election. He was over-ruled by the pro-Abel executive board.

Complaints will be judged by the executive board. If a member is not satisfied with board's decision, he can appeal to the U.S. secretary of labor under the Landrum-Griffin Act.

The secretary of labor then could file suit on behalf of the member. He also has power to order a new election.

Meanwhile, negotiations with the basic steel industry remain at a standstill. They were suspended Jan. 8 and the union rejected a request to extend the May 1 strike deadline.

SHOP IN SHAMBLES

Fire Watchers Hit By Surprise Blast

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A fire on famed Peachtree Street followed by a terrific explosion injured several persons Saturday night.

Police said 15 or 20 persons watching firemen fight a blaze in a two-story structure across the street from the Piedmont Hotel were knocked down by the blast.

The force of the explosion wrecked the interior of a small shop in the hotel building across the street from the burning structure.

The fire started in a two-story structure adjacent to the 15-story Candler Building in downtown Atlanta.

Police said the blaze apparently originated in the Tooley Myron card shop, and spread to the Notre Dame book store next door, both on the ground floor of the two-story building.

Store windows across the street were blown out. The explosion turned a hearing service store across the street into a shambles. Glass and debris littered Peachtree Street for a distance of 100 or more feet.

Officers said a parked fire truck probably saved many people from death in the explosion.

Police Sgt. H.N. Suder said the truck stood as a barrier between dozens of spectators as flames and debris shot out of the front of the building.

"People fell all over the place and their shoes, eyeglasses and hats and pocketbooks were hurled in every direction," Suder said. "The flying glass also shredded clothes and pockmarked the bodies of spectators and left them bleeding."

The sergeant said the sheet of flame and debris appeared to bounce off one side of the Piedmont Hotel across the street.

The blast wrecked an electric shaver store next door to the book shop. The explosion apparently knocked out the floor of the second story above the shop, dropping rafters from the ceiling and into the store.

Police said three or four firemen were among the 20 or more taken to hospitals.

Rep. Hall Takes Exception To U.S. Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Durward G. Hall R-Mo., took exception Saturday night to a number of government-financed projects — and in particular to one including a poll to determine how popular politicians are in relation to persons in other occupations.

The poll he said, arrived at the finding that political occupations in general have lost prestige.

"As a physician as well as a congressman, perhaps I shoudl be pleased that the poll shows that physicians rank No. 2 in prestige," he said. "But I challenge the prudent use of taxpayers funds to conduct such a poll."

Among other National Science Foundation research grants Hall listed in a critical statement were projects on phylogeny and faunal affinities of fossil bryozoa in the middle Ordovican through Silurian, $34,400; behavior and breeding of tree shrews, $20,200, chromosomes of the chipmunks, $12,600, and povulation biology of Indo-Australian ants, $70,000.

AT ST. LOUIS

Illegal Ring Ends In Slaying

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Authorities filed first-degree murder charges Saturday against two men, charging that their attempt to start a prostitution ring ended with the alleged slayings of two young girls.

Police said Theodore Duisen, 26, and James Clubb signed statements that they held Carrie (Cricket) Phipps, 18, under water in the Mississippi River until she drowned after she refused to work for them as a prostitute.

Duisen also is charged with strangling Mrs. Patricia Sutterfield, 17, who he says did work for him.

"I don't know how it all started," said Duisen, who has a long police record.

He was arrested at his suburban Fenton home Wednesday night after his wife, Glenda, a pretty red-haired woman, unexpectedly blurted out the story to Kansas City authorities.

St. Louis County Police Det. Jack Patty said Mrs. Duisen apparently "came in with the story because she was afraid for her own life. She said she saw both killings."

Mrs. Duisen was picked up at Kansas City during a routine investigation of another matter. She is held here as a material witness. Petty said county police gave her a series of polygraph tests that indicate she is telling the truth.

Duisen maintained his innocence until Clubb surrendered Friday night, just before police were to close in on his home, and signed his statement.

Duisen's statement said Mrs. Sutterfield was working for him in a St. Louis apartment but he wanted to expand his operation.

He and Clubb induced Miss Phipps to go to the apartment late last May but she refused to become involved in the ring. Duisen said they feared she might give them away so he blinded her by squirting shaving cream in her eyes so she couldn't place the location.

Then, Duisen said, the three drove the girl to a lonely spot on the Mississippi River. "I guess it's screwy but we just did it to see if we could scare her."

At the river's bank, Duisen said, Miss Phipps yelled and waved at a passing river towboat for help "That's when I pushed her in the water."

The girl struggled and Duisen asked Clubb to help hold her under. After a while, he said, they left the body in the river and walked away. It has never been found.

Clubb gave a similar account of the incident, police said.

Several days later, Duisen said, he grew angry at Mrs. Sutterfield. Duisen said they slapped her around and then he shaved her head to humiliate her.

He said he then strangled her with his hands but stopped and tried to revive her.

Popular Manner Of Pulling Uncle Sam's Beard Hits Record Proportions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American bombing raids on North Viet Nam in retaliation for Communist Viet Cong ground attacks on U.S. installations in South Viet Nam have brought widespread public demonstrations to the detriment of U.S. prestige abroad.

The past week was one of the worst on record for the type of incidents that have become a popular international means of pulling Uncle Sam's beard.

As often before, the latest incidents resulted in damage to U.S. embassies and other buildings and in abuse of American symbols such as the flag.

President Johnson said: "We cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, or our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared: "We shall be very sensitive on these matters" and the Unitd States is going to "press very sharply" for full protection of its embassies.

But as in the past, the question of what the United States would do — or could do — to effectively curb such outbursts was left unanswered.

Nor were the protests against U.S. policy in Viet Nam the only incidents last week involving American diplomacy.

Syria sent Walter S. Snowdon, U.S. second secretary, out of the country, accusing him of spying.

Tanzania recalled its ambassador to Washington in retaliation for the U.S. expulsion of a Tanzanian diplomat.

The Soviet Union on Friday ordered expulsion of the Moscow correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, Adam Clymer. He was accused of slapping a Russian policeman during an anti-American riot at the U.S. Embassy Feb. 9. Clymer denied it. U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler told newsmen, "We protested the action (against Clymer) and considered it unjustified."

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

Nostalgia

With Jimmy Hatten

The announcement from Lake Providence this week that the Junior Chamber of Commerce of that town has decided not to hold an East Carroll beauty pageant was a particularly striking bit of news for beauty fans.

To some it may have brought a flood of nostalgia—rememberances of the warm July nights when Miss Louisiana paraded yearly down the boardwalk before an admiring audience.

Now the Miss Louisiana Pageant has moved from its old setting — to meet with spectacular success in its first showing in Monroe last year—and everyone concerned hopes for continued success at its new home in the biggest city on the Ouachita.

When the pageant was in Lake Providence, the Jaycees there did everything in their power to make it a success, and this column feels it was no fault of their own — rather the size of the town and its location — that eventually brought its removal.

But for a beauty pageant fan, the pageants at Lake Providence in the open air and the gala festivities that went along with them, won't be easily forgotten.

Our choise of the best was the 1961 pageant. Our rememberances are connected mainly with the winner — Lyndra Pate of Shreveport — representing the North Louisiana Cotton Festival of Bastrop.

What made it great, in our opinion, was the setting. It was the eve of July 4 and Lyndra's talent number was a patriotic song extolling the virtues of this great land of ours.

Draped in red, white and blue bunting of the American flag, the sincerity of her words as she sang them were evident. All in all, it was a very moving scene. The judges and the audience, it seemed, were well unified on the choice of a winner.

What made it all the more appealing however, was that Lyndra by no means had an easy go of it. The competition was tough. Diana Smith. Remember her? She was the next winner of the pageant. And there were many, many others.

What a pageant! Remember?

It won't be long now when the time arrives for spring festivities in northeast Louisiana. Over at Newellton Ed McDonald and cohorts are preparing for their tulip fesival along about the middle of March, and before that it will be Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show time at Delhi. The Louisiana Peach Festival at Ruston is slated for the latter part of June.

McDonald, as the moving force in the tulip festival, has put Tensas Parish very much on the Louisiana tourist map, and this year, if plans work out, the event looks like a real spectacular. Tulips, Dutch windmills . . . but let's not steal the show. Mr. Ed will have an announcement soon.

One expert on tourism said a few months ago that the 1.5-million visitors per year who visit New Orleans are relatively untapped by the rest of the state. If Mr. Ed's enthusiasm is catching though,, this situation is in for a change.

Radio, of course, cannot compete with newspapers in news coverage because of a paper's volume, but there is a particular service a radio can perform that is of great public service.

If more stations would follow the lead of KWKH in Shreveport it would be of great benefit to all. That service is a close check on the weather.

Our weather information service says that radio men report that radar reports are one of the most interesting and popular items on the circuit. KWKH follows radar reports faithfully in stormy or rainy weather.

A listener is told such things as if there is a tornado alert; the movements of thunderstorms; where the greatest rainfall is occurring; and, all in all, just what to expect of the weather in your area at a particular time.

The spring storm season is near, and this is a good area for them. Good radio weather reporting could be of great public service.

Vidalia Voters Asked To Decide On Bond Issue

VIDALIA (Special) — In connection with an $883,560 sewerage proposal, Vidalia residents will vote April 20 on a revenue bond issue of $400,000.

Funds from the bond issue would be added to a federal grant of $55,560, ad valorem tax bonds of $200,000 and special sewerage assessments of $228,000 to make the total requested for the project.

Also submitted at the election will be another proposition. It is on authorization of the refunding of the town's outstanding revenue bonds worth $1,029,000.

Purpose of the refund would be to insure that the new revenue bond financing of sewerage improvements will be at the lowest possible rate.

The ad valorem tax bonds have already been voted and will run for 20 years at no increase in the present tax rate.

Funds from special sewerage assessments will be derived from levies against front footage of property to be served.

Dairy Science Group To Meet At Homer Site

HOMER (Special) — The annual meeting of the Louisiana Division of the American Dairy Science Association will be held March 17 at LSU's North Louisiana Hill Farm Experiment Station here.

The theme of the program will be "Quality Control of Milk."

Speakers and their topics will include W. Nelson Philpot of the Homer Station, "Use and Interpretation of Mastistis Screening Tests;" L. Hortman of the State Board of Health in New Orleans, "State's Board of Health Program on Mastitis;" and Dr. J. H. Gholson, LSU professor of dairy science, "Low vs. High Level Pipeline Milking."

LSU dairy scientists will give special reports on forage and records testing programs and genetic improvement of dairy herds. Ed Wilborn, editor of the "Progressive Farmer" magazine, will speak on the Southern dairy industry at the conference luncheon.

Coin Convention Scheduled For Monroe May 1-2

Coin collectors and dealers from throughout the state will convene at Monroe May 1 and 2 for the 1965 Convention of the Louisiana Numismatic Association.

J. L. Anders of the Monroe Coin Club said the convention, to be held at the Virginia Hotel, would feature displays of rare and unusual coins.

Mrs. Roslyn Groski of Noel, Mo. will display her collection of mint errors.

Seven categories to be judged, with trophies or plaques awarded the top three in each group, are United States, Gold Coins, Foreign, Paper Money, Ancient and Medieval, Metals and Tokens, and Juniors.

Persons interested in entering an exhibit for the convention should write Marvin Phillips, Exhibits Chairman, 1905 South Grand St., Monroe.

LSU Has Part In New Project For Gulf Study

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Seven universities announced Saturday the establishment of the Gulf Universities Research Corp., a multi-million-dollar sciences center for the study of the Gulf of Mexico and adjacent waters.

The universities are Texas A&M, Florida State, Louisiana State, Rice, Southern Methodist, Texas and Houston. Southwest Research Center of San Antonio is an associate member and will provide the operational staff for the center.

The scientific staff for the center, with facilities ashore and afloat, will be drawn from the universities under a rotation system. The location of the Gulf Coast Marine Sciences Center has not been decided.

Funds for it will be solicited from federal agencies, foundations and other sources. Proposals call for a total investment within five years of $13 million in facilities and $12 million in basic research, engineering and operational support functions and services.

After five years, it is estimated the annual program cost would be $4 million-$6 million.

The new corporation was planned as a cooperative venture to provide facilities and services too expensive for a single university and to undertake projects of a size no university could handle alone.

Graduate Dean Wayne C. Hall of Texas A&M said the Gulf Center will be somewhat comparable to the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo.

"The center will not participate directly in teaching, but it will make its facilities available for advanced training," Hall said.

JOSE MOLINA and some members of his Bailes Espanoles, a talented group of young Spanish Flamenco dancers, who will appear in a concert at Neville High School auditorium Monday night at 8:15 under auspices of the Northeast State Concerts Association.

Concert Set Here Monday

A rising young troupe of Flamengo (gypsy) dancers — the Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles—will appear in concert at Neville High School auditorium here Monday at 8:15 p.m.

The performance is a part of the Northeast State Concerts Series. Admission will be by series membership only.

Headed by the former principal male dancer with Jose Greco, the company was formed in early 1962 in Molina's native Spain.

While performing in a Madrid contina, the newly formed troupe was seen by a group of American business executives on a government - sponsored tour of Europe. They were so impressed that they offered to subsidize the company's visit to the United States. Thus began one of the most rapid and remarkable rises to national fame in the annals of American show business.

Bailes Espanoles American debut was made in Washington, D. C., in May, 1962. The company began its third record-breaking tour of the Americas last September. The current 40-week tour is billed as the longest ever played by a Flamenco dance company in a single session in the history of U. S. show business.

During the past seasons the company performed in 49 of the 50 states (including Hawaii), in every one of Canada's provines as well as Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and Netherlands West Indies. Of the 107 sponsors for whom the troupe appeared last season, all but four re-engaged the attraction for a return appearance this year.

Molina's Bailes Espanoles consists of 12 Spanish dancers, singers and musicians. Musical accompaniment is furnished by Francisco Espinosa, Roman, guitarists, and Silvio Masciarelli, pianist and musical director.

The program of 20 numbers features songs and dances from the Spanish provinces, from the Court of Charles III, from Spain's great operas and ballets, from the Andalucian gypsy camps, and from the works of such noted non-Spanish composers as Maurice Ravel and Rimsky-Korsakov.

Critics have been unanimous in praising the showmanship with which Molina and his associates have assembled this production. The freshness and imagination with which each number has been choreographed and staged accounts for much of the success the company has enjoyed, it was pointed out.

Wearing colorful costumes, the Spanish dancers appear this season in an all-new wardrobe valued at $80,000. The company bills it as "the most spectacularly beautiful wardrobe carried by any dance attraction in the country today."

Concordia Sets School Clinics For Beginners

VIDALIA (Special) — Preschool examinations and registration will be held during the month of March for all Concordia Parish children eligible to begin school in the fall of 1965.

Dr. T. B. White, parish health unit medical consultant, will examine all pre-school children at various schools.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and be held until 1 p.m. All children must have a birth certificate. If parents do not have birth certificates and their children were born in the state of Louisiana, they should consult their health unit at Vidalia or Ferriday.

The schedule is as follows: Tuesday, March 2 — Concord elementary school; Thursday, March 4 — Clayton elementary; Tuesday, March 9 and Thursday, March 11 — Ferriday elementary; Tuesday, March 16 — Monterey school; Thursday, March 18 and Friday, March 19 — Vidalia elementary; Tuesday, March 23, Thursday, March 25 and Friday, March 26 — Sevier elementary; and Tuesday, March 30 — Shaw elementary.

Slow Enlistment Brings On Need For More Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department apparently will have to recommend to President Johnson soon that the draft must be continued if the nation is to maintain adequate armed forces.

Precise proposals that will result from a year-long manpower study are still largely speculative. But once-high hopes of ending the draft appeared Saturday to be fading fast.

Military Enlistments have been dropping since talk of ending conscription reached a high pitch in the presidential election campaign last fall. Recent draft calls have had to be increased to make up the deficit. There also are reports the Pentagon's studies may show that an all-volunteer force would fall about one million men short of estimated needs over the next five years.

The estimated needs are for land, sea and air forces totalling between 2.6 million and 2.7 million men. Doubts now have arisen that a force of more than 1.5 million to 1.75 million could be maintained without the draft.

Only the Army drafts men now. But conscription is a major factor influencing enlistments and volunteers for officer programs in all the services and in the armed forces reserves.

As a result of the enlistment decline, the Army has had to double its March draft call. It is requesting 7,900 men. In April it will draft 13,700 men. The increase for those two months is expected to continue in May and June.

THE UNEXPECTED BITE

Treasury Puts Out Facts Not Sympathy For Payers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department offered facts instead of sympathy Saturday to thousands of wage earners who have just begun to realize they will owe more income taxes this year despite an $11.2 billion income tax cut.

The main reason is that less money was withheld from their wages for taxes than they will owe for 1964. But many apparently did not anticipate the big end-of-the-year bite.

As part of last year's historic tax cut, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) lowered the withholding rate from 18 to 14 per cent. The lower rate plus the cut in taxes gave Americans more money to spend during the year.

Taxpayers were warned about the lower withholding rate's effect long before it was enacted.

In "a response to inquiries," the Treasury Department said bigger tax bills shouldn't be blamed completely on the withholding rate. It added that not everyone will owe the treasury this year.

"The fact is that since two out of three taxpayers receive refunds, much of the reduction in withholding attributable to the 1964 act will be reflected in lower refunds rather than in larger tax payments," the treasury said.

"Furthermore, the reduction in withholding attributable to the 1964 act has a much smaller effect on the average taxpayer—whether he has a tax payment or a refund due—than popularly supposed.

"For instance, in 1964, for a single person earning $4,000, the increase over 1963 withholding could not exceed $34. At $6,000, it could not exceed $61; at $8,000, $83, and at $10,0000 it could not exceed $98.

The treasury said there were many reasons why some taxpayers will pay bigger bills this year.

"A common reason is that many taxpayers do not file their quarterly declarations of tax and do not realize the differences between their withholding and their current tax liabilities until the final accounting at the end of the year," the treasury said.

Here are some other reasons the treasury gave for taxpayers who are owing bigger tax bills:

—Underwithholding resulting from an increase inpay, more overtime or steady employment. "Personal income increased by $27 billion and employment, by 1.5 million, in 1964."

—Loss of exemptions through divorce, marriage of a dependent, death or other reasons and then failing to make withholding adjustments.

—"Moonlighting" on a second job even though duplicating the number of exemptions for both jobs.

—The wife going to work.

—Increased income from dividends, capital gains, fees and other income from self-employment.

Wealthy Widow Leaves Millions To Princeton U.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A widow from Brooklyn, N.Y., left $27 million to Princeton University as part of an enduring memorial to her husband and son, the university president announced Saturday.

The money was the second-largest single gift in the history of the Ivy League university, said Dr. Robert F. Goheen.

The bequest was from Mrs. Stanley P. Jadwin, who died last Oct. 4, three days before her 87th birthday.

Mrs. Jadwin's gift, and two others totaling $6 million, were announced by Goheen at the 51st annual midwinter meeting of the Princeton National Alumni Association.

The meeting was attended by U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, a summa cum laude graduate of Princeton in 1945, who received the annual Woodrow Wilson Award of the university.

Goheen told the alumni that the university was embarking on a 10-year program in which it hopes to raise $150 million for building and expansion programs.

The $33 million in gifts to the school are being earmarked for the expansion program, he said.

Mrs. Jadwin, the former Ethel Stockwell, presented gifts totaling more than $600,000 to Princeton during her lifetime.

"She told us she would do something nice for Princeton," said Goheen, "but none of us knew what was coming. We were bowled over."

The executors informed Goheen of the amount of the bequest last November.

Mrs. Jadwin made no restrictions on the use of the $27 million except for a provision that "suitable memorials for her husband and son be established," said Goheen.

Her son, Leander Stockwell Jadwin, was a 1928 graduate of Princeton who died in an automobile accident a year after leaving school. He captained the university track team in his senior year.

COLLECTOR'S COMIC BOOKS

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Old comic books are like money in the bank.

So says Harold Bonnett, operator of a book store for 30 years who sells second-hand comic magazines.

"I knew comic books would be valuable some day," he says, "so I just put them away and waited."

Some he has are 25 years old. Collectors will pay up to $25 for some comics, he says, and he has been offered $10 for a first edition of a Superman book.

EXEMPTION ENDS

Plants Will Be Put Back On Tax Rolls

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A trouble-shooter for Gov. John McKeithen's industrial inducement program said Saturday about $125 million worth of plants were listed for return to the state property tax rolls in 1964.

But Charles Porpora of New Orleans said about 20 per cent of the total will be lost to the state and its subdivisions through obsolescence of equipment, modernization and destruction as through fire.

Porpora has the job of seeing that industries put back on the property tax rolls after 10-year exemptions expire are assessed in the 64 parishes and numerous municipalities in a fair way.

Louisiana grants exemptions for new and expanding industry as an inducement for them to locate in the state. Under 1964 legislation, assessors are required to place a value on these plants for tax purposes equal to similar property in the area.

Porpora said much of his work had been in the New Orleans area so far, and he hadn't seen much of other areas of the state as yet.

"Of those I have seen," Porpora said when questioned, "the losses are great" due to replacement of equipment and facilities so they no longer were subject to taxation.

The state gets 5.75 mills out of property taxes, while the average for parishes and such political subdivisions over the state is 50 mills. Jefferson Parish has 130 mills.

If Porpora's preliminary estimates hold true, this means the state and its subdivisions will lose about $25 million and be left with about $100 million in new taxable property on the rolls.

Although Porpora didn't say so, it is obvious here that automation and modernization of equipment is having a solid impact in the area of property taxation.

And the course of property tax exemptions may be one explanation for the onrush of new industry to Louisiana.

Several applicants for 10-year property tax exemptions told the State Board of Commerce and Industry Friday they were replacing old or worn out equipment, and putting in modern equipment. Usually they were given exemptions.

Deleted equipment sometimes, obviously, never gets on the property tax rolls. By the time the 10-year exemption has run its course, new equipment replaces it.

Perhaps this was a reason Porpora's $125 million figure was not higher.

State District Attorneys Elect At Conference

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Baton Rouge Dist. Atty. Sargent Pitcher Jr. was elected president of the state District Attorney's Association at the attorney General's Conference for District Attorneys Saturday.

Pitcher succeeded Sam Wells of Colfax. Louis H. Padgett Jr. of Bossier City was elected vice president and Bernard Marcantel of Jennings, secretary-treasurer.

Walter R. Krousel Jr. of Baton Rouge was elected president of the Assistant District Attorney's Association in another session of the conference. He replaced William R. Coenen of Rayville.

Jules L. Davidson Jr. of Alexandria was elected vice president and Ronald C. Martin of Natchitocles, secretary - treasurer.

At the district attorney's meeting, it was resolved "that the association opposes any proposal to establish federal registrars as being another measure aimed at further concentration of the vast powers already held by the federal government at the expense of local government and the sovereignty of the state."

Dist. Atty. Fred L. Jackson, Homer, suggested that district attorneys should approve a bill for pay in school board cases.

ON STATE SENATE

Reseating Suits In Making

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The federal courts soon will have before them two suits seeking to force Louisiana to redistrict its Senate, it was learned here Saturday.

Sen. Dudley LeBlanc, chairman of the legislative committee on Senate Redistricting, hinted such a second suit was in the making, and sources in Lafayette confirmed it would be filed there in about two weeks.

The development threw a new wrinkle into the long fight over Senate reseating.

One of the purposes of the new move is to gain a separate seat in the Senate for Lafayette Parish, which now shares two senators with two other parishes.

Inspiration for the move lies in a New York case, in which the entire state legislature is being forced to scramble for new seats under a court-ordered redistricting plan only months after taking office.

Possibly, the new suit would be considered eventually by the same three - judge federal panel studying the suit by Sen. Jules Mollere, Metairie.

The Mollere move has been delayed by the senator's recent illness.

LeBlanc's committee, after a long study, has presented to Gov. John McKeithen a plan to reseat the Senate. The governor, meanwhile, has said he would leave to the legislature the decision on redistricting and would not have an administration bill in the next session.

The Mollere suit long has been before the federal court panel, he has delayed seeking action until the LeBlanc committee's study could be finished.

Last month, Mollere said the time for talk was over and he would go ahead and ask the federal court for a judgment.

He criticized the committee proposal to give his area only two senators, saying the area's population called for more Senate representation.

A Lafayette political figure, who asked that his name be withheld, said his parish would seek to intervene in the federal case. He said a taxpayers' suit was in the making, similar to that in which Mollere serves as attorney for some Jefferson Parish taxpayers.

"We have the magic figure (in population) that gives us our own senator," the Lafayette source said. "They might consolidate the two suits."

He pointed out that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that both House and Senate in state legislatures must be apportioned strictly along population lines.

Monday Local Postal Holiday

Postmasters Woodrow W. Hathorn of Monroe and Homer B. Roark, West Monroe, announced Saturday that Post Offices and stations in both cities will be closed Monday in observance of George Washington's Birthday.

All windows will be closed and there will be no city delivery or rural delivery. Only special delivery letters and parcels will be delivered. Collections from outlying mail boxes will be on a Sunday, or holiday schedule.

Service will return to normal on Tuesday.

Banks, stores and other business places will be open in the Twin Cities as usual Monday.

Winners Named In Area Junior Livestock Show

OAK GROVE (Special) — A Junior Livestock Show, sponsored by the West Carroll Parish Cattlemen's Association, was held Saturday at the court house square.

Trophies were awarded in the following classes: Dairy Heifer Class — first, Rena Elkins of Forest school; second, Rena Elkins and third, Billy Elkins of Forest school; Beef Steers — first, Buddy McKoin of Pioneer school; second, Elizabeth Janes of Kilbourne school; and third, John Robert McIntosh of Pioneer; Beef Bull — first, Marvin Oldham of Pioneer; Quarter Horse — first, Vickie Chambless of Forest; and Showmanship—first, Rena Elkins; second, Buddy McKoin and third Vickie Chambless.

According to T. C. Clower, assistant county agent of West Carroll, Saturday's winners will be exhibited in the Junior Livestock Show at Delhi.

S. C. Ferguson, assistant farm agent, pointed out that since this was a revival of an old event, many interested youngsters were unable to get their animals ready in time. He said the number of entries would increase next year.

Gold cups were awarded the winners and cash prizes of $15 to first place, $10 second and $5 third.

The association's two-day convention here will close today with a cruise up the Ouachita River to Camden, Ark. (Photo by Richard Greene)

Boston Cardinal In Good Shape After Operation

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Boston, underwent a 3½-hour operation Saturday for removal of a portion of his intestine.

The prelate, 69, close associate of the late President John F. Kennedy, was reported in good condition following the surgery.

He was expected to be hospitalized for about 10 days.

Dr. James Doonan, who performed the operation in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, said there was no final determination whether malignancy was involved.

"I am delighted with the outcome of the operation," Dr. Doonan told newsmen. "The cardinal came through in fine fashion."

He was assisted by Dr. Richard Stanton, chief of surgery at the hospital, and Drs. Samuel Gargano and S. Compagnone. The preliminary examinations were made by Dr. Richard Wright, the prelate's personal physician.

When the cardinal entered the hospital last Wednesday he jokingly told newsmen:

"They'll have a hard time keeping me here for any length of time. I've walked out on them before."

Rt. Rev. Francis J. Sexton, archdiocesan chancellor, said the surgeons removed a growth known as polyps. He said the operation should not interfere with normal functioning of the intestines.

"The cardinal was in wonderful spirits before the operation," Msgr. Sexton said. "He joked with us as he entered the operating room and was entirely composed."

Msgr. Sexton said the operation went "normally, smoothly, there were no difficulties or complications."

Cardinal Cushing has been a nationally known figure for many years and closely associated with the Kennedy family.

Houston Strike Closer To End With New Accord

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Another obstacle was removed Saturday toward final settlement of the West Gulf dock strike when the Galveston wharves and affiliated dock and warehouse workers reached agreement on a four-year contract.

The agreement, scheduled to be signed Tuesday, was similar to terms of the 1963 and 1964 contracts. The only changes were in wages and benefits.

The 200 Galveston longshoremen covered by the pact will get the same money package agreed to by the West Gulf maritime industry and the deepwater International Longshoremen's Association local.

It took only three days of negotiations for the wharves officials and ILA local leaders to reach a settlement.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the entire district, which includes some 6,000 dock workers from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., were in weekend recess. The strike has tied up ports in the area for 41 days.

James J. Reynolds, assistant secretary of labor who has been guiding the talks, scheduled a joint session of the deadlocked shippers and ILA representatives for Monday.

Although Reynolds recessed the meetings Friday for the weekend, he put both sides on a four-hour call and scheduled informal meetings.

The union has turned down a shipper proposal which included an 80-cent pay package over a four year period.

Union spokesmen said they could not accept stipulations of the contract which allowed industry to control work gang sizes and hiring practices.

SET FOR MARCH 2-4

Monroe To Host State DAR Meet

Monroe will host the 56th annual state conference of the Louisiana Society, Daughters of the American Revolution on March 2, 3, and 4, with headquarters at the Virginia Hotel.

Theme for the conference "The 75th Diamond Jubilee" will be in keeping with the National Society's anniversary. Miss Carrie Dee Drew, general chairman, disclosed that there will be only two major addresses at the general sessions this year plus the election of officers.

Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, president general of N.S.D.A.R. from Alexandria, Virginia, will attend and will present the President General's Forum on Wednesday morning, March 3. Mrs. Duncan's address will vary according to current interest at the time of the meetings. Howver it is certain the DAR Diamond Jubilee, the 74th Continental Congress and the closing months of the incumbent administration's three - year term will be among primary topics.

Dr. Robert Morris, of Dallas, Tex., noted columnist, author, lecturer, attorney, former university president, municipal judge, former chief counsel for the Sentate Internal Security Sub - committee, and who has seen communism at its rawest will deliver a patriotic address at the National Defense luncheon to be held at the Frances Hotel Roof on Wednesday, March 3 at 12:30 p.m.

Mrs. Duncan is the first native Virginian to serve as president general of the National Society DAR. She began her active service in the DAR in 1932 when, at the qualifying age of 18, she became the youngest organizing and charter member of the John Alexander Chapter of Alexandria.

She held several positions in local and state levels before advancing to national levels. She has attended every Continental Congress in Washington during her years of membership and served actively on various committees and assignments. She has also been active with the Children of the American Revolution both state and national.

Mrs. Duncan has received numerous recognitions and citations awards as an "Outstanding Woman" from units of Boy Scouts of America, Sons of the American Revolution, Soroptimists International and was included in the 1963 Holiday Magazine portfolio of 12 leading American women. She is listed in both "Who's Who of American Women" and "Who's Who in America." Mrs. Duncan's husband is also active in business, patriotic, historical and civic fields and the parents of three sons. They are Episcopalians.

Dr. Morris, president of the University of Plano, and former president of the University of Dallas, is at present serving as commander of the U. S. Naval Reserve. As a naval officer and counsel for several state and federal investigative bodies, Dr. Morris has helped cast the cold light of publicity on communism in the schools and the government.

The victories, near victories, and defeats of his 20 - year battle against communism are chronicled in his book "No Wonder We Are Losing". He is also author of the book "Disarmament: Weapon of Conquest".

Dr. Morris also writes a weekly column for newspapers.

He has written many articles for a patriotic voice of freedom publication, and was featured speaker at the Natioal Defense Luncheon at the Continental Congress of the National Society DAR last April.

The public is invited to hear Dr. Morris' talk. Miss Harriet Boyle may be contacted at FA 2-7850 for ticket information.

Eleven chapters of District 3, Louisiana Society, DAR make up the hostess chapters which include Fort Miro, Chief Tusquahoma, Abram Morehouse, Beouf River, Moses Shelby, General William Carroll, General William Montgomery, Dugdemona, Long Leaf Pine, Oakley, and Tallulah.

MRS. ROBERT V. H. Duncan of Alexandria, Va., president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and Dr. Robert Morris of Dallas, Tex., noted columnist, author and lecturer, who will be principal speakers at the 56th annual conference of the Louisiana Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, in Monroe March 2-4.

Ouachita Junior High FHA Club Sells Cookbooks

Ouachita Parish Junior High School future homemakers club will have a skating party Thursday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Fox Arena.

Members of the club are currently selling a new cookbook, "Casserole," containing recipes of home economics teachers throughout the United States, and three other cookbooks. Proceeds from the sales will go into club projects.

Persons desiring the cookbook may call Mrs. Florence Foster, club advisor, at the junior high school on Nutland road, or contact any member of the FHA club.

Officers of the organization are Mary Jo Cannon, president; Sherry Sherman, vice president; Debbie Van, treasurer; Elaine Hodge, secretary; Cheryl Trichel, reporter; and Patricia Johnson, song leader.

NEGROES PREDICT

Monday In Selma Could Be 'D Day'

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Negroes predicted that Monday could spell "D-Day" for civil rights in Selma as they awaited replies to an ultimatum and the arrival of their leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

King, 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner, planned to address a mass rally Monday night and might lead a parade here Monday morning, timed to coincide with the regular session of the Selma City Council.

Wilson Baker, public safety director, said Saturday it was too late to issue Negroes a parade permit. A Negro spokesman said a request for such a permit was made by registered mail Friday, but Baker said he had not received the letter.

Planned demonstrations were put off for the weekend by Negroes, who have been pushing a voter registration drive here for five weeks. Thousands have been arrested, most of them by Sheriff James G. Clark of Dallas County, a symbol of resistance to the Negro campaign.

Baker, the city's highest-ranking law enforcement officer, persuaded about 300 Negroes on Friday night not to stage what he termed a potentially dangerous night march. But he was handed several demands when he conferred afterwards for one hour with Negro leaders.

Hosea Williams, staff member of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Baker was given until Monday to answer, "or we return to the streets."

Williams said Negroes called on Baker to see about hiring Negroes as policemen; arrange for a meeting between Negroes and what he called the power structure of Selma; try to accelerate the voter registration process in Selma; and to arrange for more paved streets and better facilities for Negro neighborhoods.

He also said Negroes called for an investigation of what they termed the brutality of Sheriff Clark.

Baker, using a bullhorn, met Negroes in front of Brown's Chapel and persuaded them Friday night to retrace their steps and return inside the sanctuary.

Bastrop Driver Hurt In Mishap

A Bastrop man was treated for lacerations and abrasions here Saturday morning after his auto veered off the street near South 2nd and Texas and hit a tree.

Monroe Police identified the driver as John W. Brodnax, 28, of 1313 Summerlin Lane, Bastrop. He was taken to St. Francis by Mulhearn ambulance.

The incident happened early Saturday morning, as Brodnax's auto was heading north on South 2nd, police said.

Monroe police also reported a total of seven minor accidents Saturday, with three tickets issued.

Ark-La-Miss Briefs

Killed In Smashup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An auto smashed into a utility pole here Saturday, killing Gordon Ramos, 17, of New Orleans.

Fire Suffocation

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — Edward Gardner, a retired railroad worker, apparently suffocated Saturday when a fire of undetermined origin burned through the living room of his home here.

Switchman Shot

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—Police Saturday turned over to juvenile officials a 16-year-old Negro who claimed he accidently shot a train switchman as he walked atop a moving train.

Officers said the youth told them he was shooting at a bird Wednesday when he heard a man yell. He said he ran because he was frightened.

Officers said James Davidson, 32, of Meridian was in satisfactory condition at a local hospital where he was treated for a 22-caliber gunshot wound.

Decision Appealed

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Records showed Saturday nine civil rights workers have appealed a federal court decision that returned their cases to police courts in Indianola and Belzoni.

Attorneys for the workers filed an appeal with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claude Clayton here sent the cases back to Indianola and Belzoni courts on grounds his court lacked jurisdiction. The cases involve various minor charges.

Stock Purchased

NEW YORK (AP)— Officials of St. Regis Paper Co. announced Saturday the purchase of the capital stock of the Crosby Lumber and Manufacturing Co., Crosby, Miss.

Included in the assets were 152,000 acres of timberland, principally in Mississippi, and a small stand in Louisiana.

St. Regis said it planned to build a softwood plywood plant in the state but gave no construction date. The acquisition boosted St. Regis timber holdings in Mississippi and Louisiana to over 300,000 acres.

No sale price was disclosed. The company said present employes of Crosby, who number about 100, will stay on in their jobs.

Brewery Sale Set

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Jackson Brewing Co., makers of Jax Beer, will be sold to the Kratter Corp. of New York for about $15 million, it was reported Saturday.

The Times-Picayune, quoting an unnamed industry source, said negotiations started a week ago.

The Kratter Corp. owns the Jacob Ruppert Brewery in Manhattan.

Richard G. Jones, vice president and general manager of the Jackson Brewing Co., declined comment.

Dies In Collision

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — James E. Velotta, 36, of Alexandria, was killed early Saturday when his pickup truck collided with a big trailer truck.

The pickup jammed under the trailer and it took almost two hours to remove Velotta's body.

State police identified the driver of the truck as Jule Thomisee, 44, of Shreveport. Officers said he was booked on negligent homicide. He was not hurt.

Library Picketed

INDIANOLA, Miss. (AP)—Police arrested 53 demonstrators Saturday who refused to heed orders to break up picketing of a recently opened Negro library.

Chief Bryce Alexander said the demonstrators, mostly Negroes, were warned after an hour of picketing to disperse. The chief said the library was located near homes where some sick and elderly people reside.

Alexander said the city had no objections to peaceful picketing but was not going to tolerate shouting and singing which disturbed other taxpayers.

He said the group of demonstrators included 31 adults and 22 juveniles. The juveniles were released to the custody of parents and guardians. The adults were being held in jail. All were under $100 bond.

Stock Show Opens

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— The 30th annual Southeastern Junior Livestock Show opens a three-day run in suburban Arabi Feb. 25 with some 400 boys and girls to exhibit about 500 prize animals.

The youngsters are members of 4-H Clubs. Lynda Faye Millican of Zachary will reign as queen, Mansel Slaughter Jr. of Baker will be king.

Sheriff John Rowley of St. Bernard Parish said the show will be dedicated to Leander H. Perez Sr., president of the Plaquemines Parish Commission Council.

Rights Group Encouraged After Hearing

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission reported Saturday encouraging signs amid "extremely serious and unwarranted denials of voting and law enforcement" in Mississippi.

Dr. John Hannah, chairman of the six-member commission and president of Michigan State University, summarized commission opinions as 10 days of public and private hearings ended.

After hearing from some 100 Negro and white Mississipians, Dr. Hannah said:

"Despite some encouraging signs of change, many of Mississippi's Negro citizens continue to face extremely serious and unwarranted denials in voting and law enforcement.

"There are still places in Mississippi where merely seeking to register, much less to vote, requires considerable courage. Some white Mississippians in far too many counties are seemingly still bent on denying the vote to Negro citizens by the application of discriminatory standards, intimidation and violence.

"It is hoped that thoughtful and conscientious white leaders will take every necessary step to guarantee the free exercise throughout Mississippi of this fundamental right."

Hannah said commissioners were '"heartened during this hearing by signs of a developing consensus among many responsible white Mississippians that it is poor economics, poor law and poor moralty to encourage or permit racial violence and injustice."

The commission drew witnesses from what it considered the big trouble spots and the key bright spots in the state, apparently to dramatize the contrast.

Hannah mentioned in his statement the situation in Greenville, located in the heart of the agricultural Delta area, an area along the Mississippi River South of Memphis with a heavy Negro population.

"The people of Greenville," Hannah said, "have been able to develop a community in which Negroes as well as whites feel that they will receive fair and just treatment and adequate protection. . .

"What was possible in Greenville we are sure is possible throughout the state."

He said business and political leaders elsewhere would find it "no less beneficial to insist on well-trained, impartial officers of the law. Violence and disorder are certainly less likely to occur . . . where fair and equal administration of justice acts as a curb on distrust of, or contempt for, the law."

Hannah, said testimony also indicated that educational problems face the state and relate to the overall racial situation.

Leipe Advises Potato Growers At Area Meet

OAK GROVE (Special) — At a meeting of the Macon Ridge Growers Association Friday Herman G. Leipe, past president of the National Sweet Potato Council, advised the farmers that a strong organization makes for better communications.

He said that groups can make decisions that will be recognized, whereas individual voices are not heard. He added that all members should be kept informed about what's going on concerning progress made by the organization.

Leipe said he would attempt to set up a brokerage office in the east to assist the farmers market their produce throughout the eastern states.

He also stated an association cannot prosper unless it has sufficient operating funds. He suggested the refinancing of loan funds for the purpose of extending payments over a longer period of time.

Also speaking at the meeting was Joseph T. Lynch, manager of the New Jersey White Potato Council and specialist in white potato market promotion.

About 50 growers attended the meeting.

THIS IS A picture of the Old Opera House and Sugar Brothers Co., Ltd. wholesale grocers, according to Alan F. Sugar of Monroe. Standing in front of the grocery at the time the picture was made in the late 1800's were Sam Sugar and W. A. Walker Sr. The building at the right was the J. Y. Covington Saloon. To the left is shown portion of shed of the V. S. & P Railroad which was located between Walnut and North 2nd Streets on Jefferson Street. The Opera House was later converted into a hotel known as the Star Hotel. This portion of the building, according to Sugar, is now occupied by Consumers Hardware, owned by the Southern Hardware Company, Ltd. Note the streets were of dirt at the time the picture was made.

SEN. FULBRIGHT SAYS

Extremism For Ideal's Sake Is Vice

NEW YORK (UPI)—A unique four-day conference on peace ended Saturday with a warning from the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that extremism in pursuit of an ideal is a vice.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., told 2,000 scholars and statesmen from 14 countries that throughout history the world has suffered grievously at the hands of idealists "who have fallen victim to the fatuous illusion that they and they alone are in possession of the key to paradise."

He said both Communists and believers in democracy must temper their devotion to their respective ideologies before an "excess of zeal" on either side plunges the world into nuclear war.

"The 'true believer' makes war in the name of peace, and commits murder in the name of human happiness," Fulbright said. "The most vital condition of coexistence . . . is the cultivation of a spirit in which nations are more interested in solving problems than in proving theories, and more interested in helping people to be happy than in forcing them to be virtuous."

Fulbright spoke at the final session of an international convocation, sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic institutions, at which men of many faiths and none discussed the requirements for world peace, in the light of the moral principles laid down by the late Pope John XXIII in his famed encyclical, "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth).

Historian Arnold Toynbee told the convocation that world government has become, not a utopian ideal, but an indispensable practical requirement for survival in the atomic age.

The problems which men and nations face today, he said, "can be dealt with only by world authorities with effective power to override the national governments."

The 75-year-old British scholar said the concept of world government may not be as difficult to sell as some think, because "it is in the mutual interest of all nations to subordinate their national sovereignty to world authorities" that can prevent nuclear holocaust.

LBJ Hasn't Set Date For Visiting In Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Saturday President Johnson has not yet decided on the timing of a planned goodwill trip to South America.

Johnson has said he plans to go to South America this year and he is expected to fly there during the spring. The only stop that appears to be fairly firm at this time is Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Johnson's press secretary, George E. Reedy, was asked about a published report that the President was likely to go to Rio on April 21.

"When I told him about this," Reedy replied, "it was a surprise to him because he hasn't settled on any particular date. He has no firm, fixed date."

NO RECEPTION

Henry Ford, Italian Married By Judge

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Ford II, head of a worldwide automotive empire and an attractive, blonde, Italian divorcee who likes to dabble in art were married Friday night.

Ford, 48, board chairman of Ford Motor Co., and Maria Cristina Vettore Austin, 35, were married at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C., by Judge Milton S. Kronheim Jr. of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

There was no reception following the wedding and Ford and his new wife left immediately by airplane for a trip to Europe. The two plan to return to the United States late next month and live at Ford's lavish home in suburban Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., a wedding gift to him and his first wife.

The quiet wedding was in sharp contrast to Ford's marriage to his first wife, the former Anne McDonnell, 45, of Southampton, N.Y., in 1940. That socially brilliant marriage, culminating a romance begun on an ocean liner, was attended by the top figures of society and gifts to the newlyweds were said to have been valued at one million dollars.

The new Mrs. Ford was born in Vicenza, Italy, but was educated in Milan and lived much of her life in that city. She is the daughter of Mrs. Edoardo G. Vettore of Milan. Her father, who was wounded while serving with the Italian army in World War I, died during her childhood. She was one sister, Dina Tanziani of Rome, and a brother, Giovanni Vettore of Milan.

A British subject for 17 years, Mrs. Ford was married to Robin W. M. Austin of Montreal, Canada, in 1947. They were divorced in Quebec in 1955. Her husband was a British naval officer.

The new Mrs. Ford is an amateur sculptress and is deeply interested in art. She and Ford had been linked romantically since his divorce Feb. 12, 1964.

A routine, 20-minute court hearing at Fairfield, Idaho, dissolved the 23-year marriage of Ford and his first wife. The uncontested divorce was granted Mrs. Ford on grounds of mental cruelty. She was awarded custody of their only minor child, Edsel Bryant Ford, now 16. The couple has two other children, Charlotte, 23, and Anne, 21.

A court statement following the divorce said: "All property rights had been settled by agreement at the time of their separation last summer." No details of the settlement were revealed, but unconfirmed reports have put the amount at more than $16 million.

Ford had no comment on the divorce. He was in Detroit at a routine meeting of the company's board of directors and was represented by an attorney at the divorce hearing.

Ford and his former wife both were the children of millionaire families. Their legal separation in August, 1963, stunned society circles in Detroit, New York and abroad.

The romance started in 1936 when Anne and Henry met aboard the French liner Normandie. Henry, then 19, was returning to Yale after a summer in Europe. Anne, 17, was going back to the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Noroton, Conn. Their engagement was announced in the spring of Ford's last year at the university. Ford, raised a Methodist, began instruction in Anne's Roman Catholic faith, to which he was converted by Bishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Friends of the family said this so incensed old Henry Ford, founder of the giant auto company, that he threatened to give control of the company to a board of directors. However, when the couple was married at Southampton, Ford's grandfather danced with the bride as industrial greats and social leaders from all parts of the world looked on.

Priest In Rome Following Views On Birth Control

LONDON (UPI) — A 25-year-old Roman Catholic priest who wrote a newspaper article charging his church was wrong in forbidding artificial birth control flew to Rome Saturday on the advice of his superiors.

Before boarding his plane, Father Arnold A. McMahon said he still stands by what he wrote—that God did not create a woman's womb "to be a machine that mass-produces babies battery-hen style."

McMahon's controversial article first was printed in the Birmingham Post Friday. The article was then widely reprinted by British national newspapers.

The young priest said that after the article first appeared he received a telephone call from his direct superiors in Liverpool who "advised me to go to Rome to talk things over with my superior general of the Divine Word of Missionaries."

Asked if he had expected reaction from his superiors to his article, Father McMahon said, "I suppose I did, but I stand by what I wrote."

McMahon teaches at St. Richard's College for Foreign Mission in Hadzor.

What Restrictions Should Be Placed On Press In Covering Crime Stories?

By RALEIGH ALLSBROOK

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman is hacked to death in bed and her husband, a man of some prominence, is arrested and charged with the crime.

How much are the press, television and radio entitled to report on the case?

Suppose the man signs a statement admitting the slaying, and police learn that years before, in another state, the man was accused but later freed in a similar case.

Should newsmen be given these facts along with others they normally get in talking with police and prosecutors?

Or should certain rules be set up restricting what the press and broadcasters can say about criminal cases?

Newsmen in the past generally have been bound only by the laws of libel and slander and — for the most part — the dictates of good taste.

They have been able to talk freely with police and other sources and use their own ingenuity in digging up information.

But recently a number of bar organizations, judges and others have ordered or proposed specific restrictions on reporting criminal cases.

Most of these developed since the Warren Commission report criticizing coverage of events in Dallas following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The Warren Commission described the influx of newsmen into Dallas as utter chaos and called for a code of ethics to cover such situations.

Both police and newsmen were blamed for what the commission called the "undigested flow of evidence" conveyed to the public.

Law enforcement agencies attempted to keep the press fully informed on the investigation, the commission said, and "in the process a great deal of misinformation was disseminated" and innocent citizens injured by unfavorable publicity.

Last November, the New Jersey Supreme Court banned potentially prejudicial statements to newsmen in criminal cases by prosecutors, police and defense attorneys.

Singled out were statements about confessions or incriminating admissions, remarks on "open and shut" cases and references to a defendant's prior police record.

The ruling, if strictly observed, could dry up sources for many crime stories.

It left unclear, however, whether any action could be taken against news media for using information considered prejudicial by the court.

Arthur Sills, New Jersey attorney general, later told a committee of the New Jersey Press Association, the order was not intended to curb news coverage.

He promised to stress common sense in discussing it with police and prosecutors.

Similar restrictions were contained in guidelines recommended last December by the Philadelphia Bar Association.

The proposal, now under study, drew sharp criticism from news media, law officers and even some members of the judiciary.

Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia insisted that the public's right to know "is one of the fundamentals of American life."

Under the plan, attorneys could not make statements or be interviewed about criminal cases. Police and prosecutors would not be allowed to release records, photographs or other material, including confessions or statements made by suspects.

The guidelines also propose:

"During the investigation... information should not be furnished unless the publicizing of certain events will help the investigation."

In Nevada last Dec. 21, State Supreme Court Justice Gordon R. Thompson advised district attorneys and police to stop giving out information that might prejudice cases of suspects.

"I think it behooves all prosecuting officers in the state to concentrate on trying their cases and not to worry about publicity," Thompson said.

Declaring a serious situation has resulted in "case after case" being endangered by prosecutors giving newsmen information, he added:

"It's making law enforcement very difficult."

And in Rhode Island, Superior Court Judge Arthur A. Carrellas granted a mistrial Jan. 19 because a defendant's criminal record was published in a local newspaper.

"Even if the court instructed the jury to disregard the article, the harm already has been done," the judge said.

Another mistrial resulted in a murder case in San Bernardino, Calif. Superior Court Judge Karl B. Hilliard ruled Dec. 7 that adverse publicity may have made it impossible to select an impartial jury.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., has introduced a bill in Congress restricting both prosecution and defense in releasing pretrial publicity on defendants in federal criminal cases.

Morse said events in Dallas after the President's assassination emphasized the need for the legislation.

The Texas Court of Appeals, however, ruled in the Billie Sol Estes case that widespread notice about a defendant does not harm his case.

Lewis F. Powell, president of the American Bar Association, surveyed the situation and urged the legal profession and news media to find a "sensible balance" between freedom of the press and guaranteeing an accused person a free fair trial.

The bar and courts, he said in a Miami speech, must protect accused persons from pretrial publication of prejudicial information. He said they have the power to control sources of this information and should be "far more willing to exercise this power."

The bar president further said that "the guarantee of a public trial was never intended to protect any right of the public to be entertained or even to be informed of current events. The purpose is to prevent secret trials."

Powell, however, said he blamed lawyers first and news media second "for over-zealousness in pretrial activity."

What has been the reaction of the press and broadcasters to these restrictive proposals?

Virtually all major organizations representing news media have advised a careful study with the view to seeing that both the freedom of the press and the right to fair trial are protected.

Some named committees to discuss the problem with the American Bar Association.

Gene Robb, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and publisher of the Albany (N.Y.) Times-Union and Knickerbocker News, commented:

"The public interest is paramount in any consideration of these two constitutional guarantees — a free press under the first amendment and a fair trial under the sixth amendment.

"These few instances where they appear in conflict should be resolved without any loss of our liberties. Indeed the studies now embarked upon concerning the relationships of a fair trial and a free press in administration of justice ought to help preserve and strengthen both. That is our purpose."

Miles H. Wolff, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and executive editor of the Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News said:

"My own opinion — and I believe I can speak for the special ASNE committee which is working on the problem — is that I would strongly resist efforts to restrict coverage of criminal cases.

"The restrictions could create machinery of suppression full of worse dangers, and more frequent ones, than those with which the bar charges the press."

Ralph Sewell, president of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism society, and assistant managing editor of the Oklahoma City Times and Daily Oklahoman, said "fair trial and free press are both essential. To imply there must be a choice of one over the other does an injustice to both interests.

"If the matter can be discussed reasonably, it's doubtful that anyone can be against fair trial except those jackleg lawyers and criminals who profit from lawlessness. Certainly, newsmen are not against fair trial; they have fought for centuries to protect that right. But neither do we believe justice can flourish behind a wall of secrecy.

"That secrecy can only add protection for criminals and those who turn them loose on endless series of bail bonds, to steal, rape and murder again and again."

Felix R. McKnight, executive vice president and editor of the Dallas Times Herald, said the American Bar Association was "openly attempting to slip a bridle on the communications media."

Addressing the Oklahoma Press Association, he declared:

"More and more protective measures are asked for the accused criminal. And fewer and fewer freedoms for the press to publicly unmask these degenerates who rob, rape, murder and intimdate the citizens of this country."

Pennsylvania publishers have formed a Freedom of Information Committee to oppose the Philadelphia Bar Association proposals and recent court rules limiting news coverage.

James B. Stevenson, president of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association and publisher of the Titusville Herald, said directors of the association would "urgently oppose any and all attempts to black out news of governmental activities at any level."

Defense of news freedom also has come from groups outside the industry.

John McKee, president of the Dallas Crime Commission, said the reluctance of some papers to print names of juvenile offenders is one of the reasons for an increase in juvenile crime.

He urged news media to focus as much light as it can on crime and added:

"Some of the criminal bar associations throughout the country, as well as some of the so-called 'do-good' organizations could be of great assistance by sitting down and analyzing how they actually are contributing to the increase in our crime rate by restrictive laws."

Caldwell Board Polls Sentiment On Compliance

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Caldwell Parish School Board has called upon the citizens of this parish to make their thoughts known about signing the federal government compliance agreement.

District Attorney Cameron C. Minard of Columbia, legal advisor to the board, asked the people to let their feelings on the matter be known to their respective school board member, either orally or in writing.

The school board, still in a dilemma as to what action should be taken, meets again on March 2—the day before the deadline for signing the compliance agreement or losing federal funds for public schools.

None of the board members have indicated being in favor of signing, in fact the majority of expressions have been in the opposite direction.

Minard said the school board should not have to make such an important decision without first knowing how the people, especially school patrons, feel about the matter.

If the school board does not sign the agreement, Caldwell Parish will lose federal aid amounting to about $40,000 per year beginning April 1.

EXCUSE ACCEPTED

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — An African storeman at Uganda's Murchison Falls game part in Eest Africa was late for work.

"Sorry sir," he told Warden Roger Wheater who wanted to know why he was late on duty. Then he explained: "I was cycling home last night when I saw a cow elephant with a very young calf on the track ahead. I got off and began to push my bicycle through the bush to go around them, but I pushed it into a rhino.

"I dropped the bicycle and ran for the nearest tree, but after I'd climbed it I saw two lions below in the grass.

"So I thought it would be better to stay there for the night until the lions went away — and I'm sorry I'm late for work."

He was forgiven.

IN MOSLEM WORLD

Polygamy May Be Running Out

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Mating customs are changing in Africa. Economics, overpopulation and religious opposition may be dooming polygamy in the Moslem world, and the rules are also tightening in Zambia. A look at two facets of the marriage problem in a swiftly changing continent.)

By ALY MAHMOUD

CAIRO (AP) — The sands of time may be running out for polygamy in the Moslem world.

"God originally permitted polygamy to help Moslems solve many problems that could not be solved otherwise," says Sheikh Abu Zahra. "But a Moslem was required to have strong reasons to commit polygamy. Lust is not a sufficient reason."

Abu Zahra, professor of Islamic law at Cairo University, is spokesman for a group that advocates new interpretations of the Korean. Moslems generally are permitted to have four wives.

SURPRISED

"Polygamists will be surprised and dismayed when doomsday strikes," he said in an interview. "God will tell them then that they have been abusing his laws and they will end up in hell. So I warn you — get rid of your extra wives."

Abu Zahra said misinterpretation of the Koranic laws has given the Moslem religion "a most grotesque and invalid vogue and popularity."

Said the sheikh: "You may take an extra wife or wives only if your wife is crippled, barren or too sick to live up to her conjugal duties."

As of now, Abu Zahra's thesis amounts to no more than an individual belief, given much prominence in the local press. But if his views are adopted by the Conclave of Al-Azhar, Islam's most respected religious seminary, some 17.6 per cent of Egypt's married population may face the charge of adultery.

It is unlikely that President Gamal Abdel Nasser's secular government will adopt such far-reaching views overnight, and polygamists should be safe, as far as state laws are concerned, for the time being.

Actually, polygamy has long been an economic impossibility for most people in Egypt. Prices are skyrocketing and costs of marriage and support are more than most people can afford.

Paradoxically, polygamy is most widespread among those who can't afford it. Educated Egyptians appear to be more cautious.

The Nasser administration recently awoke to the threat of overpopulation and branded polygamy as one of many factors responsible. Official figures indicate Egypt's population will more than double within the next 30 years.

Nasser has not directly attacked established religious rules, but has named a special committee to solve the problem of overpopulation.

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Africa's most unusual marriage bureau is running into problems. It cannot keep pace with the demand for eligible young African damsels.

The problems were highlighted when Kasisi Orphanage and Convent — which runs the bureau — advertised: "We are frequently disturbed by phone inquires about the prospects of marrying Catholic girls.

BACHELORS

"Serious bachelors should not ask such delicate information by phone. Let them write in their own handwriting or else they will receive only evasive or negative answers. Non-Christians need not apply."

The idea of a marriage bureau was that of the Rev. Anthony Cicotti, an Italian-born Jesuit.

"We have been concerned at the number of divorces — the result of many boys and girls marrying without real love," he said. "We want to make sure that the orphan girls who have grown up at the mission get good husbands."

Many of them have — while the husbands have found intelligent, educated wives.

Now word has got around and ardent, lonely bachelors are besieging the mission 17 miles east of Lusaka, to claim a bride.

However, of the convent's 70 annual graduates only several have nowhere to go. The rest return to relatives in their home villages where marriages have been planned for them. Those who remain have a wide choice — though the standards required of the would-be bridegroom are high.

"Only serious bachelors are considered," said Father Cicotti. "They are asked to send a letter of recommendation on moral standards from their parish ministers."

The letter must also certify that the young man is single. Educational and medical certificates are also required. If Father Cicotti is satisfied, the bachelor is invited to the mission to meet the girls.

If all goes well, a marriage is arranged according to the customs of the girl's tribe — and the job of Father Cicotti and the mission is over, though the priest keeps in contact with the couple.

"Our marriages are good ones, because we make sure the couple are good people," he said.

NO 'SURE-FIRE' CURE

Remedies Vary Widely For Colds, Influenza

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

Gargle salt and soda in water — just ignore it — feed a cold, starve a fever — drink liquids, but don't eat anything — stay in bed.

These are some reactions and advice Twin Cities residents have concerning the current seige of colds and influenza.

Some people seem to rely on the old remedies, while others have taken to the newer drugs on the market. However, there still seems to be no "sure-fire" cure for the common cold, and the plague of influenza is still puzzling.

Medical scientists have been working diligently in an attempt to find a solution, but perhaps the main reason there seems to be no precise remedy is because the causes are so elusive.

"People like to try new things," one drug store clerk here said.

Long counters containing cold and flu remedies attest to this assumption. Some contain boxes and bottles of various sizes and descriptions, often with a new discovery or two to help alleviate the suffering.

Some drug stores report people often order the old standbys, while others "cotton" to new products on the market. Of course, many drugs for colds and flu are dispensed by prescriptions through doctors—and this is the wisest method.

Local hospitals have a number of persons admitted currently with influenza, a few with pneumonia. Many more are confined to their beds at home with various stages of colds and influenza.

Schools in the area have been hit by large number of absences recently, but the overall percentage is reported to be only slightly above the same illness periods of past years. Classes at St. Frederick's Catholic High School were dismissed Thursday because of the high rate of illness. Classes are scheduled to resume Monday.

It has been said that years ago there were no viruses — just the plain old "flu bug." However, "the bug" is still a very common used term to describe viruses.

There are several hundred different kinds of viruses — tiny infectious agents that cause various ailments. More than 50 viruses can produce symptoms of the common cold and influenza.

Viruses enter the body through air, in food or water and sometimes through bites of insects.

Hopes are very high that new drugs scientists are working on today will be effective in treating virus-caused diseases.

Seasonal distress signals are sniffles, sore throats, coughs, aches and pains, that sluggish feeling, and so on. And there seem to be as many reasons given as to why we catch colds" as there are remedies.

School Building Bond Vote Set

JONESBORO (Special) — The Jackson Parish School Board has set March 30 as date for an $800,000 bond election, with funds to go for school construction.

Proposed construction from proceeds include a high school and gymnasium plant at Weston, a gym at Jackson High, auditorium at Jonesboro - Hodge High, and additions and repairs at Eros and Chatham high schools and elementary schools at Jonesboro and Hodge.

Should the bond issue pass, it is estimated that parish property taxes would increase by three mills. The bond issue would run for 20 years.

A five-mill tax proposal, also to be voted on March 30, is designed to provide maintenance funds.

PTA May Exercise New Influence

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In the lexicon of the average American parent, three of the dullest initials are PTA — Parent Teachers Associations.

For parents and teachers alike, they usually mean an evening of weak punch, deadly speeches, and the prospect of missing a favorite television show.

But according to an affiliate of the National Education Association, the traditionally tedious PTA meetings in city and suburbia will be the battlegrounds this spring of a determined right-wing effort to gain the upper hand in the nation's school systems.

A warning of turbulence ahead was made in "The Shape of Education for 1965," a publication issued this week by the National School Public Relations Association.

The first three chapters are devoted to the alleged threat posed by such ultraconservative groups as the John Birch Society. The first paragraph says:

"There is . . . evidence that in the spring of 1965 extremists will be concentrating their fire on school superintendents and school board members."

The publication cited a bulletin from the Birch society urging members to "join your local PTA at the beginning of the school year, get your conservative friends to do likewise, and go to work to take it over."

The purported advisory was further quoted as saying that "when you and your friends get the local PTA groups straightened out, move up the ladder as soon as you can to assert a wide influence. And don't let the dirty tactics of the opposition get you down."

The NEA-sponsored booklet reported that W.R. Fulton, an education professor at Oklahoma University, recently estimated that 35 state PTA congresses have been "confronted with rabble-rousing tactics of the extremists." In 20 states, Fulton said, extremists were successful in getting members elected to PTA offices.

The publication also reported that Edwin W. Davis, an official of an NEA commission on professional rights and responsibilities, had told the national convention that in 1964, one out of every 30 school districts in the United States had been confronted with "extremist attacks."

Davis also claimed that in five states "right wing extremists were threatening to wrest control of state PTA groups from the rank and file members."

U.N. Secretary Studying Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. spokesman said Saturday Secretary-General U Thant is considering whether to extend the U.N. peace force on Cyprus beyond March 26 but is still undecided.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on a prepared statement read to correspondents. But the statement spoke of "some recent indications that it (the force) may meet increasing difficulties."

The Security Council sent the force to Cyprus last March to keep peace between Greek and Turkish Cypriots during mediation. The council prolonged its life last Dec. 18 for a fourth three-month period ending March 26.

MOST WORKING WOMEN

VIENNA (AP) — Austria has the highest percentage of working women in Western Europe, a recent survey of the Austrian institute for economic research showed.

About 1,360,000 women held jobs, which is 40 per cent of all working people in Austria. Austria has a population of approximately seven million.

This percentage is only surpassed by East Bloc countries in Communist Romania 45.3 per cent of workers were women, in Czechosolovakia 44.4, the survey said.

The institute said the reason was the "surplus" of women in Austria, who made up 53.4 of the Austrian population. This is unequaled in all Western countries, the survey added.

MAN OF ACTION Veteran Of 3 Wars

An Army sergeant, now stationed in Monroe, looks back over a long and interesting military career which touched in many areas, some of which are current hot-spots of armed conflict.

During the past few days, a unit advisor at the local Army Reserve Center has watched, via the news media, as two of the places he was stationed at last year were destroyed.

M-Sgt. Robert W. Weaver, who is now with the reserve center at Monroe, spent a year as a United States advisor in Viet Nam and was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his service there.

He was based in two locations during his duty in Viet Nam, both of which have been destroyed during the past several days.

EXPLOSIONS, SHELLINGS

During his first six months in Viet Nam, beginning in October, 1963, he was quartered at the billet in Qui Nhon that was blown up recently, killing more than 20 Americans.

His base for the second six - month period was II Corps headquarters in Pleiku, which was shelled the preceeding weekend.

Viet Nam may be uppermost of Sgt. Weaver's mind right now, because of its current situation and because it was his most recent overseas assignment.

However, this veteran soldier has many other memories, since he has fought in three wars and traveled over most of the world.

Sgt. Weaver spent 37 months in the Pacific during World War II, had two tours of duty in Korea, was ROTC advisor at the University of Kansas, spent four years each in Hawaii and Texas, then went to Viet Nam for a year.

He came to Monroe last November, and will retire from the Army in August. He resides at 5209 Blanks, Monroe.

Army duty has given the sergeant about all the traveling he wants. His home is in Houston, and he remarked that after retirement, "I don't care if I never leave Texas again."

In listing some of his travel experiences, Sgt. Weaver said he had been "on or to every island in the Pacific," and in many of the countries in the Orient.

COMMENDATION MEDAL

His Commendation Medal was awarded for his service in Viet Nam from October, 1963, until September, 1964.

The citation read, in part, that Sgt. Weaver was being honored "for the performance of exceptional meritorious service in support of United States objectives in the counterinsurgency effort in the Republic of Vietnam."

He seemed to have a deep understanding of the Vietnamese people and their problems, and has definite opinions on how the situation should be handled.

As a military advisor to the Vietnamese, Sgt. Weaver first had to become accepted by these people.

"I was taken in as an honorary member of the tribe," he said, explaining that he had to go through an elaborate ritual ceremony and accept a special bracelet that helped to identify him as a friend of the Vietnamese.

"Viet Nam is 4,000 years old," he said, "and they have been a free nation only for the past few years. These people have always lived in an occupied country, and it just takes time for them to adjust to new conditions."

AN OBJECTIVE

One of the main objectives of the Americans, he pointed out, is to instill a sense of nationalism into the Vietnamese.

"We have to convince them that what they have is worth fighting for."

France was the last colonial occupier of Viet Nam (French Indo China), and according to Sgt. Weaver, the French influence is still very dominant in the country.

"All school classes are taught in French," he said, "and the different tribes have to use French to communicate with each other. The Vietnamese are just beginning to develop an alphabet and written language of their own."

"The cars drive on the right side of the road," he said, "but all other traffic signs and conditions are European, brought in by the French."

Vietnamese methods of fighting continue to remain under the French influence until they can be changed, he explained.

As an example, he cited the habit of fighting from a bunker or fixed position. "And you just can't fight guerrillas from a fixed position — you have to be mobile."

"We always teach by example," he continued. "For instance, if the VC (a term used by veterans to refer to the Viet Cong) raid and burn a village, we take the troops there. We explain that the VC who did this will not come to us, and that we have to go out after them.

"Then we go out, slogging through the rice paddies, to find and capture the guilty VC, teaching the Vietnamese one more lesson in this type of fighting."

CONFIDENCE VITAL

Sgt. Weaver stressed the point that advisors had to gain the confidence of the Vietnamese before they could accomplish anything.

"If someone comes in and starts ordering these people around," he said, "the Vietnamese just don't pay any attention to him."

Another example he gave of gaining acceptance by the Vietnamese was to eat with them. "You almost had to eat with them, if you wanted them to accept your advice."

Education is the primary need in Viet Nam, he said, explaining that just about all the country's problems stem from the fact that the majority of the people are not educated.

"Of course, Viet Nam has its educated people, as in Saigon," he said. "But you can go 70 miles from Saigon and find people who can't read or write and have no interest at all in ever learning."

"The French didn't want to educate the Vietnamese while they were there," he said. "Every important administrative post was filled by a Frenchman. When the Vietnamese drove the French out, they didn't have anyone who knew how to run the country."

He explained that the Vietnamese people had no concept of the principle of delegation of authority.

An advisor team, consisting of an officer and a non-commissioned officer, is assigned to a battalion, he explained. They usually worked together, but occasions arose when the officer was busy with one company and the NCO would take charge of another.

DIFFICULT UNDERSTANDING

"The Vietnamese couldn't understand us sending out a unit with just a sergeant in charge," he said, "until they learned that the sergeant knew what he was doing."

Another obstacle that had to be overcome by American advisors was the Vietnamese custom of requiring officers to justify all losses of men, Sgt. Weaver said.

Under the regime of Ngo Dinh Diem, he explained, an officer was held personally accountable for each man killed in any action, and was always concerned about being removed.

"We're trying to get away from this belief," he said. "You just can't expect to secure a piece of territory without losing some men. If you do, you may as well fold up your army and let them run over you."

Sgt. Weaver was an eyewitness to the coup that overthrew Diem, but said it took a few minutes for him to realize what was happening.

"I had only been in Veit Nam for about a month," he said. "We quickly became accustomed to seeing Vietnamese soldiers with their weapons, because they took them everywhere they went.

"So on this particular day, I wasn't surprised at seeing armed troops in the street. But when I started across the street, a Vietnamese soldier took me by the arm and directed me to a sheltered doorway.

"About that time the troops attacked the palace, and I stood in the doorway and watched the .50 caliber tracers going by.

"The Vietnamese were very careful that not one single American was hurt in the coup. The soldier personally saw to it that I was in that doorway and out of danger."

When asked about his retirement, Sgt. Weaver said that he believed that he had played the law of averages long enough. "I've been in three wars now, and I'm ready to get out."

He is not certain just exactly what he will do after his retirement from the Army. But he said he has a 400-acre parcel of land for deer and bird hunting and a small cabin cruiser which will soon be replaced by a larger craft, so he probably won't find life outside the Army too boring.

Fun, Peril On Ski Slopes

The atmosphere of the old style New England winter is gone, swept aside by the weekend ski hordes, complete with their own mystique. Many of them never go on the ski slopes, but find other forms of recreation at the resort centers.

By HUGH A MULLIGAN

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — After a winter of discontent unprecedented in four decades for its paltry precipitation, snow, snow, the beautiful snow, finally began falling on the ski slopes of Vermont.

It fell all night, and it fell all day, big, moist, blurry blotches that packed the trails with a fine feathery powder and emptied out the taverns down in the village and put the American instructors back on the payroll and sent the chair lifts and the T-bars clanging into action again and, in the dark, dreary, unskiable canyons of Manhattan, filled up the ski buses parked along Park Avenue with merry hordes of yodeling admen and their schussing secretaries.

SAW APPROACH

Ma Russell looked out the window of her boarding house, hard by the main highway, and saw the silvery dots slipping silently past the stand of birches into her back pasture. The bunk house would be full tonight, for the first time in weeks; full of those crazy, chattering, completely unpredictable college kids in the too-tight stretch pants and the colorfully knitted sweaters. Some of them would drink too much and eat too little and stay up half the night singing folk songs around the 70-year-old player piano in her slanty-floored parlor, and she'd have a dickens of a time getting them up for breakfast. Still, it was nice having them around the house again.

Doc Bryan, the local bone man, felt the flakes dissolving on his collar and knew that his two fracture rooms were in for a big weekend. The crossed ski pole and crutch inlaid in the linoleum of his waiting room testified to the volume of his practice. So, too, did the fork lift truck mechanism he had installed in his ambulance room to lift the stretcher cases onto the X-ray table.

WONDERFUL SNOW

Snow. Snow. Wonderful snow. It hissed down the chimney of Gil Gilchrist's round hearth, a ski dorm where 80 boys and 40 girls in adjoining dormitory rooms roughed it in Army-style double decker bunks and got on a chow line to put away herds of roast beef and, around the roaring blaze in his big circular fireplace, warmed their mittens and toasted their ski boots and dreamed of great conquests on and off the slopes.

"Has anyone ever told you you have the eyes like Penny Patou?"

Skiers have a line all their own, as obvious as an old rope tow but probably just as serviceable.

Snow. Snow. It swirled and sighed through the mountain passes and drifted thickly in the parking lot of the lodge at Smuggler's Notch, a bunk house so posh that the chef is from Paris and the maitre d' from Vienna, and the dining room is so haut monde that the girls buck the buffet line in jeweled evening slacks and the head waiter once sent one of the several U.S. senators named Kennedy back to his room for a necktie.

Over the hot buttered rum and the gluhwein in "The Den," the lodge's apres-skie spot, there already was gay talk of sliding down other hills, exciting continental name dropping that took the listener at jet set speed from Innsbruck to Garmish to St. Antun to Gstaad to Cortina, to Aspen and Shasta and the Suicide Six at Woodstock, and over the great haute route from Chamonix to Zermatt.

STATUS SPORT

For skiing, above all, is a status sport, and one cannot hope to shine at the fondue parties without having left his sitmark on the mountain ranges of several continents.

Snow. Snow. The absence of that abomination that makes cars skid and sidewalks slippery and city street cleaning budgets unmanageable already had cost the good burgers of Stowe, pop. 556, heavily during most of the season, but now all was white and right with the world again. Sepp Ruschp gazed contentedly out the big picture window of his office overlooking Mt. Mansfield and beheld a white impalpable world that never failed to thrill him.

Twenty-eight years ago he had come from Austria to teach skiing to the newly formed Mt. Mansfield Ski Club, an amateur group with a mountain in its back yard and no idea of how to go about negotiating it.

There was only one trail then, halfway up the mountain, and a creaky rope tow powered by an automobile engine mounted on logs. He had slept in an attic and made ends meet by coaching the ski teams at both Norwich College and the University of Vermont. Now he is president of the Mt. Mansfield Co., a huge complex that comprises two mountains, 29 slopes and trails, half a dozen lifts and tows, three ski schools with 90 instructors, and an assortment of ski shops, hotels, restaurants, tennis courts, a swimming pool and a golf course.

CHANGE TO FAME

The post-war explosion in American skiing changed Stowe from an impoverished farming community to a world famous ski center, but even that was a mere boomlet compared with the sport's fantastic growth in the last five years and its predicted growth in the next 10. This year Sepp's firm would spend two million dollars in improvements and still be hard pressed to keep pace with rival resorts.

Snow. Snow. Overnight, the town's population had jumped to 10,000 By chartered bus and car pool and private plane and long weary train they had streamed in, some traveling all night over storm-strewn highways just to be there for the weekend, some putting in for extended winter vacations at the first word of snow in Stowe.

The temperature stood at 5 above. A quick wind screamed across the slopes. No birds were on the wing; no cattle in the fields.

But to that singular indestructible species known as the American ski buff, it was the most glorious day in all creation.

What forces tear at his tortured psyche?

Kerr Sparks, who won a battlefield commission on skis with the 10th Mountain Division in Italy and now heads the ski school here, took a try at explaining the mystique of skiing. He found his text in the weekly trials of skiing's most smitten swain: the Madison Ave. adman who runs for the ski bus each Friday night and seeks, often successfully, to bury his frustrations in a snow bank.

BEAUTIFUL WORLD

"The esthetic value is there, all right," said Kerr, warming to his subject in the warmth of the warming shed. "All week long the guy has been beating his brains out. Comes Friday and he drives half the night to get here. Next morning he rides the lift with 1,400 other guys and all of a sudden he's transported to another world, a quite beautiful world. No matter what he did all week in the city, no matter what it cost him to come here and at what inconvenience, he finds himself alone on a mountain top in a wilderness of snowy woods and glistening frost hill. Here is the real reward of skiing, the challenge and the excitement and the solitude."

Something of the same feeling, some instinct just as primordial and esthetic, motivates thousands of college kids each season to give up their winter vacations and sometimes even drop out for a semester to wait tables, wash dishes, scrub floors, make beds and do all the other menial jobs that enable the resorts to operate for only a few weeks out of the year at prices that most skiers can afford.

FAST, PERILOUS

"When you're making a tricky run on a bitter day, it's like driving a Ferrari at a fantastic speed down a winding mountain road," exulted Susan Fairchild Hosley, a Bard College sophomore from New York City who works as a ski bum at a village night club called The Five Flies.

"Psychologically, it's very rewarding. At 90 miles an hour, you have a feeling of great power and freedom and control. You experience a closeness with nature and a new knowledge of yourself."

The thrill of skiing is closely linked to its dangers. Medical men now speak of skiing accidents as reaching epidemic proportions. Some phychologists go even further: they say the average skier not only expected to get hurt but wants to get hurt.

The figures speak for themselves. By the most conservative studies, it is estimated that 6 out of every 1,000 skiers on the slopes on a given day will be injured seriously enough, either by sprain or fracture, to be removed by the ski patrol.

Bob Cochrane, who runs the ski patrol for the Mountain Co. and who also served with the 10th Mountain Division, has seen some strange sights in heading down the trail with his toboggan and traction equipment.

WARMING UP around the big circular fireplace after coming off the ski slopes, young men and girls find it a good place to warm up acquaintanceships, at the Round Hearth ski dorm in Stowe, Vt. Prices are low here, sleeping is in crowded dorms, and the chow line is only one of the lines noticed as the skiers use their special lingo to try for attention off the slopes. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

A PERFECT DAY for skiing, but the form is considerably less than perfect in a beginners' class learning first steps under an instructor on Toll House Slope on Mt. Mansfield, Stowe, Vt. Some never will learn, some will join the sizable ski casualty list, some will go back to their offices after the weekend to seek status by ski-talk, however inaccurate. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

A 2nd Term For Governors

A Southwest Louisiana Legislator says he will introduce a proposed constitutional amendment in the Legislature to permit a Governor to succeed himself for a second four-year term — such succession now being barred by the State Constitution. By rather odd coincidence, at least one North Louisiana Legislator had made up his mind to take the same step and there have been reports that one or two others in this part of the state were toying with the same idea.

The principle involved in the idea is one that has had a lot of pro and con discussion back through quite a few decades, not only at the state level but at the federal level. At the federal level a constitutional amendment was approved by the states — after Mr. Roosevelt died — limiting any one President to two terms. But a lot of people wanted the constitutional amendment to provide only one term but to make it six years.

The question of gubernatorial succession was fought out in the 1921 Louisiana Constitutional Convention where the present Constitution was written and the decision was for a single term of four years.

Earl Long thought he could get around the 1921 provisions by resigning for the last few months of his 1956-1960 term and thus be eligible to become Governor again for a 1960-64 term. Most of the legal experts said he was wrong, but the Legislature later submitted a constitutional amendment, which the people approved, making it clear that a Governor could not become Governor in a term succeeding the one to which he had first been elected. There were some proposals during the Davis Administration for an amendment similar to the one now proposed, but they got nowhere.

When the Southwest Louisiana Legislator's proposal first became public, Governor McKeithen said that if the people passed such a constitutional amendment he might consider it a challenge to him to run again. Later he said he certainly was not giving any especial consideration to the proposal. It is well known that he had no part in its origin.

However, the question of gubernatorial succession has been given such an impetus in public discussion that the Public Affairs Research Council has launched an extensive study of the subject. The World — expressing no opinion on the matter at this time—publishes in adjoining columns a table showing the length of terms of Governors for the 50 states and also whether a Governor may succeed himself. The data was provided by Public Affairs Research Council from Book of States, 1962-63, 1964-65, and a fact sheet supplied by the Council of State Governments.

As the table shows, 35 of the 50 states permit their Governor to succeed himself. Seven of the 35 have a limit of two terms, but the other 28 have no limit on the number of terms one person may serve as Governor. Thirty-six states have four-year terms; the rest have two-year terms. Of the 36 with four-year terms, 15 do not permit succession. Delaware's limitation to two terms does not require that they be successive.

Whatever PAR may come up with, there can be no doubt that it will arouse interest throughout the state. As we understand it, the government study organization will go far beyond the mere compilation of data on length of terms and succession, and it will be some time before the results are ready for publication.

Our Zig-Zag Drivers

Have you ever stopped to think how many times you reverse the direction of the steering wheel of your car in one minute of driving? Tests by a new device called a "Drivometer" show that those who reverse the wheel most often are likely to be the worst drivers.

This writer recalls that he once rode to Shreveport in the rear seat of a car driven by a person who constantly turned the steering wheel one way and then the other. The backseat ride seemed to amount to 10,000 tiny whiplashes. It was worse than seasickness. Of course, the constant reversal of the steering wheel meant that the driver turned it too far every time and therefore immediately had to turn it back.

The "Drivometer" is an electromechanical device, fitted into the car's glove compartment, that monitors each function of the driving task on 10 mechanical counters. Basically, it records four driving functions: steering wheel reversals, accelerator reversals, speed changes and brake applications. It also records the total time of any given trip and the running time, specifically the time the car is in motion.

A person's steering wheel reversal usually may be considered as a measure of his concentration on the driving task. If ability to track the vehicle within the lanes is good, his wheel reversals per minute tend to be low. This basically means he is looking well ahead of the vehicle and anticipating situations well in advance. This results in fewer lane changes and erratic movements and hence in a lower reversal rate.

Accelerator reversals also tend to be low in better drivers. This is an indication of the driver's coordination and control of the vehicle. Here again, merging, keeping within the traffic flow, and anticipating advance conditions are important driving functions which accelerator reversals accurately show.

The "Drivometer" indicates a speed change when the speedometer registers a two and one-half mile per hour increase or decrease in the vehicle's speed. This is an indication of the driver's smoothness of motion.

Brake applications also give an indication of the driver's over-all control of the vehicle. In general, brake applications will tend to be lower in the better driver on any pre-set route.

The department of public safety in Kentucky is staffed by a group of people who not only are vitally interested in safe driving practices but who believe there is no better place to start than in their own department.

With a new group of 23 cadets approaching the road - testing phase of their training at the Kentucky State Police Academy, the stage was perfectly set for testing the "Drivometer" method.

In the tests, the cadets scored extremely well based on figures collected from groups run on similar courses in other parts of the country. Those showing under 25 steering wheel reversals in a minute were considered "good." The average of such reversals for the cadets was 16.4. Only two out of the entire class broke into the 20s, with the highest score being 22.

The Kentucky director of driver licensing described the trial program in this way:

"We in the field of public safety need to evaluate every method and tool available in this fight to prevent traffic accidents. The 'Drivometer' could well prove to be a very worthwhile tool, particularly in the area of driver improvement and driver education, to emphasize through practical application some of the better driving practices which should be used by every driver."

This seems to be one of the best methods for driver improvement that has been offered in a long time. It is practically useless to talk about "those other crazy drivers" unless some way of improvement is offered, and this appears to be such a way. Usually, those who are always talking about "those other crazy drivers" are the ones who are creating driving hazards. A really safe driver does not have many narrow escapes.

TOTALS: 35 of the 50 states permit a Governor to succeed himself; of the 35, seven have a limit of two terms but the other 28 do not limit the number of terms. Thirty-six states have 4-year terms; the rest have 2-year terms. Of the 36 with 4-year terms, 15 do not permit succession.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Weapons In Use In Viet Nam Old

LIKE THE GOOD soldiers they are, the casualties from the stepped-up fighting in Vietnam brought to Washington-area hospitals had no comments on the Vietnam situation. Except that one wounded sergeant very matter-of-factly told reporters, "We could use some newer weapons over there."

There is a world of commentary in that simple phrase. Under the terms of the 1954 Geneva agreement, which is supposed to govern the fighting in Vietnam, no weapons not in use at that time will be introduced into the area.

This agreement was supposed to stabilize the stiuation. It has not and, of course, cannot. The Communists do not abide by it any more than they do any other international agreement which does not serve their purpose. We have used the agreement as an excuse for not equipping the Vietnamese, or our own advisors, with modern aircraft. Yet we use advanced models of helicopters, far different from the ones available in 1954, and in our retaliatory raids we have used up-to-date jet aircraft.

Why then was our wounded sergeant able to say that the men who are taking the brunt of the attack, our foot soldiers, could use some newer weapons?

THIS SAME QUESTION was asked several times during the Presidential campaign. There was no official response and virtually no notice in the press.

One instance in particular stands out which should be brought up again as one of the important unanswered questions still shadowing the conduct of the war in Vietnam.

During the campaign, to back up questions about the use of this obsolete equipment, I released a list of military items which had been requested for use in Vietnam, but refused by the political leadership of the Pentagon or the White House.

Some or all of these items subsequently may have been shipped. It would be proper for the administration to reassure us on the point. We deserve, and certainly the front-line soldiers deserve, an explanation.

(One sidelight to this is that I can't recall any newspaper or reporter actually following up this question of obsolete weapons, even though it surely was one of the hotter news stories of the time.)

THE ITEMS LISTED ranged from rifles to radios. The rifle was the AR-15, of which we have a large inventory, but which were being refused the troops in Vietnam, it was reported, because Secretary McNamara said there were no funds available to ship them. We deserve to know if that attitude persists today. And why did it exist in the first place?

The radio being used was a VHF set known as the Angry-9. It is a line-of-sight instrument and not well suited for the Vietnam terrain. The troops had requested UHF sets instead.

The M-40 grenade, a cluster-type weapon considered better for Vietnamese conditions than the standard model, also had been requested and refused. Same with the XM-75, 40mm. auto-firing weapon; same with two models of armored command cars to replace the virtually unprotected M-119 personnel carriers we have been using.

There were persistent reports of shortages at that time of 20- and 100-pound fragmentation bombs — enough, in fact, to cause curtailment of some operations.

I pray it has all changed. The administration surely owes us a comment and a careful review of the policies and personnel that contributed to the situation in the first place.

BASE CLOSINGS STICK — Members of Congress who inquired at the Pentagon as to whether the Viet Nam military situation might halt some of the scheduled military closings were told that it would not. Secretary of Defense McNamara is firm in his belief that the base closings will not harm United States security and will make the Defense Department more efficient. Civilian employees in the Defense Department also will continue to be decreased, Pentagon sources said firmly. Army is scheduled to lose 11,000 such employees and the Navy and Air Force about 4,000 each in the next fiscal year.

RUSSELL'S ILLNESS — Advice that Senator Richard B. Russell, Georgia, will not be able to resume his duties for several weeks distresses both Democrats and Republicans. The Georgia Senator, second ranking Senate Democrat in seniority, is Chairman of the Armed Services Committee and second ranking member of the Appropriations Committee. He is regarded as the Senate's highest authority on military matters, its ablest parliamentarian and one of its best debaters. Russell entered Walter Reed Hospital on February 2 for treatment for bronchitis complicated by emphysema. A tracheotomy was performed, and surgeons say that his throat condition will not permit him to engage in Senate debate for several weeks at the earliest.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

Farm Editorial Challenged

Lake Providence, La.

To the Editor:

An editorial such as that one entitled "Johnson and Farmers" which appeared in your February 11 issue might well have been expected in The New York Times, but for it to come from a paper representing an agricultural area is, at least, surprising. I do not ordinarily write letters to the editor, but in this case the editorial is so full of misinformation and the implications are such that I do not feel that I can permit it to go unchallenged.

Commercial agriculture is one of the greatest industries of this country. It is the biggest consumer of steel and of many other products. Certainly, agriculture is the biggest industry and source of income in our section. All to often in recent years it has been implied, as it is in your article, that the people engaged in commercial agriculture are a few greedy people growing rich at the public expense; nothing could be more remote from the truth. Commercial size operations are not made up of one man or one family. They are made up of many people, varying of course, in number with size. What effects them effects the whole community, particularly in an economic way since the dollar volume generated in agriculture turns over approximately seven times. To infer that any farmer collects a subsidy and puts it in his pocket is most unfair and most untrue.

It is true that many of us would like to have less government regulation and control in agriculture and in other fields as well. However, we must face the fact that we are living within a controlled economy, virtually every segment of which is subsidized either directly or indirectly. Under these circumstances to say that commercial agriculture needs no protection is to fail to recognize the economic facts of life. Without some protection agriculture will collapse and the whole economic structure would soon follow.

If this country should ever return to a free economic system, which I doubt, I believe most farmers feel their chances would be as good as anyones and would welcome the opportunity. In the meantime we are doing all that we can to produce efficiently and at the least possible cost.

In order to illustrate some of what is going on in agriculture and to relate this to the general economic well being of the community, I shall write briefly about our major crop which is cotton. This past year we sold our cotton for a per pound price which was not quite two thirds of what we received a little over a decade ago. (I know of no other industry which is in this position). The only way we have been able to sustain this decline in unit price is through increased efficiency and greater yields. We took a reduction in the basic support price of approximately two and one half cents per pound in 1964 and this will be reduced by another cent per pound in 1965. Now, what does this mean to Louisiana and to the Monroe area? The reduction in gross value of the cotton crop (including cotton and cotton seed) from 1963 to 1964 in Louisiana was twenty five million dollars; of this amount eight million three hundred thousand was due to the reduction in unit price. Each additional one cent per pound reduction in price will entail a reduction in gross value of the Louisiana crop of approximately three million dollars. This is a loss not merely to one group but to the whole economy of the state. The Monroe trade area produces from fifty to sixty per cent of the states cotton so you can readily see how our section and its people are effected.

I did not write this letter in a spirit of animosity, but with the hope that it will be informative to you and to your readers.

Sylvia Porter On Aid

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

As a part - time citizen, but a full time taxpayer, I take umbrage at the column in Monday's edition by Sylvia Porter; and cite paragraph four and seven, as well as the last one.

This writer, like so many others, forgets that the one issue of paramount importance happens to be the right of the people. Many blare on about the Government, but in their colossal ignorance or carelessness, do it an injustice.

Lincoln, in his Gettysburg Address, used the expression "Of the people, by the people and for the people," words which have been used repeatedly to prove so many things, but which have been accented so wrongly, according to History: Because, his stress, due to the war and other conditions, was on the thrice used noun "People" and not, on the three prepositions. "Of, by and for". This puts a very different light on the meaning, although it goes unnoticed by many.

To deny paragraph four in the above mentioned article, the idea of "the federal government helping so heavily" is as wrong as can be - this Shylock in Washington, aided by vote hunting politicians, has usurped the regular course of the rights of communities, areas and states to govern their own affairs, in spite of the fact that the states were created first, then, by their agreement came the Federal Government.

In Paragraph seven she states "How significant federal funds have become" — I think a letter in the Sunday edition explains a lot of that - so does the late "election". Then, to sort of appease us, she states in the last paragraph, "Meanwhile, though, as you ponder your awsome state and local budgets and awful state and local taxes, take this comfort: were it not for the U. S. Government's help, it would be colossally worse." Isn't that a great comfort?

There have been four Governors of states who have done something about the situation, but have been subdued by the force of Federal Arms. The other heads of states have only played ostrich, buried their heads in the sand, and, in spite of being placed there to govern, have only played "footsy" with the thing, never showing enough backbone to fight.

We, the people are paying for all this federal intervention into our rights. Will it ever stop?

Right-To-Work Laws

Kelly, Louisiana

To the Editor:

In his State of the Union address, Lyndon Johnson promised the labor bosses he would try to carry out one of their greatest hopes; repeal of Section 14 b of the Taft-Hartley Act, a clause more commonly referred to as the right-to-work law. Under this clause, the separate states have been able to pass, if they wished, laws which made it illegal for unions to force individuals to join the unions against their desire.

The bosses of organized labor are in a huge campaign to pressure enough members of Congress into striking down these state laws. At the present, 19 states have a right-to-work law. They are Arizona, Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Texas, South Dakota North Dakota, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa. All these states have shown a growth in their industrial communities, which shows that business tends to go where they have the right to hire who they please. Note that Louisiana is the only state in the south that does not have a right-to-work law. There is much being said at the present about bringing industry into the state, yet it is doubtful very much if a business can be expected to leave a state where they have the freedom to run their business as they see fit and come into one where a handful of labor goons can tell them what to do. The State of Indiana just recently had her right-to-work law repealed and immediately companies within the state canceled plans they had made to expand their industries. Four companies alone which did this would have provided over 3,000 jobs for the people.

The labor lobbyists had cried that the right-to-work law was hurting the states workers. However, statistics show that during the six years the law was on the books organized labor itself made gains. The AFL-CIO gained nearly 27,000 members from 1958 to 1962. The hourly wage of Indiana factory workers rose from $2.31 in 1957 to $2.83 in 1964. Also unemployment dropped from 8.1 per cent in 1958 to 3.1 per cent. The national average is 4.5 per cent.

Yet the bosses of labor want the entire country placed under enforced unionism. And they have enough power to wage a hard fight for this move. They are over 17 million strong, have large treasuries from tax free sources and enjoy extra legal privileges denied to other organizations. There seems that there will have to be a big fight to keep organized labor from getting the power to shut down America.

Whatever happens to the bills already introduced in the House and Senate will be a giant step toward a total socialistic state or a win for one of the basic individual freedoms which this country is supposed to protect.

Red China Concessions

Metairie, La.

To the Editor:

Could our Congressmen possibly favor concessions to Red China?

During the past several years a "Committee of One Million" has been active, opposing all efforts to 1) Admit Red China to the United Nations, 2) Grant diplomatic recognition to the Peiping regime, 3) Open trade relations between the U. S. and Communist China, 4) Develop policies of accommodation which could be interpreted as approval of Communist China's aggression throughout Asia and Africa.

The Committee has published a Declaration in "Opposition to Any Concessions to Red China." 264 Congressmen signed this Declaration, which is not a "Rightist" document as will be charged by opponents. Such Liberals as Senators Douglas, Javits, Scott, Sparkman, Kuchel, Dodd, Smathers and Pastore signed the Declaration.

Among the signatures missing are Senator Russell Long; Reps. Boggs, Hebert, Willis, Thompson and Long.

Do these men represent their constituents or the Administration? We should write our Congressmen and ask them.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Huge Stockpile Sale Is Likely

IF THE HOUSE of Representatives follows the Senate in enacting legislation the United States Government soon will begin disposing of its huge stockpile of strategic material, which at the time of its purchase was considered critical to the national security.

The existing defense material national stockpile was acquired at a cost of $8,500,000,000. Only $3,300,000,000 worth of these materials are now needed to meet stockpile objectives, so $5,200,000,000 worth can be sold if purchasers can be found and caution is taken to prevent the disruption of the usual markets of producers, processors and consumers.

The stockpile is held at 158 sites across the nation, in warehouses, storage depots and military installations. It runs into millions of tons.

Some items in the stockpile date back to 1939 and the beginning of United States rearmament before World War II. The original purchasing was done by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and subsidiary defense agencies, headed by Jesse H. Jones.

MOSTLY JONES' agents purchased minerals, such as aluminum, cobalt, copper, mercury, titanium, tungsten and zinc. But defense needed and he bought huge quantities of such things as sperm and castor oil, quinine, synthetic rubies and hog bristles. Nearly 100 different items were gathered from nearly every part of the world.

In explaining the legislation to the Senate, Senator Stuart Symington, Democrat, Missouri, said it was intended to improve the management and administration of the Government's stockpile of material; and to facilitate orderly disposal of material that the Government does not need.

He made it quite plain the United States Treasury can use any money realized.

"Such disposal would, of course, help us with our steadily mounting deficit," he said.

UNDER THE BILL, the President would be empowered to make sales out of the reserve declared surplus 60 days after notifying Congress of his intention. If, during that period, the Armed Services Commitee of either House adopted a resolution of disapproval, the sale would be held up for 40 days more. It would be disallowed if either the Senate or House of Representatives adopted a disapproval resolution.

Actually there is not a single stockpile, but three separate stockpiles, each of which is controlled by a somewhat different law, and this, Symington explained, has unnecessarily complicated the management of these stockpiles, and disposal of material not needed for defense purposes.

Tiring Remarks

Ever think about remarks you hate to hear? Well, here are some the middle age woman gets tired of hearing according to Hal Boyle.

Oh, I don't think it's getting very gray. Someone across the room would hardly even notice it.

You need more than a husband, Grace, to help you get into that girdle. You need a crowbar.

You mean this is your husband? He looks so cute and boyish — for a moment I thought he was your son.

Quit worrying, honey. What if the boat does overturn? You'd float for three days — and in that time you'd be bound to be rescued.

I carried her over the threshold when we came back from our honeymoon, but I guess on our silver anniversary I'll have to rent a bulldozer.

Oh, is that you, Grace? You oughtn't to scare a fellow like that so early in the morning. Well, what are we having for breakfast.

Our Newspapermen

In a day's time, a newspaperman hears a lot of things — and he should. Included in that are criticism. This, too, is good. But there's one complaint that can make the blood pressure rise, but fast.

That's a question that goes something like this: Why do you print only the bad things? Why do you print all that stuff our elected officials say, or the arguments they have? Don't you know it hurts our community?

In the first place, newspapers don't make news — they only print it. Newspapers don't force elected officials to stage arguments and make wrong decisions; they don't force them to get into near fights and fiery disputes. It is not the fault of newspapers if these officials can't conduct the business of the community as gentlemen and in a business like manner.

Besides, if what they do is hurting the community and its image and we don't doubt but what it does in some cases, it's not the fault of the newspapers.

If enough people don't like the way their officials conduct themselves or the community business, there's one way of controlling it . . . but quick. But this can be done only by the people.

It is not the place of the newspaper to cover up. This is what the politician who engages in such practices wants, and it's the very words he uses in trying to suppress coverage of his activities. Any newspaper worth its name or which commands the respect of its readers and which provides progressive community leadership will print all the news impartially.

In this connection, it was interesting to note the Chicago Daily News' reply to Chief Justice Earl Warren who complained that the press is negative, concentrating on bad news.

The News said editorially:

"Justice Warren, sharing certain human qualities with the rest of us, tends to glide over the good news that most editors conscientiously strive to give fitting play. This essential humanity makes the senses vibrate to exciting news, which tends to involve trouble more than the absence of it. Editors are a lot of things, hopefully including leaders. But basically they are identifiers of news — that is to say, those happenings that are likely to strike people as interesting.

"There are publications that specialize in offering only such happenings as are uplifting and good for the soul, but they are not newspapers, and in general they have the character of oatmeal. A conscientious newspaper reflects life and truth and excitement generated by the pell-mell flow of ideas and events. There are sinners and sensationalists, in the nation's editorial ranks, as there are good and bad justices and many shades between. In general, we think the public benefits from the fact that editors are not running the courts, and that judges and justices are not running newspapers."

So the chances are when you hear someone criticizing a newspaper for printing the news there is something about him or a friend he didn't like. And most often in such cases it's no one's fault but the person involved.

High Rotation

It is old stuff to put up a high building with a revolving restaurant on the top floor. But now a San Diego architect is proposing a complex of high-rise apartment houses that will themselves rotate. The idea is to give the tenants a constantly changing point of view, from the ocean and bay on the west and the mountains to the east.

The idea sounds great. But who decides which apartments will enjoy the sunsets over the Pacific at cocktail time? Maybe with a building that revolves, you don't need cocktails.

Forget Things

Always remember to forget
The things that made you sad,
But never forget to remember
The things that made you glad.

Stop To Think

Did you ever stop to think that among the most powerful men in Washington today are two from Louisiana? They are Senator Russell B. Long, the Senate Whip, and Rep. Hale Boggs, House whip. Both jobs carry tremendous power as well as responsibility.

How About This

Freedom of speech, we are told and read, is guaranteed for all Americans by the Constitution. But in late years we are learning that it is subject to curious interpretations. About the worst we've seen, however, is one by the National Labor Relations Boards and the courts.

The Danile Construction Company of South Carolina, for example, was held in violation of fair labor practices for telling employes why the company opposed unionization. The NLRB ruling was upheld, 2 to 1, by the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Albert V. Bryan said in the dissenting opinion that "the condemned department of the employer consists of free speech," and added: "We have indeed come to a servile economic state when it is unlawful for an employer to explain to his employes his reasons for opposing a union." As far as the NLRB is concerned, the action against freedom of speech for employers is bad also.

In another example, the Labor Relations decision in the Reilly Tar and Chemical case held that it was unfair labor practice for a father who is also a supervisor to advise his son, an employe, to leave the union and hunt for another job. If an employer may not present his opinions to an employe and a father may not give advice to his son, how much more mockery of the freedom of speech can there be?

It seems by now people should be immune to some of the most unthinkable decisions handed down these days — but some still have the power to shock.

Odds And Ends

Many ideas and questions about different things turn up in the mail. Here are a few:

THREE OUT OF four shoplifters are women. Pocket picking, however, still is a crime in which the masculine touch prevails.

BUSINESSMEN might write fewer memos if they knew that each carbon copy costs their firm about $1.25.

INSURANCE in the average U.S. family totals $16,500, most of it on the husband. But six out of 10 wives are now insured, and about half the nation's children.

ONE OF EVERY three dollars the American motorist pays for gasoline is eaten up by federal, state and local taxes.

QUOTABLE NOTABLES: "Growing old is no more than a bad habit which a busy man has no time to form"—Andrew Maurois.

HOUSEHOLD HINT: To keep candy and cake from growing stale, simply put them in reach of guests on diets.

ALTHOUGH Smith is the most common family name in America, no Smiths have ever been elected to the U.S. vice presidency. On the other hand, three Johnsons became veeps, and two of them — Andrew and Lyndon Baines — succeeded to the White House. The third, Richard Mentor Johnson, was vice president under Martin Van Buren.

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Education Cash Target Of Suit

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Congress having established by its Civil Rights Act of 1964 that sociological change can be legislated, the stage was set last week to see if it can be adjudicated.

Louisiana education is the target, specifically the purse strings. Faced with the forfeiture of federal financial assistance, local officials were placed under threat of losing state funds as well.

TYLER

In a new legal move by the NAACP, federal court in Baton Rouge was asked to enjoin the distribution of funds to segregated school systems.

The suit, filed Tuesday by New Orleans attorney A. P. Tureaud, would apply the stricture to the Louisiana Board of Education, headed by Monroe's W. E. Whetstone.

That official has called a meeting of the board for March 1 - 2 to grapple with the problem of the federal compliance demand, which to insure uninterrupted funds must be met by March 3.

Of course, whatever the state group's decision, there remained a local option apparently for non - compliance, with the attendant monetary and other penalties. The legal action therefore appeared to put a whole new face on things.

Whetstone declined comment on the development, beyond a statement it wouldn't effect his scheduled, once - postponed meeting.

The mood of a Fifth District Superintendent's Association Superintendts' Association meeting in Monroe Tuesday also was non - commital on the compliance controversy.

There were firmer developments elsewhere in the week's news, however.

IN WEST MONROE

Activity was hot and heavy in West Monroe, with the emphasis on "hot," as the city's aldermen met in special adjourned session Tuesday afternoon. Announced purpose was to conduct a hearing on the proposed lease of a little strip of river land over the levee from Highland Park Country Club, but it was a later reconsideration of bidding on a utilities building complex that produced the sparks.

Bids on the project (an office building, shop and two parking shelters), opened the previous Tuesday ran from $15,000 to $30,000 above the $50,000 range city officials had said they expected.

In a nutshell, aldermen decided Tuesday to readvertise, but not before sharp division of opinion on a labor - related means of trimming costs and a blistering confrontation between one of the aldermen and a local contractor.

The contractor, Harry Carpenter, was present to point out that he was low bidder (considering the deduction of the one of the project's alternates) and negotiation to reduce the price should have been with him. The aldermen had decided to negotiate both with Carpenter and with Coleman Construction Company, the low base bidder.

Carpenter said Alderman Charles Anding had told the project architect not to negotiate with him, in essence becase he (Carpenter) "did not agree with his (Anding's) union principles." The alderman is a union official.

Anding responded, in plain terms, with a categorical denial that he had told the architect to do anything, further suggesting that if he'd wish to "cut out" Carpenter he would have moved to deal only with the low base bidder.

The debate ended in no decision, but labor was injected into the discussion yet again later when Alderman George Wylie asked the removal from the project specifications of a requirement stipulating predetermined wage scales. He said striking the rquirement would save money and, indeed, Carpenter's bid the preceding week had indicated a $1,500 reduction would be possible.

Vote on the removal, temporarily, was 2-2, with A. L. DeLoach Jr. joining Wylie, opposed to Anding and Earl Duncan. Anding insisted that such wage freedom would wind up with the job going to "a Texas contractor, bringing his men here with him." DeLoach changed his vote, preventing Mayor J. Allan Norris, understood to favor elimination of the provision, from casting the deciding ballot.

Labor came to the fore later the same day when the Ouachita Parish School Board met in regular session. One of the highlights was an architect's report on Ouachita Parish Junior High School on Nutland School, the construction of which was interrupted in January, 1963, by strikes.

The architect, Herbert Land Jr., described "defective" and "uncompleted" work at the school, including "leaky heating pipes, poorly-done electrical work," debris under the building and standing water. The parish system's maintenance supervisor, Harry Wheelis, entered the discussion to provide samples.

Land attributed the electrical problems "almost 100 per cent" to the strike, which, he said, compelled the contractor, W. C. Salley and subcontractors to turn to non-union labor. Electrical work at the school was listed as about 75 per cent completed, the heating and plumbing, from 90 to 95 per cent completed.

The architect said work "is going slow," though it could be finished "in possibly 30 days." Twenty-four catch basins dug around the school will be grated and retained for access underneath the building. Costing about $3,000 to $3,500, they have been provided at school board expense, Wheelis said.

Officials will meet, probably this week, with Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter, the board's legal advisor, to prepare a checklist of needed work at the school, it was decided. A contractor's guarantee to perform it then will be sought. The one-year public building repair liability on the school expires in May, the school having been accepted in May, 1964.

TO WIT

Other news of the week sprang from topic to topic with a jolting suddenness not unlike that to be found in your favorite column. To wit:

ITEM — There were interesting developments within the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council. Announced Wednesday were the resignations of two district executives and the appointment of a new executive for the council's eastern parts.

Resigning were Central District Executive Jason Johnson, of Monroe, in scouting over four years, and Jim Shell, of Winnsboro, a three year veteran. Both resigned, effective March 5, to seek more remunerative posts, Council Executive Jack E. Pankey said.

The new man, replacing Gene Hagan, formerly of Delhi, in the council's Northern-Eastern District is Sterlington's Ervin Bates, 23, a recent sociology graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College. Bates is due to leave Monday for Mendham, N.J., to attend a six-week national training school.

Hagan left the council, effective Jan. 1, to take a job with the Andrew Jackson Council, centered at Jackson, Miss. Under consideration are five prospects for the Johnson - Shell posts, with at least one "looking good." Apparently, therefore, there will be some new faces on the trail this summer, capable tenderfeet, as a couple of seasoned hands and boons to scouting, "Jase" and Jim, move on, we trust, to greener pastures.

ITEM — Readers in the Lamy Lane area of Monroe, if they're hearing anything extraordinary these nights, can be assured it's "The Sound of Music." That's the name of the Monroe Little Theatre's musical for the season, which opened Friday night and will offer performances at 8:15 each p.m. through next Saturday. For the early birds, there'll also be a 2:30 p.m. matinee Sunday the 28th.

The local version of the long-running Mary Martin starrer which played 1,442 performances on Broadway, it presents Camille Wood and Bill Blythe in the leads, backed by Charlotte Turpin and V. P. Dalrymple in other heavy parts. The Rodgers and Hammerstein spectacular is based on the adventuresome life of the singing Von Trapp family of Austria, whoever they were.

The World In Focus
Coup Stirs Cooling Crisis

By John Cale

Bulletin

FOLLOWING A WEEK of obvious crisis in Southeast Asia, the past week opened with the expected charges and countercharges from Moscow, Peking and Washington. A late bulletin Friday brought the only possibility of a new wrinkle.

By mid-week, the communist camp had apparently discharged its duties of saying in effect that the United States had no right to support South Vietnam through bombing raids on North Vietnamese cities and installations.

President Johnson, with bi-partisan political support as well as that of people generally, only repeated what he had said prior to the air raids — that we would counter major Viet Cong guerrilla thrusts with more attacks.

This is the same sort of tension that heightened and diminished following last August's incident regarding the Red PT boat attacks in the Gulf of Tonkin and subsequent air attacks by U.S. planes.

AS THE WEEK drew to a close, it appeared that Moscow and Peking had threatened to end the same "world peace" that both accused Washington of disturbing. U.S. officials had also explained again why they considered it necessary to offer advice and assistance to South Vietnam. It was also made clear that the communist forces were the aggressors in the area by the geographical fact that virtually all of the warfare was taking place in the southern non-communist portion of the divided country.

Another Coup

THEN ON FRIDAY, an incident occurred that threatened to burn through the diplomatic stalemate. The wire service bulletin from Tokyo read simply:

"Pan American Airways said Friday that Saigon Airport was ordered closed an hour ago and all flights were being diverted.

"Another source said tanks had been spotted on the field."

THE FOLLOW-UP stories revealed that troops under the command of a rebellious army colonel had seized Saigon and arrested Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, South Viet Nam's military strongman.

A rebel broadcast said Khanh would be tried on charges of "endangering national security and plotting for a neutralist policy."

The lightning coup was apparently carried off without bloodshed.

Its leader, Col. Phan Ngoc Thao, claimed the full backing of the armed forces. In a radio broadcast Thao announced he was acting in favor of Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, who is serving as the Vietnamese ambassador to the United States in Washington.

THE U.S. EMBASSY here issued a statement saying that the coup was apparently not aimed at overthrowing the three-day-old government of Premier Phan Huy Quat.

Within the short space of 24 hours, military forces loyal to Gen. Khanh had resumed control of the government in a counter-coup. Apparently, conditions in South Vietnam would continue along their uncertain path.

Placing The Blame

IN SPITE OF last week's stoning of the American Embassy in Moscow in the wake of U.S. and South Vietnamese aid strikes in North Vietnam, policymakers in this country persisted in aiming their official barbs at Red China.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert S. McNamara, in a global policy review, pinpointed Red China as the United States' chief adversary at the present time.

But he said that China's military capability is still "severely handicapped" by lack of Soviet aid and that, unless Russia changes her policy, it is "doubtful" Red China would "deliberately initiate any major overt aggression."

IN A 207-page annual report submitted to the House Armed Service Committee Thursday, a document which delved deeply into world politics as well as military affairs, McNamara expressed cautious hope of continued improved relations with Russia.

BUT HE pinpointed Communist China as a country whose "implacable animosity" and militant revolutionary doctrine confronts the United States at many points in Asia and, to a lesser extent, in Africa.

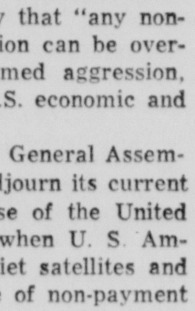
McNamara said the Vietnamese war is as "a decisive test" of what he described as Red China's theory that "any non-communist government of an emerging nation can be overthrown by externally supported, covert armed aggression, even when that government is backed by U.S. economic and military assistance."

THE WORLD'S non-voting body, the U. N. General Assembly, agreed by a "procedural roll call" to adjourn its current session until September 1. The larger house of the United Nations has not voted since December 1—when U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson charged that Soviet satellites and France had lost their voting rights because of non-payment of the organization's peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Middle East.

Shouting, interrupting speakers, and seizing the speaker's stand, Albanian Ambassador Halim Budo beat back parliamentary maneuvers and made the assembly take the vote it has avoided.

The United States had vowed that the first voting would call into question the right of Russia, France, and 11 other nations to vote, because they owe more than two years' U. N. payments.

BUT AMBASSADOR Stevenson told the assembly the United States considered last Thursday's vote only a procedural one "and feels that such a vote should not prejudice" any nation's voting rights.



Stevenson

He said he acted to preserve the delicate agreement to recess the assembly for several weeks and solve the financial deadlock through negotiations.

"So that the overwhelming majority may not be frustrated by one member, and so it can complete its work on a consensus basis, the United States will raise no objection to the procedural vote," he said.

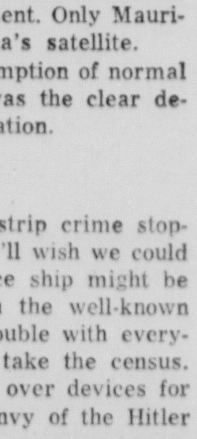
THE SOVIET UNION joined the United States and the vast majority of the assembly in voting down Albania's motion, 93 to 2 with 13 abstentions and 3 nations absent. Only Mauritania voted with Albania, Communist China's satellite.

THE ALBANIAN motion was for the resumption of normal business, including voting. But behind it was the clear desire to bring about the East-West confrontation.

Big Brother

SOMETIMES IT LOOKS like the comic strip crime stopper, Dick Tracy, has brought us gadgets we'll wish we could bury before they bury us. That lunar space ship might be okay. But the peanut-sized transmitter on the well-known two-way wrist radio could get us all in trouble with everyone from the revenuers to the folks who take the census.

A Senate subcommittee last week looked over devices for eavesdropping that would have been the envy of the Hitler Geheimstaatspolizei (secret federal police), which still strikes a higher degree of terror when called by its shortened name, "Gestapo."



'Bugged'

THERE WERE NO transistors back in those days, and the nazi and communist agents terrified hotel guests and diplomats by "bugging" rooms with big microphones tucked away in lampshades and chandeliers.

What now? Well, the old idea of a "pocket radio" — these used to call for several yards of outside antenna and ear-phones larger than the set — has become a reality. And those who would hear all can tuck a transmitter away in a coat sleeve or even a cocktail glass.

TO US, THE glass is particularly dangerous — or valuable, depending on which side you're on — because cocktail party-goers balance these at a position where utterances can be picked up from mouth, throat or chest vibrations. It would also, we presume, transmit some juicy chit-chat from a two or three-way forum of guests disarmed by the contents of the goblets.

WE PREDICT they'll be jokingly referred to as "crystal sets" before long. And we'll all toast "Big Brother" and have only kind words to say about the U. S. Weather Bureau when the conversation — if any — finds its way to that risky subject.

Appeasement

THERE'S A LESSON to be learned from West Germany's present awkward position in the Middle East. Since this incident has to do with the present Bonn government caught in between Egypt and Israel, it might demonstrate to certain larger powers the futility of trying to be a good fellow to blood enemies.

In order to make a start in the direction of what someday might be workable relations between Germany and Israel, former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer negotiated an armaments sale program. The deal was sanctioned by the United States, our government furnishing some of the heavier hardware. Present Chancellor Ludwig Erhard continued the terms of the arrangement until several weeks ago.

Then the burning question of German unity entered the picture when Nasser invited Walter Ulbricht of communist East Germany to visit Cairo this month. In the past, the Bonn government has withdrawn recognition from any government that bestowed diplomatic relations upon the East German regime.

SO REPRESENTATIVES of the West German government met with Nasser and tried to find a lever which would pull the welcome mat from under Ulbricht. Apparently, someone in Nasser's group mentioned the arms deal with Israel, and the West German diplomats agreed to call a halt in shipments.

As always, the approach by way of appeasement backfired, this time, in Erhard's face. Israel refused a West German cash offer instead of some 20 per cent of the arms agreed upon that are still undelivered. The Israeli government also recalled the dismal past regarding German-Jewish relations.

And as for Nasser, Egypt and the United Arab Republic, all of these will probably carry out the red-carpet welcome slated for Comrad Ulbricht anyway.

THIS SITUATION would requlre more maneuvering than the late "Desert Fox" Rommel could execute to save West Germany's face on the shifting sands of North Africa and the Middle East. We hope that government was not acting on the advice of the U.S. State Department.

IN WASHINGTON, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and President Johnson met with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in a conference dealing with conflicting views of Asian problems.

De Murville

The White House meeting also was expected to touch on other major areas where France and the United States do not see eye to eye. But both sides agreed that the principal interest would focus on the Viet Nam crisis.

FRENCH PRESIDENT Charles de Gaulle is said to view the Viet Nam crisis as an "accident" in a much broader framework of evolutionary developments between Red China and the West, which he does not believe the United States fully understands.

The French leader is urging early international negotiations to "neutralize" Viet Nam as a step toward what he believes can be eventually a broad understanding with Peking.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is becoming more deeply committed to the defense of South Viet Nam against communism and, publicly, at least, rejects any idea of negotiations under present circumstances.

But there is administration interest in maintaining the link through Paris to Peking for possible use if conditions warrant.

'Global Peace'

MANY ARE INCLINED to express wonder these days over the differences of opinion and definition between today's theologians and the prophets of antiquity.

The figures of the Old Testament gave their accounts in varying fashions — sometimes advising military action, sometimes not. But not one of them had a kind word for neighboring, hostile people who denied God.

New York's Hilton Hotel last week was the scene of a global peace conference. Speakers included Robert Hutchins, president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions that sponsored the event; Nobel Prize-winning physicist, Linus Pauling, and Paul Tillich, professor of theology at the University of Chicago.

Hutchins

The theme of the conference was the preservation of world peace, announced as having been inspired by the late Pope John XXIII's encyclical, Peace on Earth.

NO ONE OBJECTS to peace. But many object to the practice of those who continue to define the diplomatic and limited military tug-of-war between communism and the free world as a condition of "peace."

The only resolution in this case would be for the free world to turn its back on the aggressors, a gesture which has proven fatal by all we have learned and experienced. Can we really continue to call for the preservation of peace when there is no true peace to preserve?

Domestic Note

ALSO IN NEW York more than 300 Negro school pupils, mentally retarded youngsters among them, rampaged through Brooklyn streets for a second day last Thursday, but police on horseback averted renewal of full scale racial rioting.

As the violent demonstration raged, Board of Education President James B. Donovan denounced what he called "irresponsible leaders" of a partial school boycott. He said the children were being "used shamelessly as pawns."

The youths — subteens or early teen-agers — broke through police barricades and charged St. John's University.

HOWEVER, THE MOUNTED police herded the demonstrators along so rapidly that the momentum carried them several blocks past the university and into busy Fulton street, crowded with midday shoppers.

The youths smashed three store windows before police broke up the mob. There were no injuries.

The boycott began Jan. 19 under the direction of the Rev. Milton Galamison, chairman of a city-wide committee for desegregated schools. It eventually affected about 5,500 students from 26 schools.

The Lighter Touch

THERE WAS A TIME when the American Indian considered the western movie set his last preserve. But now he says the make-up man can give anybody a "red skin."

The Los Angeles Indian Center called a news conference during the week to complain that Caucasians and "foreigners of Mexican and African descent" are running the American Indian out of filmdom.

MARCHING ON parade, cadets at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., may be thinking of Viet Nam. They are being trained for guerrilla wars, and told to expect more. Their reactions vary from idealism to a feeling of challenge in working with foreign troops, to an acceptance of such assignments as an "occupational hazard." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Viet Nam Conflict Felt In Many Ways: Even To Military Academy

By HUBERT J. ERB

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) —The valor — the war — of Viet Nam echoes and re-echoes high above the Hudson in the long roll of a funeral drum. The conflict in far off Southeast Asia also is felt in many more ways.

Of the more than 275 Americans killed so far in action in Viet Nam, 19 were West Point graduates — 16 in the Army, 3 in the Air Force. A twentieth, also of the Army, was killed but not as a result of enemy action.

For 10 of the dead, funeral services with full military honors rang out across the Plain on the bluff overlooking the Hudson River that is West Point. Nine of those killed in Viet Nam are buried here where they entered into the long, gray Army line.

RECENTLY RETURNED

Most recently returned to West Point was the bullet-riddled body of 1st Lt. William T. (Tommy) Reach, class of '62. He was killed 10 miles from Saigon when Communist Viet Cong overran the 100-man South Vietnamese government unit he was attached to as an adviser.

Academy officials are quick to point out that the possibility of dying is a risk every military man faces.

"We do not want anyone to think West Point is being martyred in this situation," a spokesman declared.

But there is more to it than the casualties. And although academy officials on the highest levels say "Viet Nam does not present any insoluble problems," everyone concerned acknowledges that the guerrilla war has had a widespread effect on the Army, the academy, its cadets, and on their training program.

"In their last year here, the tactics the cadets study revolve around counterinsurgency," an instructor said.

One first classman senior added, "In the four years we've been here, we've gotten more and more counterinsurgency, and now it's the big item."

QUESTION POSED

But is the young West Point graduate, though admittedly the cream of the crop, ready to handle the infinitely complicated job of being an adviser to a foreign army in a war where he is denied command, where he is ordered not to fight?

"There is no doubt in my mind," a veteran officer said, "that preparation at the academy is adequate. The academy banks on the professional officer learnings his technical skills after he leaves West Point. All we can do here is open their minds and expose them to what they may face."

How do the cadets feel about Viet Nam?

"Serving in Viet Nam or any other area is the same," one cadet said. "The United States has determined it is necessary. It is up to the Army to do it."

Another cadet declared, "If Viet Nam comes for me, I'd be glad to go. It is more of a challenge to be working with foreign troops. It's a test of the individual and what he has been trained to do."

Another cadet took a slightly different tact. "I can't agree with all this idealism," he said. "I consider it (Viet Nam) more of an occupational hazard. Some regard duty there as a means of improving their careers. It's more a part of your job than it is a fight for your ideals.

"One of the things that makes military life appealing is that there are always going to be challenges."

A senior instructor charged with exposing cadets to the realities of guerrilla warfare emphasized that no cadet goes to Viet Nam without at least two years troop duty and further schooling.

But he admitted that he himself — after long service that included paratroop and Ranger training and special forces experience — found that Viet Nam duty was different from what he had expected.

DIFFERENT KIND

To start with, he said, "I had to put my life in the hands of God and my Vietnamese counterpart. This is a different kind of war. You're not really an adviser, either. You're a guy showing that you can take it so that later on you can tell the Vietnamese that the next time maybe they can do this or that differently.

"Duty in Viet Nam demands a new kind of courage than that you've been trained for."

There is no doubt that the top academy leadership relies heavily on the principle of dedication to duty — come what may — in preparing the cadet for a lifetime career of bearing arms.

"We like to think," one high level source said, "that the average cadet takes away from here a dedicated purpose to serve whenever Uncle Sam wants him to serve.

"And although the Viet Nam type situation may be with the Army for a long time, it is just one more chapter in the long history of our arms. And in that history, there are chapters — if you go back to the Indian wars—where situations similar to that in Viet Nam have occurred."

That's the Army side.

But there is also the related civilian side, more isolated and lonely time of a non - war that kills husbands, fathers, sons and brothers.

Tommy Reach was prepared the best the academy knew how. After commissioning as a second lieutenant, he was given paratroop training, artillery schooling, troop duty, and special courses for Viet Nam.

Born in Waycross, Ga., Reach married a Yonkers, N.Y., girl he met at West Point. They were married shortly after he was graduated in the top third of his class. He was killed Jan. 9, 1965. On March 20 he would have been 25.

The young officer arrived in Viet Nam last Sept. 28, two years and about 3½ months after he left West Point.

The telegram that announced his death was delivered at 5 a.m. on Monday, Jan. 11.

NINE DAYS AFTER he was killed in Viet Nam, 24-year-old Lt. William T. (Tommy) Reach is carried to his last formation from the Old Cadet Chapel at West Point, N. Y. His widow, Rosemary, mother of his 18-month-old son, is flanked by two U.S. Military Academy officers. Burial was in the cemetery at West Point. Reach was one of 17 West Point graduates killed thus far in Viet Nam. For 10 of them, funeral services with full military honors have been held at West Point. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Freshman On The Hill

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — For exactly half his life, Andy Jacobs, Jr., had dreamed of becoming a congressman.

"Ever since I was 16," he said earnestly, "when I came here to see my dad sworn in, I've never had any interest in any other position."

He campaigned long and tenaciously and last November won a victory so narrow it wasn't assured until the absentee ballots were counted. And when the 89th Congress convened last month he was eager to savor the invigorating aroma of political success.

Jacobs didn't complain, but his great moment must have been a letdown. With the House so crowded he couldn't find a seat, he stood inconspicuously at the rear, his back to the wall, raised his right hand and was sworn in with the rest.

Along with 434 other House members, and 100 senators, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., D-Ind., was entitled to the privileges and frustrations of that venerable, admirable, perplexing, laughable, indolent, hard-working institution — the U.S. Congress.

Beginning his career at the back of the House was both appropriate and symbolic.

PRAISED, IGNORED

Nowhere is the youth of America so fondly praised and so thoroughly ignored as in Congress.

If Jacobs wants to become a power, he must wait and wait and wait until seniority runs its inexorable course. Twenty-five years from now, if congressmen die, become discouraged or are defeated on schedule, and Jacobs is still there, he might be chairman.

If he should decide to try for the Senate, and should he be successful, the picture could be brighter but not necessarily dazzling.

Power accumulates slowly there, too, although the smaller enrollment and less stringent rules give individual senators more chance to make a name for themselves.

No politician is daunted by this prospect. Eight new senators and 91 new House members showed up for this Congress, an unusually large starting class. Congress is so large and its machinery so complex that it defies easy comprehension.

It's much simpler to criticize or laugh at Congress, and this has been going on ever since the nation was formed.

"The business of Congress is dullness, flatness and insipidity itself." So wrote John Adams to his wife, Abigail, in 1794, when Congress was fresh and new.

Two years later Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut wrote:

"Never was there a public body which deserved less the public confidence, who were more ignorant, vain and incompetent than the majority of the present House of Representatives."

By 1836 Sen. Henry Clay was looking back nostalgically to those good old days. "The Senate," Clay cried, "is no longer a place for a decent man."

This year, on the first day of Congress, Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., put the results of a Columbia University study in the Congressional Record. The Columbia scholars had found 18 areas for improvement.

The House began by voting three changes in its rules, and, although the excitement over this bit of daring was intense, they scarcely touched the major complaints.

HEAVY ON TALK

Senators spent more time in their opening week talking about how they should go about their business than they did going about their business.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., called for a complete overhaul.

"Certainly the American people expect the Congress to improve its performance," he said. "We are literally attempting to run a business 10 times as large as A.T.&T., the Santa Fe Railroad, and General Motors combined, with machinery as obsolete as a quill pen, slanting bookkeeper's desk and an old-fashioned high stool."

From John Adams to Mike Monroney, the verdict has been the same: There must be a better way.

And yet a nagging suspicion survives: If there is, how come it has been kept a secret for 176 years?

Such doubts don't bother Andy Jacobs. At least, not yet. He is too filled with wonder—"I can't believe it's true" — and too busy. Yet even now he can see why Congress doesn't function spectacularly.

HIS QUICK smile, sign of the political extrovert, shows as freshman Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr. (D-Ind.,) talks with his parents in his office in Washington. The younger Jacobs had wanted to be a Congressman ever since watching his father sworn in 16 years ago as representative from the same Indianapolis district. He served only one term. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Textbooks say a congressman's job is to pass laws, but the authors might be surprised at how little time he has for lawmaking. The constituent is king, the king is engrossed in his own problems, and the congressman had better never forget it.

Some House members estimate they spend 90 per cent of their time running errands, some incredibly trivial, for constituents.

Jacobs is well aware of this fact of political life.

When he moved into his office between 500 and 1000 letters were waiting for Jacobs.

Many of these matters could be handled far more promptly if the constituent wrote directly to the agency involved.

EASILY CONFUSED

But taxpayers are easily confused by the enormity of the federal government, and although a congressman may wail that his days are consumed in niggling details, there's no better way to build voter goodwill.

Some new congressmen hire assistants who are experienced on Capitol Hill, and this has become a profession in itself, with the experts switching loyalties as casually as advertising agencies switch clients.

But Jacobs thinks experience in Indiana is more important. All six of his employes here, and the two minding his office back in Indianapolis, where his district is situated, are Hoosiers. They are abysmally ignorant of the federal giant, and cheerfully admit it.

If you investigate a politician, from Lyndon B. Johnson down, you often find that politics was the main dish in his early life.

"I CAN'T BELIEVE it's true," says 32-year-old Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., of Indianapolis (D-Ind.,) serving his first term in Congress. Here he walks in the Capitol in Washington. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Pipe-smoking, rumpled, opinionated Andy Jacobs, Sr., served but one term — two years — in Congress, and didn't care much for that. But his interest in politics was, and is, intense.

Andy is his only son.

After serving with the Marines in Korea, and graduating from Indiana University law school, "I began to practice politics, as my father says, and dabble in law."

He was elected to the Indiana House of Representatives in 1958, lost his try for state senator in 1960, lost his bid for Congress in 1962, and finally won, but barely, in 1964.

He quit practicing law in 1964 to devote full time to running for Congress. "If I had a wife and kids," he says, "I couldn't have done it."

One of his new employes was Kathryn Louise Welsh, daughter of former Gov. Matthew Welsh of Indiana. Kay had scarcely arrived in Washington before the congressman had proposed and was accepted. They will be married in Indianapolis in May.

Long before a congressman is on the payroll he learns about seniority. Those here longest get first pick of offices; newcomers draw lots for what are left. Jacobs drew 65th among the freshmen, which meant that 408 House members were ahead of him. With one of the largest districts, he wound up with one of the smallest offices.

COMMITTEE SYSTEM

Most of Congress' work is done in committees. Here, behind scenes, a congressman slowly builds his reputation among his colleagues as a worker, a sluggard, a yapper, a faker, a comer. The competition for the better committees is spirited, and a new congressman, even if he aims high, seldom gets what he wants.

Jacobs resents the seniority system; all young congressmen do.

Probably no other feature of Congress is so thoroughly condemned and so firmly entrenched.

"The object of politics always is to obtain power," the late Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson wrote.

Under the seniority system, power is often withheld until the congressman has reached an age that, in almost any other business, would bring forced retirement. Having power at last, the chairman is not about to relinquish it.

Yet seniority remains. Since the chairmen are the beneficiaries, they're not likely to knock out a system that builds their importance.

If Jacobs lasts long enough, he will soon find additional reasons for fretting.

Take the chore of shepherding a bill through Congress.

If it is controversial, it may be diluted and rewritten and pawed over and pummeled until its original objectives are blurred. It can be killed a dozen ways, from quiet knifing by a hostile chairman to slow public suffocation in a Senate filibuster.

Despite the pitfalls, bills do get through.

LUMUMBA FOLLOWERS

Ugandan Soldier Tells About Fight

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Private Stephen Bosco, 23, of the Ugandan army, the first foreign soldier captured fighting alongside the Congolese rebels, Saturday told the brief, inglorious tale of his war against the Congo.

"I run alone," he said. "I go away because my head was not all right."

A grubby bandage was stuck on the back of his head.

Bosco was captured by villagers armed with bows, arrows and spears outside the Congolese village of Ngote in the northeast Congo on Feb. 15 after a combined force of Ugandan soldiers and Congolese rebels launched an unsuccessful attack.

He told interrogators earlier his commanding officer, identified as Maj. Lalgoya, had gathered his unit and informed them they were going to invade the Congo "to fight beside the followers of Lumumba," said government spokesman Emmanuel Sinda.

Patrice Lumumba, the Congo's first, extremist premier who was murdered in Katanga, has been the symbol of the Communist-backed revolt.

Bosco denied he had any sympathy for the Congolese rebels.

"I don't care about Lumumba. I am a Ugandan," he told newsmen.

Bosco wore a stained Ugandan uniform when he met reporters in the office of the Congolese security police chief, Victor Nendaka.

Speaking a mixture of halting English and Swahili, Bosco said he had never been in action until the attack of Ngote.

Sinda said Bosco reported Lalgoya assembled his men on the night of Feb. 13 at their base at Arua. At 9 p.m. on Feb. 14, the Ugandans contacted a rebel band inside the Congo. Lalgoya told his men to follow the rebels, Sinda quoted Bosco as saying.

The Ugandan incursion came the day after news reached Arua of Ugandan Premier Milton Obote's charges that Congolese warplanes had bombed two Ugandan border villages.

"The Ugandans tried to make their attack look like a reprisal for the bombing, but the meeting with the simbas — rebels — shows this was no reprisal," Sinda declared.

Premier Moise Tshombe has denied the raids ever took place.

Sinda claimed Bosco said he ran away in panic when the shooting began at Ngote. But Sinda added Bosco's rifle had obviously been fired.

Bosco tried to make his way back to Uganda. When captured by the progovernment armed villagers Bosco was almost lynched. But he was eventually handed over to the Congolese army.

Sinda said latest reports did not indicate whether Aganda had complied with Tshombe's 24-hour ultimatum of Friday to withdraw its troops from Congolese soil.

IT'S THE CHALLENGE

GLASGOW (AP) — George Williamson, 25-year-old Glasgow architect, is well on the way to achieve his ambition to have a drink in every one of the city's 1,100 bars.

He took on the chore through the chance remark of a friend, who asked if he thought it possible to get around to all of Glasgow's pubs.

"I decided to take him up on this and have now visited 750 of them," said Williamson. "It is not the drink that is the attraction, it is to answer this challenge."

As he goes around the pubs, in good districts and in bad, he has devised his own system of classifying them. "Very often I have discovered that pubs in [illegible] districts have more attractions than some in posh (swank) districts," he said. Williamson rates pubs on service, interior decoration, quality of the drink and the type of company which frequents the bar.

The chore means a variety of drinks for Williamson, for some pubs sell only whisky (no beer), others specialize in cheap wines.

REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

Earnings Of Elderly Would Be Increased Under Plan

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS

REPRESENTATIVE Garner E. Shriver, Republican, Kansas, has introduced a bill in the House of Representatives, which would increase from $1,200 to $1,800 the amount a person who retired at age 65 would be permitted to earn without losing any of his monthly benefit payments.

Senators Spessard L. Holland and George A. Smathers, Democrats, Florida, would double the present exempt amount, raising it to $2,400. Representative Lindley Beckworth, Democrat, Texas, would raise it still higher to $3,600 and Representative Hale Boggs, Democrat, Louisiana, would take the lid off entirely.

The bills put into the hopper by these legislators are just four of more than 50 already introduced on this subject at this session of Congress, and referred to the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees.

Under present law a person retired at age 65 and who has not passed his seventy-second birthday may earn $1,200 and draw full Social security benefits.

But if he takes a job and earns more than $1,200 in one year, he then loses $1 of his benefits for every $2 he earns above $1,200 up to $1,700. Above $1,700 he loses $1 for every $1,- of earnings.

ARGUING for increasing the earnings limitation to $1,800, Shriver estimated that the legislation would benefit 1,700,000 persons under Social Security, and that the cost of his proposed change would be about $575,000,000 per year.

"There are many Social Security recipients who work to augment their retirement benefits," Shriver said. "These people have been affected by a steady increase in the cost of living and inflation and this legislation would be of assistance to them."

Senator George A. Smathers, Florida, represents a State where thousands of men and women past 65 have established homes.

Smathers calls the present limit a penalty on self-reliance, making it difficult for Social Security recipients to supplement their benefits, which, he says, in most cases are totally inadequate to meet the financial needs of a retired person and his dependants.

"Of course," Smathers told the Senate, "there are great differences between the needs of Social Security recipients age 65 to 72 for income supplementation and between their desires, willingness and need to work. But there are millions of them for whom enforced idleness means boredom, feelings of uselessness and futility, and bad mental and physical health, not to mention excruciating financial problems. Enactment of the bill I have introduced would make a substantial contributions not only to the financial well-being of older Americans but also to their physical and mental health and to their morale and general outlook on life."

SUCH HEAVY increases as doubling the allowance have been strongly opposed by the Social Security authorities on the ground that it would impose a very heavy drain on the existing trust fund.

A PERSON over 65 and below age 72 who now earns, say $1,500 in one year, would in the subsequent year have a total of $150 withhold from his monthly benefit check. Or if he earned the $1,700 beyond which the benefit loss is $1 for $1 earned, his loss would be $250 of his benefits. But if loss is $1 for $1 earned, his loss would be $250 of his benefits. But if earned $1,800 the sum of $350 would be withheld from his benefits.

If legislation was passed allowing $1,800 in earnings without loss of benefits this would mean that an extra $350 would have to come out of the old age and survivors trust fund.

If this $350 were multiplied by several million retired persons who are working part time and losing part of their benefits for earning above $1,200 it would mean quite an inroad into the fund and could disturb the actuarial balance and require additional financing.

A LARGE VOLUME of mail is coming to Senators and Representatives asking for the increase. Many members of Congress look with much concern on the plight of the Social Security recipients. The pressure could mount to where there would be some increase in the allowable. Some members of Congress say they would expect it to be increased to not more than $1,500 or $1,600.

Few think it has sufficient steam behind it to push it up to $2,400, and there is hardly the remotest chance of permitting unlimited earnings to persons between 65 and age 72 without loss of benefits.

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Burglars stole most of Douglas Keith's garden tools from his garage.

They also stole the big German shepherd Keith had left as a watchdog.

INCLUDES MONROE AREA

Parcel Post Mail Improvements Due

Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said Saturday, following a conference with Deputy Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen from Washington, D. C., that he expects significant improvements in parcel post service for the Monroe area.

Hathorn participated Friday in New Orleans with Belen in the institution of the new state-side scheduled parcel post program, providing one or two day delivery throughout Louisiana.

Within a designated area covering more than 500 post offices, 3.4 million persons and more than 45,000 square miles, the deputy postmaster general explained, the program will provide next-day or second-day delivery.

The service area is broken down into five parts as follows:

Part 1 — (Hammond, New Orleans and Thibodaux area)—123 post offices, 10,856 square miles and 1,051,300 people. Mississippi borders on the east and north, Napoleonville on the west, Gulf on the south.

Part 2 — (Baton Rouge, Lafayette, and Lake Charles area)—176 post offices, 15,632 square miles, and 580,868 people. Bounded by French Settlement in the east, Mississippi and DeRidder in the north, Texas in the west and the Gulf on the south.

Part 3 — (Alexandria area)—144 post offices, 10,410 square miles, and 160,841 people. Bounded by Bunkie and Leesville on the south, Mississippi on the east, Winnfield on the north and Texas on the west.

Part 4 — (Monroe area)—65 post offices, 6,349 square miles and 156,004 people. Bounded by Winnsboro on the south, Mississippi on the east, Arkansas on the north, Simsboro on the west and Coushatta on the south.

Part 5 — (Shreveport area)—69 post offices, 5,547 square miles and 268,867 people. Bounded by Arcadia on the east, Arkansas on the north, Texas on the west, and Mansfield on the south.

The new service is provided between all points in Parts 1, 2, and 3; between all points in Parts 2, 3, 4 and the city of Shreveport and between all points in Parts 4 and 5.

Belen explained that 2 - day maximum schedules will now apply on delivery between all Louisiana points and that service between most points is to be actually overnight.

While discussing the program with Postmaster Hathorn, Belen stated that Congressman Otto E. Passman of Monroe was very enthusiastic about this improvement in parcel post delivery and was most cooperative with postal officials in the institution of this improved service.

After completion of the "shakedown" phase announced starting Saturday, the system is scheduled to be fully operational by March 15.

Each post office in each of the five parts will post detailed maps showing customers all points for which the service is provided. By inquiring at his post office, each parcel mailer can determine the exact day of delivery at destination.

Institute Formed

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State University and six other Gulf coast universities have formed the "Gulf Universities Research Corporation," as a cooperative venture.

LSU said Saturday the research institute's first project will be construction and operation of a marine science research center.

The new organization for oceanographic and related research elected Dr. Carey Croneis, chancellor of Rice University, as its first president.

Members in addition to LSU and Rice are Florida State, Southern Methodist and Texas A&M universities, and the universities of Texas and Houston, and the Southwest Research Institute.

Being Number 1 Debutante Is Hardest Job In World

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The debutante race is hard on the girls, their parents and their dates, but every year it gets bigger.)

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — "Being the No. 1 glamor deb is the worst thing that can happen to you," said Brenda Frazier after her divorce in 1956 from former grid hero Shipwreck Kelly.

Two years earlier she had suffered a nervous breakdown attributed to constant dieting to live up to what the public expected of the belle of the deb season, 1938.

"I won't let it happen to my child at all," Brenda vowed. And today daughter Victoria, 19, is often a debutante's guest but never a deb.

In turning thumbs down on a coming out for his pretty stepdaughter, society's professional critic Cleveland Amory described debuts as fraught with "press agentry, pushy mothers, and misbegotten collegians."

If making a bow is as bad as all that, the largest number of mothers in American history is willing to have their daughters risk it.

In every one of the nation's social strongholds, it's the same story. Instead of one or two Old Guard cotillions which yearly present a handful of well-heeled, well-endowed, and well-behaved ladies, there are now dozens presenting 50 to 100 at a time in the name of society and for the sake of sweet charity.

More money among the upper middle classes and less expensive mass debuts are among the reasons for the swelling deb ranks.

ENDURANCE

In terms of endurance one of the most sporting debuts is the Cherokee Ball in Atlanta which lasts until dawn, followed by two breakfasts, making 19 hours of continuous partying.

In the early days daughters were presented in their own homes to family friends, a formality which indicated that the young lady was old enough to keep company with gentlemen — as long as she was chaperoned — until she caught one.

But a wealthy New Yorker, Archibald Gracie King, thought the young bloods of the town ought to see the kind of break they were getting. In 1870 he tossed a bash for his stepdaughter in the Delmonico Hotel.

From then on the emphasis was on a public debut where the young belle could subtly survey the field while presenting herself in the most favorable circumstances.

Mothers in Boston and Atlanta today are loath to view their daughters' debuts as rites announcing their hunt for husbands.

"They've gone to school with these boys since they were 12 and they would continue to see them socially anyway," said an Atlanta mother.

Yet a good date list is invaluable to the success of the deb season. And a good match is the honest aim of many mothers, if not their darling daughters. It is also the hope of mothers of handsome sons with empty pockets.

"I haven't bought a new dress in four years," said a mother with a good family name and none of the money that went with it a generation ago. "Still," she told a publicist who specializes in pushing people up the social ladder, "I haven't minded scrimping for this debut for I know my daughter will make an attractive marriage if she is only in the social swim."

Bowing socially costs money. The tab for coming out in Dallas ranges from $20,000 to $75,000, including cotillion fees, private parties, and a glamorous wardrobe. In San Francisco, cotillion fees run from $650 to $1,000, but the extras are the major cost. In New York a deb often chooses to come out at two or three of the big charity benefits and then cinches her social status with a private party, too. That's very costly.

In Boston or Miami a girl with a mere $550 to her father's name and a borrowed white gown can swing a debut, too. Yet it would have been impossible in the prewar heyday of spectacular splashes by millionaires' daughters.

REMEMBERING

An Atlanta mother who lamented that "debuts aren't what they used to be," was probably remembering Barbara Hutton's glittering bow to society in 1930. Silver birches, eucalyptus and Rudy Vallee were shipped from California for the occasion. Four orchestras played until dawn and the hull of a boat rose out of the floor with a beautiful girl tied to the prow.

Unforgettable in Cleveland Amory's book is the Christmas debut in 1926 of oilman Henry L. Doherty's stepdaughter, Helen. As dinner favors Helen gave away automobiles with hunting scenes painted on them.

Some dollared daddies are still dropping big bundles on debuts. Charlotte Ford's in 1959 with a Middle Ages theme and 1,200 guests set back papa Henry II more than $100,000. Nor did he get by cheaply on Anne's two years later.

This year the safari-loving parents of Fernanda Munn Kellogg spent a bundle draping the St. Regis Hotel roof with zebra printed fabric and decorating it with exotic flowers and jungle birds. New York society reporters dubbed it the party of the year.

Some cotillions have enough color and pageantry to last a lifetime.

Brumel Fails In Record Attempt; Strongmen Share AAU Spotlight

Boston Wins Over Northeast Hurdler

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's Vallery Brumel failed in his announced quest of the indoor high jump record Saturday, settling for a winning 7-2, while a quartet of Californians dominated the wind-up of the two-day national and indoor track championships.

Brummel, the Olympic gold medalist and holder of both the indoor and outdoor marks, had announced a determined try at his indoor 7-4 standard. He missed only once enroute to 7-3, then failed badly on each try at that height.

Otherwise, it was strongman John McGrath in the shot and Hal Connolly in the weight, along with middle distance men Jim Grelle and Jack Yerman who dominated the men's events on this last day of the combined men's and women's championships.

McGrath, from Pasadena, won the shot at 62-10¼, while Connolly, a school teacher at Santa Monica, came out of semi-retirement and won the weight throw at 70-½, second best the world has ever seen.

Crelle, a lean veteran from Los Angeles, found the slow mile pace just to his liking, lurked back in the pack for 10 laps, then out-kicked Poland's Witold Baran for a 4:07.4 victory.

And the balding veteran, who was knocked off his feet on a false start in the 600 yard run, came back to win it in a modest 1:11.3.

The Villanova quartet of Jim Orr, Al Adams, Tommy Sullivan and Noel Carroll won the two mile relay in an excellent 7:28.2 and the Camp Pendleton Marines won the mile relay in 3.16.3.

The pole vault went to Billy Pendleton of Mercedes, Tex., who won at 16 feet, then missed at an indoor record 16-5.

Connolly, a three-time Olympian and gold medal winner 1956, got off his magnificent throw in the only afternoon event. The Santa Monica school teacher, who found out only shortly before the meet that his expenses would be paid East, had not been expected to compete this season.

His throw is surpassed only by his own world record of 71-2½, the only other 35-pound weight throw ever to surpass the 70-foot barrier.

Wyomia, Tyus, Griffin, Ga., won the women's 60 yard dash in 6.8, the third time of the day the Olympic 100 meter champion had matched Wilma Rudolph's indoor record. The Tennessee State student also equalled the record in the heats and the semifinals of the event, both Saturday.

McGrath, a 6-foot-6, 270 pounder, got some unnecessary help when defending champion Gary Gubner withdrew from the shot because of a sore elbow and Hungary's Vilmos Varju, Olympic bronze medal winner, injured a knee in practice and did not qualify for the finals.

It may not have been necessary. The 270-pound California strongman got off his excellent, winning toss, on his final throw of the night at Madison Square Garden.

Fordham's Sam Perry got an excellent start and won the men's 60 yard dash in six seconds flat, some two feet in front of Mel Pender of the U.S. Army and only one-tenth of a second off the record he shares with Bob Hayes.

Ralph Boston of Nashville, who was just edged out by Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan in the broad-jump in the opening of the two-day session Friday, took the hurdles title in 7.2. He and Ter-Ovanesyan each cleared 26-2¼, but the Russian took it on a better second effort.

Roger Morgan of Northeast Louisiana State finished right behind Boston in the 60 yard hurdles race. Morgan is one of the few to beat Boston this year. The Northaest senior turned the trick the first time the two ran, several weeks ago in the Millrose Games.

The women's 440, run in two sections, ended in a tie between the winners of the two heats, Janell Smith of Fredonia, Kan., and Norma Harris of Chicago, each in an American citizens record time of 56.5.

Tennessee State's women's 640 yard relay team, anchored by Olympic champion Edith McGuire, won by some 15 yards in 1:11.7.

NEW YORK (AP) — Final results Saturday in the National AAU indoor track and field championships:

35-pound weight throw—1, Harold Connolly, Culver City A.C., 70 feet, ½ inch; 2,George Frenn, North Hollywood, Calif., 66-8; 3, Al Hall, New York A.C., 64-6¼; 4, Al Backus, New York A.C., 63-1¾; 5, Stewart Thomson, New York A.C., 62-2¾.

Women's 440-yard run—1, Tie between Janell Smith, Fredonia, Kan., and Norma Harris, Mayor Daley Youth Foundation, :56.5, meet record, previous record :57 by Suzanne Knott, 1963. 3, Abby Hoffman, Toronto Olympic Club, :57.2. 4, Pat Winslaw, San Mateo, Calif. A.A., :57.3.

Women's 640-yard relay—1, Tennessee State (Wyomia Tyus, Essie Crews, Lorraine Dunn, Edith McGuire), 1:11.7. 2, Los Angeles Mercurettes, 1:13.7. 3, Detroit T.C., 1:14.5. PAL finished fourth but was disqualified.

Women's team scores—Tennessee State 1; Los Angeles Mercurettes 12; Mayor Daley Youth Foundation, Chicago 9; Frederick, Md., Track and Field Club 9; Police Athletic League, New York 4; Detroit Track Club 4; Long Island Mercurettes 3; Ohio Track Club 3; Cleveland Recreation 3; Ann Arbor, Mich. 2; Mansfield, Ohio 2; Brooklyn Atoms 1; San Mateo, Calif. A.A. 1; Willis Spiketes, Sacramento, Calif. 1.

Women's 60-yard dash — 1, Wyomia Tyus, Tennessee State; 2, Debbie Thompson, Frederick, Md. T.C. 3, Edith McGuire, Tennessee State. 4, Barbara Farrell, Los Angeles Mercurettes. Time — :06.8 equals meet record.

Men's 60-yard dash — 1, Sam Perry, Fordham. 2, Mel Pender, U.S. Army. 3, Larry Dunn, Southern Calif. Striders. 4, Paul Drayton, U.S. Army. Time — :06.0.

Rebels Down Tech, 92-88 In Ruston

RUSTON (Special) — Mississippi rallied from an eight point deficit here Saturday night to down Louisiana Tech, 92 - 88.

The win upped Southern to 18-11 and dropped the Bulldogs to 10 - 10 with two games remaining.

Tech had beaten the Rebels, 88 - 83 earlier in the season.

Southern jumped to an early lead as Gary Kochesperger scored the first five points for the visitors and they went on to an 11 - 6 lead, before 6 - 10 Bob Watson went on a scoring and rebounding binge for Tech and a three - point play by Jerry Hood tied it at 17 - 17.

Tech then spurted into the lead with Watson getting six points, Hood three, Jim Pruett four and all of a sudden the Bulldogs had a 30 - 21 margin. Bruce Miller and Gary Hannan led the Southerners as they fought back to tie 34 - 34. Dan McCormick came off the bench and in the final four and one-half minutes before intermission, hit eight straight points to give Tech a 54 - 46 halftime lead.

Miller was the game's top scorer with 29 points and he got able support from Kochersperger with 19, Hannan with 18 and Charlie Pain with 14.

Hood led Tech with 21 points while Watson and Pruett each had 17 and Malcomb Smith and McCormick 11 each.

Watson got 16 of 17 points and most of his rebounds in the first half. He led Tech in rebounding with 13 and saw only limited service after intermission.

Southern came out hot and Tech cold after the half and the Rebels took the lead 67 - 66 with 12:32 to play. The game was close most of the last half. In the late stages, each team went into a delay game when it got the lead.

AT DELTA STATE

Tribe Can Give Fant Victory Number 100

With its conference championship already won and its greatest season in history already assured, Northeast State's basketball team will try to give Coach Lenny Fant the 100th victory of his Northeast career Tuesday night when it meets Delta State.

Fant will be concluding his eighth season at Northeast in the Tuesday night game in Cleveland, Miss. A former cage star at Lee High of Columbus, Miss., and Centenary College, Fant coached successful teams at Delhi (La.) High School, Louisiana College and East Texas Baptist before coming to Northeast in 1957.

Although coming with a couple of 12-13 seasons, Fant's first four Northeast teams did not win as many as they lost but by 1961-62 he had molded a championship team.

The 1961-62 team, led by all-American Lanny Johnson finished the season with a 17-8 record and won the school's first Gulf States Conference cage crown.

The following year the Indians barely missed a share of the title, finishing in a tie for second place and 15-11 overall. Last year they were fourth in the conference and 14-11 overall.

Northeast's 64-33 record over the past four years is the best in the GSC over that span and Fant's teams have been the only league clubs to post winning records in each of the four years.

Going into the Delta game, Fant's record at Northeast reads 99-95 and his overall college coaching record is 167-126.

Northeast will also be trying to set several other records in the Tuesday game. The Indians will try to extend their consecutive games won record to 11 and close out the season with records for best field goal percentage and best scoring average.

The field goal percentage record is 42.5, set in 1958-59, and the Tribe is currently shooting 46.6 per cent. The scoring average record is 77.7, set in 1954-55, and this year's team has an 81.9 average.

Already Northeast has set two season records this season—fewest games lost and best won-lost percentage. The previous low in games lost was eight in 1961-62 and that same team also had the best winning percentage of 68.0. A loss Tuesday would leave Northeast at 18-4, 81.8 per cent.

Northeast's two brilliant guards, Tommy Enloe and Glynn Saulters, set a record themselves Thursday night. According to available records, their combined total of 64 points was the most ever scored by two Indians in one game.

Saulters scored 35 and Enloe put in 29 as Northeast whipped Southeastern, 94-88, to end the Gulf States Conference campaign. The victory gave Northeast, which had wrapped up the league title two days earlier, a 9-1 conference record. No other GSC team has less than four defeats in league play.

Enloe is now averaging 20.2 points a game and freshman Saulters 19.6.

LSU Takes Win From Bulldogs With Heroman

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Harry Heroman scored his season high of 29 points to lead Louisiana State past Mississippi State 94 - 76 in a Southeastern Conference game Saturday night.

With scoring star Dick Maile still recovering from the flu, Heroman took over and hit on 12 of 22 attempts from the field and 5 of 6 from the foul line.

Bill Wilson scored 21 points and Kennedy Drost got 20 to pace a hot Tiger attack that sent LSU ahead 53 - 32 at halftime.

Wilson hit on 9 of 12 field goal attempts and 3 for 3 at the line. He got 16 rebounds.

Maile made an attempt to play for about three minutes midway in the second half but was not strong enough to go. Sophomore Larry Henderson also helped take up the slack with 12 points and 7 rebounds.

LSU outshot State from the field 47.1 per cent to 33.3 per cent and out-rebounded the Bulldogs 59 to 43.

The victory boosted the Tigers to a 10-12 over all record and a 5-7 league mark. Mississippi State carries an 8-16 season mark and a 4 - 9 conference record.

Epps Captures Boys Division

TRANSYLVANIA (Special) — The Epps boys and Transylvania girls won division championships here Saturday night in the annual Transylvania junior high basketball tournament.

Epps defeated Monticello, 50-47, and Transylvania topped Goodwill, 53-39. Jackson had 16 for the Epps boys while McVay got 29 for Monticello. Waller led Transylvania's girls with 28 points and Peterson got 32 for the losers.

In the consolation games Ouachita's girls beat Culkin, Miss. 38-29 as Dean hit 17 points and the Oak Grove boys beat Transylvania 52-51 with Pollard's 19 points.

The girls all-tournament team was made up of Cruse of Ouachita, Lowery of Culkin, Compton of Goodwill, Waller of Transylvania, and Walker of Transylvania. Goodwill's Peterson was the most valuable player and Lee of Transylvania was selected for the sportsmanship award.

Making the boys all-star club were Jackson of Epps, Pollard of Oak Grove, Vining of Transylvania, and R. Hawsey of Monticello. McVay of Monticello was the MVP and Boytin of Epps won the sportsmanship trophy.

Spring Training Near

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The heat will be hottest for Johnny Keane and Red Schoendienst when the seven new managers report for work this week at baseball's spring training camps.

Keane will be hard-pressed to top last year's dramatics when he brought the St. Louis Cardinals from behind and won both the National League pennant and the World Series. Having shifted to the New York Yankees, his Series victims, Keane finds himself managing a club that is a 6-5 favorite to win its sixth straight American League championship.

Schoendienst, starting a new career as a manager after years of playing and coaching, steps into a tough spot at St. Louis, where Keane told owner Gussie Busch to go fly a kite after winning everything in 1964. The Cardinals have been established as 4-1 co-favorites with Philadelphia, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Perhaps the pressure of trying to repeat with proven pennant winners is not as difficult as the tasks before Billy Herman at Boston and Lum Harris at Houston. Both must rescue clubs embedded deep in the second division.

Herman, getting a second chance as a manager after an 18-year wait, will try to spark a revival at Fenway Park. Harris who had a taste of the job ahead in the final weeks of the 1964 season after he succeeded Harry Craft, must do better if Houston is to pack them in at the new domed stadium.

Herman Franks also will be under considerable pressure at San Francisco in his first year as a manager. Alvin Dark did win in 1962 but walked the plank after two misses. It will be up to Franks, a coach under Dark, to handle the many problems that handicapped the Giants last season.

Harry Walker, taking over for Danny Murtaugh at Pittsburgh, must come up with something close to the winner of 1960 to excite the fans at Forbes Field, where attendance is off.

Dick Sisler, succeeding the late Fred Hutchinson at Cincinnati, now has the responsibility of handling the Reds on a full-time basis after filling in as a stand-in manager during a large part of the 1964 season.

Most of the clubs report in sections, the pitchers and catchers first with the main squad a few days later. Houston and Detroit have had advance rookie squads, including a smattering of veterans, in early camps for a week.

Washington and Houston have the batterymen report today. the Senators at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the Astros at Cocoa, Fla. Minnesota's first group will be at Orlando, Fla., Monday.

The Tuesday arrivals are the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla., Kansas City at Bradenton, Fla., and the Los Angeles Angels at Palm Springs, Calif.

Keane will get his first look at the Yanks when the batterymen report Wednesday at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. On the same day Baltimore will be at Miami, Detroit at Lakeland, Fla., Pittsburgh at Fort Meyers, Fla., and the Phillies at Clearwater, Fla.

Herman's first group of Red Sox is due Thursday at Scottsdale, Ariz. All of the Cleveland Indians are to report Friday at Tucson, Ariz., and the New York Mets' pitchers and catchers will check in with Casey Stengel the same day at St. Petersburg, Fla.

All of the Los Angeles Dodgers will be on hand Saturday at Vero Beach, Fla., as will the Cards' battery crew at St. Petersburg.

The others are due next Sunday, when all the Chicago Cubs will be at Mesa, Ariz.; all the San Francisco Giants at Casa Grande, Ariz., for a few days before moving to Phoenix; the Milwaukee batterymen at West Palm Beach, and the Reds' pitchers and catchers at Tampa, Fla.

When the rest of the Braves show up March 5 everybody will be at full strength.

Back On Top

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt's Commodores struggled past Florida 80-78 and back to the top of the Southeastern Conference basketball race Saturday night.

The Commodore victory, coupled with Tennessee's loss at Alabama, left with a 10-1 SEC record. Tennessee now is 9-2.

Bob Grace, who missed Thursday's practice because of an ankle sprain, showed little ill effects as he led the Commodores with 23 points.

Wisner-Gilbert Tops Richwood For Zone Title

GILBERT (Special) —Wisner-Gilbert High School won the zone four championship by edging Richwood of Monroe, 80-79, in overtime here Saturday night.

Spencer Arthur led the way for the winning team with 24 points while Joe Walker netted 37 points for Richwood.

Wisner-Gilbert will advance to the state rally to be held at Grambling, Feb. 25-27.

TEEN-AGE UNTOUCHABLE

High School Coach Keeping 7-Foot-1 Giant Under Wraps

NEW YORK (AP) — You'd think it would be impossible to keep a 7-foot-1 giant under wraps—particularly a towering and talented youngster who is the most celebrated schoolboy basketball star ever developed in this teeming hotbed of basketball.

But for four years of ever-spreading fame, Lew Alcindor has been the teen-age untouchable.

The 17-year-old senior at Power Memorial High School has been off-limits to newsmen, college coaches and scouts, and pro scouts ever since he started attracting attention as a gawky, 6-9 freshman.

No outsiders are allowed to talk to Alcindor according to the rules laid down by his coach, Jack Donohue, and fully agreed to by the boy himself and his parents.

To tighten the web of security, the Alcindors' phone is unlisted and their address is kept secret.

Why the protective screen?

"In the first place, it's not just Lewie, it's all the boys here—it's the school policy," Donohue explained the other day.

"Lewie needs all his time for school, basketball and being a teen-ager. If we didn't handle it this way he's been swarmed under—the pressure would be unfair. You'd be amazed at the requests we get for his time—from newspapermen, magazine writers, television and radio people, and the colleges.

"His time is more valuable than mine. And I'm paid for this job, so I'm willing to be the buffer."

Even with the restrictions, young Alcindor has been the subject of innumerable newspaper and magazine articles and has been seen in action on television. It's all been sort of second - hand, however, with the boy not directly approached.

"He gets all the publicity he wants, anyway," added his coach, who at 33 already has one of the marks of his profession— greying hair. "He doesn't want any more and neither do his parents. Lewie has no great desire to talk about himself or his future."

It is generally conceded that Alcindor can write his own ticket as far as college is concerned. He's a good student, with an 85 average, who is interested in journalism.

Most reports say the boy has received 100 scholarship offers, but Donohue says the number's an invention.

"Actually, any college with a basketball team would want him. But there have been about 60 or 70 letters from schools showing some interest, including about 17 or 18 outlining the advantages of their scholarships.

"I haven't tried to sway Lewie about college—we have a guidance program here that will help him decide. He'll talk about it when he makes up his mind, and when that will be is up to him."

The best guess is Alcindor will wind up at UCLA, with St. John's of New York second in the running.

There is no doubt the lean, agile center is a prize catch— a sure-bet standout and drawing card at any college.

Alcindor averaged a mere 12 points a game as a freshman, then 22, 26, and currently 30 as a senior, hitting about 75 per cent of his shots. His rebound average the past two seasons has been 20 per game. And as a rule he plays only a half a game, or some 16 minutes.

Although he towers over his opposition, Alcindor has much more than height. The 235-pounder is supple and moves well, and is a good passer. Handling the basketball like a softball, he often sets up a score by whipping the ball the length of the court after taking a rebound from Bill Russell.

Almost all his shooting is inside, hooks, stuffers and tap-ins. His ability to leap high, and his height, make him almost unstoppable in close and also make him a formidable defender.

Starting in Alcindor's freshman season, Power went on a winning streak that extended to 71 games before the Panthers were edged by powerful DeMatha High of Hyattsville, Md., 46-43, before a crowd of 13,500 at the University of Maryland's field house. A collapsing defense held Alcindor to 16 points.

After that loss, a crushed Alcindor blamed himself.

"You played your game, Lewie," Donohue told him. "If you take the blame for this, you'll have to take the credit for the other 71."

Coach Joe Lapchick of St. John's, a noted basketball figure for decades, gives Alcindor unqualified endorsement:

"He'll be the center for the United States in the 1968 Olympics and will be the first $50,000-a-year-rookie in the pros."

Wilt Chamberlain, perhaps the man Alcindor most resembles as a player, says of the boy: "He's tough, plenty tough. A tremendous player who'll go far."

And General Manager Eddie Donovan of the pro New York Knicks said after watching Alcindor play: "We could use him right now. He can do everything. The best high school boy I ever saw."

Alcindor, whose father is a policeman in the subway system, is an only child. He lives in a middle-class environment, and according to his coach, he has been extremely level-headed about his acclaim.

"He's taken it all in stride. He jokes about all the rumors on where he'll go to college and the stories, but he doesn't worry about the publicity — only about his basketball and his grades.

"The other boys kid him, but good-naturedly. The school hasn't made a hero of Lewie, or given him any special awards—they've gone to the team and to seniors. Actually, he's a bigshot this year because he's a senior now, and the captain.

"Lew is a nice, quiet kid, no trouble to anybody. Just the way we want all our boys to be. We like to think of him as average."

But somehow, it's very hard to imagine anyone could think of Lew Alcindor as average.

RECOVERING QUICKLY

Venturi Hopeful Of Future Return

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Venturi and his doctor both are confident the U.S. Open champion can resume competitive golf next month, probably at the Pensacola Open in Florida, March 5-8.

A circulatory ailment forced Venturi to the sidelines after the Bing Crosby tournament last month.

Dr. Robert M. Woods, team physician for the Los Angeles Dodgers, performed diagnostic surgery on Venturi Jan. 28. It disclosed numbness in his hands was caused by inflamation of the arteries. A medication treatment was prescribed and the golfer was told to rest.

Dr. Woods treated a similar ailment for pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers in 1962. The following year the left-hander was baseball's top pitcher.

"I haven't touched a club since the Crosby tournament except to putt a little," Venturi says, "but I feel wonderful now. The middle finger of my right hand still is not too good but better."

In Los Angeles, Dr. Woods said Venturi had shown a marked improvement.

Dr. Woods said Venturi should be able to play at Pensacola, commenting, "He may be a little rusty when he returns to the tour, but that's to be expected. With warmer weather, he will be the same as he was and maybe even better."

On Friday, an unusual scene will be enacted at Palm Springs. Venturi will hit golf balls under the scrutiny of Dr. Woods.

"He wants to see what happens during the pressure of holding and swinging the clubs," the golfer explained. "I'll know in Palm Springs whether I'll be going to Pensacola or not."

Venturi says if he gets the medical go-ahead, "I'll work awfully hard to get back into the game. It will take me awhile. Don't expect any miracles at Pensacola. I've got to build up strength in my hands. It will take me a week or two of good, hard work.

"Then I should be all right again."

Venturi's tremendous performance last June in the U.S. Open at the Congressional Country Club in Washington, D.C., won him Comeback-of-the-Year honors.

Then in November he noticed his hands would become cold and numb. Several weeks later in a locker room, baseball player Lee Walls noted two of Venturi's fingers looked blue. He recalled the Koufax ailment and suggested a visit to Dr. Woods.

'Bama Upsets Vols In Big SEC Contest

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's Crimson Tide won a 63-58 victory over Tennessee Saturday in a major upset of the basektball season.

Front-running Tennessee went into the game ranked eighth in the nation and in a tie with Vanderbilt for the Southeastern Conference lead.

Neither team managed a sizeable advantage until the Tide opened a four-point edge in the middle of the first half. A 20-foot jump shot by Harry Hammonds seven seconds before intermission gave Alabama a 33-31 lead.

The Vols quickly tied the score but the lead sea-sawed until midway of the second half when A. W. Davis and Ron Widby shot Tennessee ahead 51-46.

Alabama, which had gone scoreless for more than three minutes, suddenly cut loose with field goals by Bambi Howland, Charlie Perry and Boby Andrews, pulling the Tide to a 52-52 tie with 5:31 to go.

Andrews pushed the Tide ahead by one point with a free shot with 4:51 left and Tennessee never recovered the lead.

Although Tennessee is the No. 1 team in the nation on rebound percentage, the Tide led in rebounds 36-32.

The defeat leaves Tennessee with a 17-3 record for the season and a 9-2 SEC record. Alabama stands at 16-6 over-all and 8-4 in the conference.

High scorers for Tennessee were Davis with 22 points, Widby with 15 and Larry McIntosh with 10.

Alabama's high men were Andrews with 20 points, Hammonds 14, Perry 12, and Ken Moses 10.

Andrews Leads Tulane To Win Over Ole Miss

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Al Andrews ripped the nets for 20 points as Tulane routed Mississippi 87-71 Saturday night in a Southeastern Conference game.

The 6-foot sophomore, whose year's scoring output is 407, managed only five points in the first half. When he was taken out of the ball game with a little less than three minutes left he got a standing ovation.

Tulane took the lead 6-5 on a pair of free throws by Craig Spitzer with 18 minutes remaining in the first half. From that point on, they were never headed.

In the first half, Tulane's biggest margin was a slim six points as they led at halftime 39-33. In the second half, the Green Wave was ahead by 20 points or better most of the contest.

Its biggest lead was 26 points, 87-61.

Andrews had to yield the night's scoring honors to Ole Miss' Eddie Dunn, who had 26. Following Andrews in Tulane scoring was the 7-foot-1 Spitzer with 19.

Tulane is now 3-18 and 2-10 in SEC play. Mississippi is 4-19 and 1-13.

Southern Clings To League Lead

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Southern University hung on to its lead in the Southwestern Athletic Conference Saturday night by drubbing Prairie View, 126-89.

All five southern starters were in double figures, with Robert Love leading the quintet with 40 points. Louis Alexander popped in 28 for Prairie View.

Southern is now 10-1 in the SWAC and 19-3 overall. Prairie View is 3-8 and 8-11.

Hustlers Capture Junior Crown

The Hustlers outlasted College Place, 29 - 26, and won the Junior Tournament sponsored by the Monroe Recreation Department Saturday.

Breland led the victory for the Hustlers with 14 points. Cobb netted 12 for the College Place quintet.

In the semi - finals games, the Hustlers reached the finals with a 40 - 27 victory over West Monroe Baptist. Breland, Trichel, and Stockstill each netted 10 points for the Hustlers. Loftin and Painich had 10 each for West Monroe Baptist.

College Place made the final contest by squeezing by the Boys Club, 34 - 32. Cobb hit 20 points for College Place. Jones had 12 for the Boys Club.

West Monroe Baptist, the Boys Club, the Hustlers, and College Place won second round victories earlier Saturday.

CLEM THE GEM, ETC.

Many Nicknames Among Top Players

NEW YORK (AP) — The Man with the Golden Arm. Dave the Rave. Clem the Gem. West the Best.

Maybe the Madison Ave. advertising boys are handing out hints, but those are some of the colorful nicknames for college basketball players.

A. W. Davis of Tennessee is The Man with the Golden Arm. Dave Stallworth, the Wichita All-America, is Dave the Rave. Clem Haskins, a soph at Western Kentucky, is Clem the Gem.

And West the Best refers to Westley Unseld, a freshman at Louisville who is tagged as a star next season when he moves up to the Cardinal varsity.

There's a takeoff on Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside of the Glenn Davis-Doc Blanchard football era at Army. Leon Clark is the basketball Mr. Inside and Flynn Robinson the Mr. Outside, both of Wyoming.

Davis, a senior who has sparked Tennessee into the thick of contention for the Southeastern Conference championship, gained his sobriquet in his sophomore season. Publicity blurbs also term him the "24-karat Vol dandy."

Stallworth starred three seasons for Wichita until his graduation a few weeks ago at mid-term. Haskins has kept Western Kentucky in contention for the Ohio Valley Conference crown.

In time perhaps these nicknames may become as famous as the Big O for Oscar Robertson and Wilt the Stilt for Wilt Chamberlain when they played college ball for Cincinnati and Kansas, respectively.

What do they call some of the other college stars this season?

Just plain old Bill Bradley of Princeton, Cazzie Russell of Michigan, Gail Goodrich of UCLA, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Clyde Lee of Vanderbilt and Rick Barry of Miami, Fla.

de Varona Wins Two Races In Swimming Meet

BREMEN, Germany (AP) — Donna de Varona of Santa Clara, Calif., 17-year-old winner of three Olympic gold medals at Tokyo last year, won two races Saturday in the first half of a two-day international swimming meet.

Three other U.S. Olympians also won their specialties but two took unexpected setbacks.

Miss de Varona won the 200-meter freestyle in 2:15.9 and the 200-meter individual medley in 2:30.1.

The other American winners were Cathy Ferguson of Burbank, Calif., in the women's 200-meter backstroke, Jed Graef of Verona, N.J., in the men's 100-meter backstroke and Phil Rikker of Paterson, N.J., in the men's 200 - meter butterfly. Miss Ferguson and Grael are Olympic champions.

Sharon Stouder, 16-year-old Olympic butterfly champion from Glendora, Calif., and Claudia Kolb of Santa Clara, Calif., silver medalist in the breaststroke, had to settle for second places.

AT NATCHITOCHES

Interest Shown In Track Meet

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Statewide interest has been exhibited in the first annual invitational indoor track meet to be sponsored by the Graduate "N" Club of Northwestern State College at Prather Coliseum Friday and Saturday evenings, Feb. 26 and 27.

Forty-two high schools, including one from Stamps, Ark., will send 194 participants to the Friday evening meet. Eight colleges and universities have entered athletes in the Saturday evening program.

William J. Dodd, superintendent of Louisiana schools, will serve as referee. Dodd, a former Northwestern baseball pitcher, was president of the "N" Club in 1933-34 and was sports editor of the Current Sauce, student weekly, and Potpourri, the yearbook.

All officials for the two-evening program will be former athletes. These include D. H. Whittington, president of the Graduate "N" Club; Trent Melder, Harold Smith, Dean Guy W. Nesom, Dr. Charles F. Thomas, Tynes Hildebrand, Jim Brunning, Levi Thompson, Dan Carr, Steve Jordan, Ray Hale, Jerry Fowler, Don Beasley, Glenn Talbert, Grover Colvin, Buddy Bonnette, Jerry Burton, Jerry West, Dan Poole, and Bill Noonan, head of the state department of health and physical education.

Only those trackmen who have established the best times, distances, and heights have been selected for participation, although "N" Club officials admit that more high school entries have been accepted than would ordinarily be the case in the future.

Byrd and LaGrange, Class AAA track powers, have qualified the largest number of entries. Other schools to be represented are Baker, Bossier, Port Allen, Buckeye, Amite, Raceland, Sikes, Winnsboro, Crowley, Natchitoches, West Monroe, Winnfield, Bordelonville, Robert E. Lee of Baton Rouge, Bolton, Neville, Minden, Mamou, Abbeville, Covington, Tallulah, Benton, Mid-City Baptist, Moreauville, Pineville, Mansfield, Fair Park, Academy of the Immaculate Conception of Opelousas, East Jefferson, Ruston, Scott, Vidalia, North Caddo, Goldonna, Ashland, Glen Oaks of Baton Rouge, Airline of Bossier City, Crowville, Ferriday, and Stamps, Ark.

Submitting entries in the college and university division are Stephen F. Austin, Louisiana Tech, Southeastern, Tulane, Northeast, the University of Houston, McNeese (1), and host Northwestern.

Northeast's Roger Morgan, a national champion in the hurdles, will be one of many outstanding collegiate performers. Morgan had won four of six indoor races this winter and competed in the National AAU Indoor Championships last weekend. He'll lead a powerful Northeast squad into the college-university division.

Toughest competition should be provided the Indians by the University of Houston. Coach Johnny Morris has entered 15 athletes in the meet, including his son, John, a top performer.

Louisiana Tech, Northwestern, Tulane, Southeastern, and Stephen F. Austin have outstanding performers in individual events who should turn in top performances. McNeese has entered Craig Henry, an outstanding sprinter.

Trial heats have been scheduled for 6:30 o'clock with the meet set to begin at 7 o'clock each evening.

Lamar Tech Is Defeated, 99-80

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Abilene Christian shot at a 57.4 per cent clip, never trailed and beat Lamar Tech 99-80 Saturday to advance to the portals of the Southland Conference basketball championship.

Abilene Christian is 6-1 and has only one game left—with Arkansas State, which also has only one loss but has two games left.

Spencer Pickens led the hot-shooting Christians with 27 points and also dominated the rebounding with 11. Six ACC players shot in double figures.

Don Bryson, Lamar Tech star, was the high point man of the game with 36.

Tavern Operator Denies Charges

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago tavern operator accused in a point-shaving conspiracy with two Seattle University basketball players told the Chicago Daily News Saturday that "This case isn't what the FBI is making it out to be."

Leo Casale, 24, predicted he and the two arrested players, Charlie Williams and Peller Phillips, would be cleared in court of the charges against them.

Casale is at liberty on a $25,000 recognizance bond pending resumption Tuesday of his arraignment on charges he conspired to have points shaved in the Seattle-Idaho basketball game of Jan. 22.

The two players await preliminary hearing on bribery conspiracy charges at Seattle March 1.

The News quoted Casale, 5-foot-7 former basketball star and senior class president at Chicago's St. Francis De Sales High School, saying:

"I'm the carefree type. I've never had any arrests before — except for traffic tickets."

Casale was irked, the News said, at arrest of Phillips, Casale's basketball teammate when both attended Coalinga Junior College in California.

"We played together for, maybe, 30 ball games," Casale said. "And we lived in the same building on the campus. This kid has worked very hard for everything he got — and I hate to see a thing like this happen to him."

It was reported investigators were checking rumors Casale took Phillips, Williams and a third Seattle player, L. J. Wheeler, nightclubbing in Chicago after Seattle's game against DePaul here Dec. 23.

Wheeler, reserve center, was expelled from Seattle for failing to report his knowledge of the alleged bribe offer on the Jan. 22 game at Seattle.

The pleasure tour, it was said, began at Casale's lounge on the South Side and ended in North Side cafes.

The News said local gambling experts and bookmakers expressed doubt that crime syndicate gamblers made much profit on Seattle's 89-72 victory in which the point-shaving purportedly happened.

"The point spread changed little before the game," the News said, "indicating no large amounts, probably less than $10,000, was bet on the game here, gambling experts said."

The News pointed out Seattle won by 17 points in a game gamblers listed Seattle as 17½-point favorite. Casale is accused of offering a bribe to make certain Seattle did not win by more than 17 points.

Precipate Action Is Accusation Against Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle University was accused Saturday of precipate action in expelling its basketball captain, Charlie Williams, who was arrested Wednesday along with teammate Peller Phillips on charges of complicity in a point-shaving conspiracy.

Both were expelled immediately for allegedly violating a university rule that requires athletes to report at once any approach by gamblers. A third player, L. J. Wheeler, also was expelled for allegedly concealing knowledge of the incident.

Jack Tanner, Williams' attorney, called the university's action "morally wrong" and said Williams should have had a hearing before he was expelled.

"The school was trying so hard to absolve the university of any moral obligation it has done the boy an injustice," Tanner said.

"My complaint has nothing to do with his innocence or guilt. There is no excuse for any wrong, but I feel Williams should have had the right of trial."

Leo Casale, a Chicago tavern operator, was arrested there as an alleged member of the conspiracy. Phillips and Casale once were temmates at Coalinga, Calif., Junior College.

At liberty under a $25,000 recognizance bond, Casale is to appear Tuesday in Chicago before the U.S. Commissioner, who had postponed his hearing pending arrival of papers on the case from Seattle.

Phillips and Williams, free under recognizance bonds of $1,000 each, are to enter pleas in the federal case here March 1.

The men are charged under a federal law with conspiring to affect the result of a game here Jan. 22 between Seattle and Idaho, which Seattle won 89 to 72. The gambling point spread was 18 points.

Phillips, seeking a job to support himself and his expectant wife, has said he was "not even good friends with Casale."

"The thing we regret," said his attorney, Maurice Kadish, "is that he has been expelled from school."

Primordial 2nd Takes Widener Handicap Race

MIAMI (AP) — Primordial 2nd put on a great stretch run, then survived a claim of foul in winning the $135,600 Widener Handicap Saturday at Hialeah before the Florida racing season's biggest crowd, 31,587.

Hot Dust was second, half length behind the winner, and Your Alibhai was third. Tibaldo finished fourth in the 12-horse field.

Going Abroad, the 8-5 favorite as an entry with Valiant Man, was fifth, followed by Point du Jour, Chateaugay, Knightly Manner, Purser, Sunstruck, Valiant Man and Piave.

Jockey Larry Adams on Your Alibhai claimed Primordial 2nd, under Sandino Hernandez, interfered with his horse at the head of the stretch, but the claim was not allowed.

Primordial 2nd, one of three Argentine horses in the race, paid $20.80, $12,20 and $8.20. Hot Dust and Your Alibhai returned $19.80 and $19.20 as an entry.

Primordial 2nd was last out of the gate and trailed the field for the first half-mile. But the horse began to move up and was seventh after a mile in the 1¼-mile feature.

Turning into the stretch he was 1½ lengths behind Tibaldo, but quickly wrested the lead and won in 2:03 3-5.

Primordial 2nd carried 118 pounds to 120 each on Going Abroad, Sunstruck and Chateaugay, but his time was the slowest for the Widener since Four Freedoms won in 2:04 3-5 in 1944.

YMCA Basketball

Three Gray-Y Blue games were played Saturday.

In the first game, the Colts beat the Panthers, 16-6. Jan Beaver had six for the Colts and David Salley netted all six for the Panthers.

The Tigers beat the Lions, 20-10. Beau Wicker, Mark Ruben and Gary Marx had six each for the Tigers. Billy Herrington and Bob Brown got four for the Lions.

The Eagles outlasted the Redskins, 17-14. Jerry Acree led the Eagles with 10 points with Wally McMakin scoring six for the Redskins.

Three Gray-Y Red contests were played.

Mike Lary paced the Giants by the Bears, 19-14, with six points. Ray Kelly had five for the Bears.

Bill Rowe and David Hilley had four points each to lead the Cardinals to a 10-7 win from the Packers. Doug Brown was high scorer for the Packers with four points.

The Indians toppled the Cowboys, 16-10, behind the 12 point shooting of Tom Whatley. Mark Craft netted seven for the Cowboys.

Two Gray-Y White games were played.

The Steelers routed the Royals, 17-4. Alan Shurr had eight for the winners while Donnie Laudenheimer and John Holmes had two points each for the Royals.

The Rams defeated the Bengals, 18-7. Dennis Surrant led all scorers with 14 points. John Herrington had four for Bengals.

Two games were also played in Gray-Y Green action.

The Broncs took a 13-10 win from the Lakers. Paul Allen led the Broncs with four points while Gary Gaskins took high point honors in the contest for the Lakers with eight.

Barry Primos and Young Kilpatrick had eight points each in pacing the Bandits to a 20-1 victory from the Hawks. Mark Anderson had the Hawks only point.

DOUBLE DISTINCTION

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh lefthander Bob Veale had the dual distinction of fanning the most men in the National League last year (250) and also walking the most (124).

RECEIVING AWARDS at the recent Newellton High School football banquet were: left to right, fullback Edwin Preis, guard Larry Foster and halfback Paul Williams. Preis and Williams tied for the Outstanding Back award while Foster was honored as the Outstanding Lineman. Preis, named on the Louisiana Sports Writers Association All-State Class B team, also was named the Most Valuable Player on the 1964 Newellton team. He was also an honorable mention choice on the 17th annual Prep All-America team by the Wigwam Wisemen of America. Houston Oiler flanker Charley Hennigan was the featured speaker at the banquet.

Tribe Trackmen Return To State

Northeast State's trackmen, who have performed indoors for track fans from Boston to California but never in their home state, finally get the chance this week.

The Indians will compete in the first annual Graduate "N" Club Indoor Invitational at Northwestern State Saturday night.

Northwestern's new Prather Coliseum will be the scene of the meet. The spacious coliseum boasts excellent facilities for indoor track with asphalt composition and banked wooden surfaces. It is believed to be the first hard-surfaced inside track facility in the state.

Northeast and the University of Houston head the list of team entries in the meet.

Coach Bob Groseclose's Indian team has already participated in one indoor meet, tying for first place with Florida State in the independent division of the Coliseum Relays in Montgomery, Ala., last weekend.

Also, several individuals and relay teams have competed in pre-season meets. NAIA high hurdle champion Roger Morgan has won four out of six preseason hurdle events and was scheduled to compete in the National AAU Indoor Championships Saturday night. The Indian sprint relay team won the 400-meter relay in the Sugar Bowl and several other Redskins picked up seconds and thirds in pre-season competition.

In last week's Coliseum Relays, Morgan and sprinter Dalton LeBlanc took the only firsts for Northeast but Indians placed in six other events to score 34 points for a share of first.

Morgan took the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.4 and LeBlac took the 60-yard dash in 6.2.

Ronnie Fountain, the Gulf States Conference 100-yard dash champ, was second behind LeBlanc and Roger Mann, GSC high hurdles winner last year, trailed Morgan. Mike Tabor was fourth in the dash.

Freshman Bobby Keasler was third in the 1000-yard run and Bill White came in fourth in the mile.

Northeast's relay teams both came in second, the mile foursome of LeBlanc, Fred Vogel, Fountain and Willis Delhomme and the two-mile quartet of Keasler, Jim Bodin, Robert Harvison and Billy Butler both trailing Florida State teams.

In the field events, Northeast unveiled a rookie who could be its best high jumper in years and two good vaulters.

Jack McDougall of LaPlace went 6-4 for third in the high jump. His leap was the best by an Indian since the days of Bill McDonald, who set the school record of 6-6¾ back in 1957. McDougall also finished fourth in the broad jump.

In the vault, sophomore Paul Hobgood and freshman John Linta both cleared 14-0, Linta gaining second on fewer misses and Hobgood coming in third.

Northeast also picked up a win in the freshmen division hurdles in 7.4 and LeBlanc took the 60-yard dash in 6.5.

Events in the Natchitoches meet this week will be the 60-yard dash and high hurdles, the the 440, 880, mile and two-mile, four-lap and mile relays, vault, high jump, broad jump and shot put. Each lap is 176 yards.

Following the indoor meet, Northeast will begin its outdoor campaign at home March 6 in a dual meet with Memphis State.

The March 6 meet is the first of three home meets for the Indians, the most in several years. Also slated in Monroe is an April 20 dual meeting with Northwestern and the third annual Northeast Invitational May 1.

Southwestern, Louisiana Tech, McNeese and East Texas will be the visiting teams in the Northeast Invitational.

The Northeast schedule:

Feb. 27 — Graduate "N" Club Invitational (Indoors), Natchitoches, La.

March 6—Memphis State Dual Meet, Monroe.

March 13—All-College Meet, Commerce, Tex.

March 20—Shreveport Relays, Shreveport, La.

March 27—Memphis Relays, Memphis, Tenn. or Florida Relays, Gainsville, Fla.

April 3 — Mississippi State Dual Meet Starkville, Miss.

April 10—Southwestern Relays, Lafayette, La.

April 14—Northwestern Relays, Natchitoches, La.

April 20—Northwestern Dual Meet, Monroe.

April 27 — Triangular Meet east), Ruston, La.

May 1—Northeast Invitational (Southwestern, La. Tech, McNeese, East Texas, Northeast), Monroe.

May 8 — Gulf States Conference Meet, Natchitoches, La.

Grambling Trims Arkansas With Frazier's Goal

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Grambling's Wilbert Frazier dunked the winning basket just before the buzzer sounded to give Grambling a 104 - 102 victory over Arkansas AM&N Saturday night.

The Southwestern Conference teams were tied at 102-102 with 40 seconds left. Grambling controlled the ball and then took a time out with four seconds to go.

Frazier, who was high man with 37 points, then scored on an out of bounds play. Harold Blezins had 28 for Arkansas AM&N, which led 62-60 at halftime.

Grambling is 17-4 and 7-4 in the SWAC. Arkansas AM&N is 19-4 and 7-4.

Lee, Sterlington Take Divisions

Rocky Smith dropped in 18 markers, and earned the most valuable award, while leading Lee to a 38 - 28 victory over Logtown for the championship of the Good Shepherd cage tournament Saturday night.

Sterlington downed Logtown, 35 - 28 in the girls title game with Hemphill hitting 14 for the winners and Tyler 13 for Sterlington.

Woodlawn defeated Okaloosa, 38 - 28 for third place in the boys division with Swartz taking third in the girls division with a 28-8 victory over host Good Shepherd.

Sayers Selected

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas was named Saturday to play for the West in the fifth annual All-America football game June 26 in War Memorial Stadium.

Sayers, a 196-pounder, has signed to play professionally with the National Football League's Chicago Bears.

LOW-CEILING WILT CHAMBERLAIN

Something Special About Grambling's Ace Forward

By COLLIE J. NICHOLSON
Grambling Publicity Director

GRAMBLING — Even to the uninitiated, there is something special about Wilbur Frazier, the graceful Grambling College forward who suggests a sort of low-ceiling Wilt Chamberlain.

Frazier stands 6-9 in stovepipe trousers and represents a lot of things to different people. He is the king of Southwestern Athletic Conference performers and stimulates thought wherever the Tigers Appear.

Around Grambling — a scratching basketball hotbed — his artful court maneuvers are considered pure art form. Few, if any, observers who have watched him assault the basket remain stonily impassive.

Pro scouts, with shrewed eyes for talent, rate Frazier and Olympian Bill Bradley of Princeton University "The best looking professional prospects in the country."

He has given substance to the statement by scoring 603 points, his every move is attuned to prefection and he handles a basketball at times as if the sport were a one-man game.

The Minden senior is being avidly courted by New York, Baltimore, Detroit, Los Angeles, St. Louis and San Francisco of the National Basketball Association.

Jim Hall, cigar-smoking sports editor of the Louisiana Weekly, tartly notes that "Frazier brings out the Tiger in teammates and the semi-domesticated cat in female fans."

Frazier has earned the same kind of respect, adulation and prise heaped on ex-Grambling star Willis Reed a year ago. Like Reed, he is taking the success calmly and without conceit.

Considered singly and regarded in the light of potentials, Coach Fred Hobdy calls Frazier "A better all-round player than Reed."

That's quite a tribute since Reed is averaging 18.4 points per game with the New York Knicks. He is a top candidate for Rookie-of-the-Year honors in the NBA.

"Frazier and Reed are both complete basketball players." Hobdy intoned, "But Frazier has abounding composure and seemingly inexhaustible ability to rise to the occasion whatever the situation demands."

Pound for pound, Hobdy avows that Frazier is in a class by himself. "He improves with every game and the scoring chart does not reflect his value to our club."

Grambling, a small-college basketball power, has a 17-5 record. Frazier can rebound, defense, score, pass and even dribble when necessary.

At 220-pounds, Wilbur is big enough to take care of himself, and he has the reflexes and the instinct for making the big plays when the chips are down.

Last spring he proved his mettle in the Olympic trials in New York where he drew praise from subtle eastern writers.

Performing with the NAIA All-Stars, he cavorted in a manner that convincingly established him as one of the nation's top stars.

Coach Hobdy publicly calls him "The best college forward in the country. He would be an All-America anywhere." The coach said.

Russell, Buntin Spark Michigan Past Ohio State

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Cazzie Russell and Bill Buntin led a driving Michigan attack as the nationally top-ranked Wolverines completely outclassed Ohio State 100-61 in a Big Ten conference basketball game Saturday.

The victory kept Michigan ahead of the conference race with a 9-0 record and put its over-all record at 17-20. Ohio State fell to 2-7 in the Big Ten.

Michigan outrebounded and outshot the Buckeyes by a wide margin, outclassed them on the floor and in controlling the ball on jumps.

The Wolverines looked a little shaky the first few minutes, then raced away. They led by 46-30 at intermission and by more than 30 points most of the last half.

Russell scored 16 points in the first half and 10 in the second for a total of 26. Buntin also scored 16 in the first half and ended with 20.

The rugged Buntin played a classy game under the boards and on the floor, snaring a total of 18 rebounds. Michigan had 69 rebounds to 43 for Ohio State.

Ron Sepich led Ohio State scorers with 15 points.

Holovak Gets Raise

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots of the American Football League announced Saturday that Coach Mike Holovak has signed a new five-year contract at a substantial increase in salary. No figures were revealed.

Bayou Bourg Is Racing Winner At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bayou Bourg, who usually favors the mud, raced to a one-half length victory over a fast track in Saturday's running of the $18,550 A. B. Letellier Memorial Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Then the 6-year-old stallion, ridden by Jockey William Peake, survived a foul claim to collect the winner's purse of $13,300 for his owner — Charles E. Nicholas, a Dillon, Mont., banker.

Bayou Bourg broke in front a few yards out of the gate and stayed there throughout the one mile and a furlong race.

Jockey Leroy Moyers, who rode second-finishing Dutch Greek, charged Peake with an infraction. But the stewards did not allow the foul claim.

Mrs. Joe W. Brown's I Owe, the 7-5 favorite of the 13,439 bettors, finished third, two lenghts behind Dutch Greek, after breaking last in the nine-horse field.

Marion Takes District Crown With 90-65 Win

LINVILLE (Special) — Marion won the district 3-B championship by defeating Sterlington, 90-65, behind a well balanced scoring attack here Saturday night.

The Panthers, who upped their season record to 38-1, had five men to hit in double figures, with All-State candidate Bennett Taylor leading the way with 43 points. The other four Marion players to hit in double-digits were: Bobby Reagan and Gary Crow with 13 each, Lum Farr with 10 and Gray Taylor with 11.

David Stuart led Sterlington scorers by netting 20 points.

Marion now starts into the state playoffs, hosting Bonita Friday night. Bonita was runner-up to district 4-B champion Pioneer. Sterlington will meet Pioneer at a date to be announced.

Park Planned At D'Arbonne

With Sam Hanna

State's Master Plan

The State Parks & Recreation Commission has under consideration a 300-acre park at Lake D'Arbonne that would be developed with state and federal funds under the new Federal Land and Water Conservation Act.

This is the first proposed park in Louisiana — that we know of — under the new federal program passed by Congress last year.

Mrs. Ada Gruber, a commission member from West Monroe, says the park will be discussed by the commission at its next meeting, March 9th, in conjunction with a master plan for outdoor recreation.

This means that the commission is conducting a master plan to apply for federal funds under the Land and Water Conservation Act, which provides matching funds for projects like the D'Arbonne park.

An estimate of the D'Arbonne park is not known at this moment, but it would be financed on a 50-50 basis between the state and federal governments.

Mrs. Gruber says the commission will go to the Legislature in the May fiscal session with an appropriation for matching funds. Over $1-million in federal funds will be available in Louisiana next year.

Other states are taking a look at the federal program also.

Tennessee, for example, could get an additional 60 to 70 state parks under a $6-million federal-state program proposed by Gov. Frank Clement, who has asked the Tennessee Legislature to approve $4½ million in state funds over the next two years for development of state parks.

Tennessee may be in a position to apply for federal funds under the new program by July.

In Louisiana, Mrs. Gruber says the commission's master plan has to be presented to the U. S. Department of the Interior by April 1st for the government's approval.

This plan should pinpoint the state's proposed outdoor development plans to meet the government's satisfaction if federal funds are to be made available to Louisiana.

Louisiana lawmakers will be asked to match the federal funds.

At D'Arbonne, the Lake Commission will have to assist the state in obtaining land for the 300-acre park, which would be located on the new man-made lake with sewage facilities, picnic areas, barbecue pits, boat ramps, a beach for swimmers and camping areas.

It would become a state-operated park like the Lake Bruin Park, which was developed with local and state funds as the Tensas Parish Police Jury paved the way.

Mrs. Gruber pointed out that the D'Arbonne park also is being worked on by the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission as well as the Department of Public works.

After talking to L. C. Allen, the new chairman of the D'Arbonne Lake Commission, it is apparent that the residents around Farmerville are somewhat cautious on the idea of using federal funds for the development of the lake.

He pointed out, however, that the federal funds already have been used in the development of the lake — namely in the construction of public boat launching ramps.

It's also apparent that the hour arrived sooner than expected for local people to make a decision on accepting or rejecting federal funds for outdoor recreation.

Surveys On Seasons

The Wild Life & Fisheries Commission is using the questionnaire method to determine hunter success for the various seasons.

For instance, a recent survey on the past three dove splits came up with interesting results. By contacting about 5,000 telephone subscribers, the commission estimated that 944,400 doves were bagged during the three-part hunting season.

Most of the doves were killed during the September season (405,500 doves), followed by 302,800 doves during the October - November split and 236,100 doves for the December - January split.

These are estimates, of course, but they do show that more interest is shown in September for dove hunting. By the December season, most hunters are seeking other game.

Now the commission has mailed questionnaires to about 6,000 hunters to determine an estimate on the number of deer killed during the 1964-65 season. Last year the commission estimated the kill at 24,100.

The purpose of obtaining this information is to assist in establishing future seasons.

Arkansas already has produced its deer kill for the last season, reporting 1,148 deer killed during the third deer hunting period of December 31-January 2nd. If memory serves us correctly, the total for all three Arkansas splits ran around 28,000.

But Arkansas didn't have but 15 days in three splits.

At any rate the commission in Louisiana feels that the questionnaire method will give an estimate of the Louisiana kill. With hunter cooperation, we still believe the tagging system would work best.

Cheniere Lake Project

When the Ouachita Wildlife Unit meets Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Penn Resort Hotel, the proposed expansion of Cheniere Lake will be discussed. A. P. Andrews, assistant district engineer from the Department of Public Works, will be present to answer questions.

The club's board of directors decided to resume its pursuit of the Cheniere project, which was first mentioned two or three years ago without success. It's our understanding that about 2,000 acres would be added to the parish - owned lake by using a new roadway of the Jonesboro Road as a dam.

Whether this could be done has not been officially determined, but the Department of Public Works has done some work on it already.

Andrews will attend the meeting to answer any question from interested parties. The meeting will be open to the public.

Because of a convention at the Virginia Hotel, the club will meet in the Green Room at the Penn Resort Hotel. If you're interested in Cheniere, come on out.

Little Man's Corner

The weather was fine, now that the bird season has ended, and the little men made news afield.

Black Bayou has been producing its share of the white perch catches made mostly early in the morning or late in the afternoon. Jack McMullen and Henry Beckley of Monroe landed 18.

Another local angler, H. L. Statham caught a string of three bass, including a 5-pounder, and six specs. Pete Shambro, also of Monroe, landed 13 specs, including one that weighed 2-lb., 2-oz. while Jack Wigley and Warren Holley caught 16 white perch.

But the best catch was reported by Tom Ross, Ed West and Buddy Jarrell. They landed 55 specs. One string weighed more than 50 pounds.

They're using shiners.

Biggest bass catch, however, was reported down at Winnsboro where Dr. Ralph King landed a 10-lb., 5-oz. bass in his 22-acre pond — the one you see between Winnsboro and Chase. He was fishing with gold shiners on a cane pole.

Dr. King also landed an 8-lb., 6-oz. bass there about two weeks ago.

Another interesting feat came to our attention about 14-year-old Hughes Abell who enjoyed a great day afield back during the duck season. Hughes went out in the morning and shot his limit of ducks and returned that afternoon to his home on Bayou DeSiard to land a 6¼-pound bass. He's the son of the Nelson Abells.

And youngster Larry Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper, landed a 6½-pound bass. Now he's showing pop how.

In the Ferriday area, Blackie Vanya and W. G. Brock of Ridgecrest caught the limit of white perch in Lake St. John. From Monroe, Arnold Appleby and Jake Goodman also got the limit in Old River Lake.

We visited the Marion Civic Club last Monday night at Marion in Union Parish and from all the reports we heard at the meeting that area has to be one of the best for outdoorsmen.

Dan Green, who interested us with stories of how bird hunting used to be, killed a buck just outside Marion during the last season. He also told us that two bucks were killed inside the city limits of Marion.

Marion, of course, is located in the heart of the pine hills where the deer population is building and will continue to build if Union Parish can get enough game wardens to protect the game.

And, Clarence Sehon, a bird hunter, passed on a bird hunting report which we heard all year. Lost of birds, but wild.

Dan Green also says it won't be long until the catalpa worm fishing will be good around Alabama Landing.

First foal of Indian Maid, sired by Nashua, is called Naidni Diam. That's Indian Maid spelled backwards and she's a 2-year-old filly at Hialeah.

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — The new Dennis Ralston, pleasant instead of petulant, slammed into the finals of the National Indoor Tennis Championships Saturday with a systematic 6-1, 9-7, 8-6 victory over unseeded Ron Holmberg of Dallas.

The top-ranking U.S. Davis Cup ace from Bakersfield, Calif., will meet the winner of the match between Jan-Erik Lundqust of Sweden and 18-year-old Cliff Richey of Dallas in televised title match at Salisbury's Civic Center.

A crowd of 3,500 saw Ralston, an intense court tiger, cut down the paunchy, despectacled Holmberg with a slashing big service and net attack.

After losing the first game to Homberg's service, Ralston reeled off six games in a row for the first set in 21 minutes.

Holmberg played loosely and fell into the kind of casual errors that kept him from being one of the world's best despite a world of talent.

The former Brooklyn player, now a hotel man in Texas, raised his game for the second set and it took all of Ralston's court finesse and strategy to pull it out in the 16th with the lone service break of the set.

The third set produced most of the excitement, with Holmberg fighting back from 3-5 after losing his service twice in a row, the second time on a double-fault at game point.

Ralston had three match points in the 12th game of the third set, pending 6-5 and 40-0 on Holmberg's service. But Holmberg staved off defeat with a series of blinding services.

The delay was short. Ralston finally clinched in the 14th game, getting the advantage on Homberg's service with sharp, angled returns and then scoring the winning point with a backhand down the line.

Dennis went 27 games before he finally lost his service, Holmberg breaking in the fifth game of the third set.

Ralston, 24, once the fiery tempered bad boy of American tennis, became a crowd favorite with his occasional spontaneous and boyish antics.

The lean, crew-cut Californian, most of the time an intense competitor, frequently broke the tension by yelling tirades at himself.

Georgia Wrecks Yellow Jackets With 91-66 Win

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) Georgia, led by junior Jerry Waller with 30 points, knocked Georgia Tech out of the National Invitation Tournament bid with a strong 91-66 basketball victory Saturday night.

Waller, playing for the first time since injuring an ankle against Tech in Atlanta more than a week ago, came on strong in the second half when the Bulldogs maintained leads of from 15 to 20 points.

The victory was the largest margin in the history of the Tech-Georgia basketball series. It gave the Bulldogs a 2-1 edge this season.

A capacity crowd in excess of 11,000 viewed the game which gave Georgia its eighth victory of the season.

In the second half, Jimmy Pitts started the Georgia scoring from the corner and before the Jackets could get a basket, the Bulldogs scored 12 straight points and led 46-30 with 16:50 remaining.

From this point on, the Bulldogs kept their big lead with a fast-breaking game run by Lee Martin and Pitts.

With 10:38, Martin hit two free throws and Georgia was ahead 60-40. Tech narrowed it to 68-53 with 5:20 left and Coach Rex Frederick sent in his reserves who had considerable success and increased the lead to 25 points-the final margin.

Ole Miss Plays Alabama In '65

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)— The University of Mississippi unveiled its 1965 football schedule Saturday with a lone newcomer.

The new series will pit Ole Miss against Alabama, beginning Oct. 2 in Birmingham. The engagement brings to eight the number of Southeastern Conference games the Rebels will play, their heaviest SEC schedule ever.

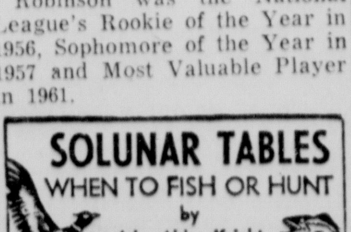
Tampa was dropped from the new schedule. Other games will be played with Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Vanderbilt, Florida, Tulane, Tennessee, Mississippi State, Auburn and Houston.

Signs Contract

CINCINNATI (AP) — Outfielder Frank Robinson, figured as the highest-paid Cincinnati Reds player, agreed Saturday to contract terms for the 1965 baseball season for a salary estimated at upwards of $40,000.

In nine years with the Reds, Robinson has compiled a career batting average of .304. Last season he hit .306.

Robinson was the National League's Rookie of the Year in 1956, Sophomore of the Year in 1957 and Most Valuable Player in 1961.



The solunar periods, during which there is maximum fish and wildlife activity, are printed below. Major periods began at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours. Minor periods are shorter.

TUCSON OPEN

Charles Fires 67, Leads Meet By 5

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Lanky Bob Charles fired his third straight brilliant round, a five-under-par 67, Saturday to give him a five-stroke advantage going into today's final of the $46,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

With a round to go today, Charles had a 54-hole total of 201 and Geiberger a 206.

The 28-year-old New Zealander pulled away from second round challengers Tom Shaw and Jim Ferriell, but veteran Al Geiberger replaced the youngsters as chief contender.

Geiberger shot a 66 to knock six strokes off par and put him 10 under for the tournament.

Tommy Jacobs also carded a 66 to move into contention at 207, nine strokes under par.

Bert Weaver, with a 68, and Linel Hebert, with a 69, were tied at 208. Dick Sikes was one stroke back at 209 and another stroke behind him were Bill Casper Jr., and Lou Graham, a rookie from Nashville, Tenn., back at 211. He had 71 Saturday. who fired 66.

British Open champ Tony Lema was still another stroke back at 211. He had 71 Saturday.

Shaw shot a 74 and also stood at 211. Ferriell, who had two previous rounds of 69, soared to an 80 and dropped 17 strokes off the pace.

Charles, the 1963 British Open champion and the only lefty ever to win a U.S. pro tournament, preceded his 67 with rounds of 65 and 69 on the Tucson National Golf Club course, a 7,200-yard desert layout with giant greens.

Charles' 65 Thursday gave him a first round lead, and he has been in command since. He threatens to become the first man to score a wire-to-wire tournament win since Dan Sikes did it in the Sahara Invitational last October.

Charles, who hadn't three-putted a green in six previous competitive rounds, waited until the 18th hole to do it Saturday. He sent his first putt from 40 feet about seven feet past the pin and missed coming back.

For the first time in the tourney he missed a green. His tee shot on the ninth hole strayed into the rough and landed next to a small tree.

"I might have sliced the ball up on the green with a wood," he said. "But I decided to play it safe and it an iron up in front of the green."

From there he chipped to within five feet of the cup and holed his putt for a par 4.

Weber Wins

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Dick Weber easily downed fellow St. Louisian Nelson Burton Jr. Saturday for the championship of the Professional Bowlers Association Thunderbird Open.

Weber came into the tournament as the leading money winner this year in the PBA, and the $5,000 first place prize money boosted his earnings over the $23,000 mark.

Indiana Checks Badgers' Attack For 100-87 Win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana checked a late drive by Wisconsin and beat the Badgers 100-87 in a Big Ten basketball game Saturday afternoon.

The Hoosiers, looking ragged after their double overtime loss to Michigan Monday night, led all the way but saw their margin shrink from 24 points to seven as they turned cold late in the second half. They were in front 50-34 at halftime.

Dick VanArsdale led Indiana with 26 points, hitting 10 of 20 shots from the field and six free throws without a miss. Tom Van Arsdale added 23 points on nine of 16 and five of 11 and hit a field goal at the buzzer to round out the 100 total.

Indiana led all the way after breaking a 2-2 tie. The Hoosiers piled up their biggest margin at 75-71 with 13:19 to play.

Ken Barnes led the Badgers with 18 points on nine of 15 shots from the field, missing his one free throw.

The victory gave Indiana a 6-3 record in the Big Ten and 16-3 for the season. Wisconsin dropped to 1-8 and 7-12.

OUACHITA MOSAIC

Have You Noticed The Change In Patterns Of Monroe?

By ROBERT SIMONTON
Staff Writer

Have you noticed the changes in patterns of the Monroe mosaic?

It seems that buildings with spires and towers will soon be just memories.

The old central grammar school across from the parish court house is rapidly disappearing. The proposed park for this location will be a definite asset for the city, however. There is something extremely attractive about downtown areas that have parks in the midst of their hustle and bustle.

Soon the old city hall on St. John, with its quaint tower, will be vacated in favor of the new civic center.

The Methodist Church at the corner of Jackson and Wood is up for sale because the congregation decided to relocate. Time will tell what will take the place of this church, with its attractive spire.

Already gone from the scene in West Monroe is the old city hall.

WRITERS MEETING

Mrs. Christine Hutts, president of the Northeast Branch of the Louisiana Poetry Society, reports that members of that organization are now busily preparing manuscripts for entry in the Deep South Writer's Conference to be held in Lafayette in June.

The local poetry society meets four times each year, but is divided into two smaller groups which have a workshop every other week.

She said any person interested in poetry is eligible to join.

Besides submitting poems in competition, members are being urged to work on writings in other categories.

Some members have had poems published in magazines and several have had as many as two books of poetry published.

The group will have a display of published books at the Columbia Arts Festival this year.

All branches of poetry society in the state meet in Baton Rouge once a year for a poetry festival.

ART FESTIVAL

A number of outstanding events have been lined up for the 1965 Mississippi Arts Festival at Jackson, May 7-10.

Headlining the event will be pianist Van Cliburn.

Other attractions will be the Jackson Symphony Pops Orchestra and League Youth Concerts, Little Theatre Children's plays, college one-act plays, hootenannies, and Night Theatre, including drama, opera and ballet.

Ticket information may be obtained by writing Mississippi Arts Festival, P.O. Box 10091, Northside Station, Jackson, Miss.

NEW ORLEANS

Five artists have been signed for the 1965 New Orleans Summer Pops series during June and July. They are opera stars Charles Anthony and Marguerite Piazza, Pete Fountain and his Jazz Festival, Frankie Laine and Tito Guizar. For information write New Orleans Summer Pops, 203 Gallier Hall, New Orleans, La.

LIBRARY

Mack E. Barham, judge of the Fourth Judicial District, will serve as chairman of the Ouachita Parish committee to plan the observance of National Library Week here, April 25-May 1.

Miss Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish librarian, will serve as vice chairman.

The committee, made up of business men, civic-minded women and professional librarians, will meet Thursday at 5 p.m. at the Louis Locke Room of the library on Stubbs to map plans.

MOST POPULAR

Don't look now, but the "neanderthal group" (better known as the "Pacemakers") has displaced the Beatles as England's most popular vocal-and-instrumental group. Since the pace making for this type modern music seems to be in the British Isles, perhaps this group will also do some displacing on this side of the Atlantic.

U.S. SOCIETY

There is much support throughout the country for a proposed national humanities foundation.

Dr. John L. Snell, professor of modern European history and dean of the graduate school at Tulane, said it is needed to balance the scales of today which are tipped in favor of science and technology.

The national commission on the humanities defines the humanities as "the study of language, literature, history and philosophy. the history, criticism and theory of art and music; the history and comparisons of religions and law; and the creative and performing arts."

A bill to create a national humanities foundation, HR 12406, is now before congress.

Snell said in this era of man's inhumanity to man, America's leadership of the free world must stand on "things of the spirit."

FLAMENCO

Regarded as the leading proponents of purest Spanish flamenco, the Jose Molina troupe, will perform their Bailes Espanoles at Neville High School auditorium Monday at 8:15 p.m. The group is sponsored by the Northeast State Concerts Association.

NEW SIGN

Some benevolent souls would be doing a good cultural deed if they would donate a much-needed new sign for the Ouachita Valley Museum on St. John. The sign now hanging (?) outside the building is hardly sufficient to proclaim the really interesting momentos housed within its walls. The Ouachita Valley Historical Society has done well to afford the area the opportunity of looking into the yesteryear — but let's hope for a new sign, and soon, shall we?

TOGETHERNESS IN SICKNESS AND HEALTH

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Three farm neighbors of near Burrton, Kan., wonder if they carried their neighborliness too far.

Mrs. Mabel Fryar and Mrs. Ed Baughman shared a Hutchinson hospital room when they became ill. Harold Stalcup, the third neighbor, occupied the room next door.

Just like on the farm, the three shared a hospital telephone line.

Negro In GOP Wants New Sign Hung On Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, a Negro, urged Republicans on Saturday to take down the "outsiders not wanted" sign and launch a drive for racial equality in the South.

Without naming Barry Goldwater, the party's top elected Negro official rejected the GOP presidential nominee's brand of conservatism and called on Republicans to join in "a new beginning."

"We've got to not only take down the sign 'outsiders not wanted,' but we've got to put up the sign, "All are welcome to the Republican party,' " Brooke told conservative-minded young Republicans at a political training school.

Brooke drew murmurs of dissent when he charged Republicans turned their back on civil rights in 1964 in a gamble for white backlash votes.

"The Republican party was on the wrong side of the civil rights issue — the Social Security issue — the nuclear weapons issue," he said. "We gave them the wrong choice when we had an obligation to give them a constructive alternative."

Brooke said the GOP was branded with what he called the stigma of pseudo-conservatism.

"The true conservative in my opinion wants to profit by the past, not live in the past," he said.

Republicans, he said, must offer solutions to the nation's problems — and he borrowed a phrase from President Johnson when he put it in these words: "Everyone wants to enjoy the things that our great society has to offer."

"It doesn't matter whether you're called a conservative or a liberal," Brooke said, "if you talk their language, you solve their problems, you give them hope, you will win elections."

Brooke told a news conference Republicans must offer "proof positive" of their commitment to equal rights. He called for racial integration of Republican branches in Southern states, and said GOP leaders there should become identified with Negro aspirations, in voter registration and other fields.

Then, he said, the party should strive to achieve racial equality through its influence at the local level in the South.

Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe said the party should take a far stronger stand on civil rights than does the current national platform.

The World For WOMEN

February 21, 1965

Looking over the scrapbook containing records of past events and accomplishments of the Monroe Junior Charity League are four of the 19 new provisionals. They are from left to right, Mrs. Bill Mahaffey, Mrs. Walter Hastings, Mrs. Alton R. Irwin and Mrs. William C. Staab.

Pictured on the patio of the Jesse McDonald home on Lakeside Drive, at a coffee introducing provisionals to the league membership are these four of the selected group from left to right, Mrs. B. G. Wardlaw, Mrs. James Dennis, Mrs. William Hardy and Mrs. Elton Upshaw Jr.

Junior Charity League Provisionals

Nineteen new provisionals have been chosen by the Monroe Junior Charity League to begin a year's training period during which they will take a provisional's course and work in all phases of the league's projects before induction into active membership. Provisionals pictured here were introduced to league membership at a coffee held in the home of the president, Mrs. Jesse McDonald on Lakeside Drive. Active volunteer service to the community is the backbone of the Junior Charity League, which also contributes financial assistance through various projects. Among their philanthropic undertakings the league provides milk funds for underprivileged children, layettes for Charity hospital and the gathering of clothes for needy children. Members also provide volunteer service to the Cerebral Palsy school, Cooley School for Mentally retarded children and Crippled Children's Clinic as well as participating in the YWCA program. Scholarships are provided to Northeast Louisiana State College and a remedial reading school was organized by the league which also works with the Art Museum and Northeast Concerts Association. This year the group plans to donate two additional paintings to the art collection it provided for benefit of the public at Ouachita Parish Public Library.

MISS ANNE PUTNAM CROSS

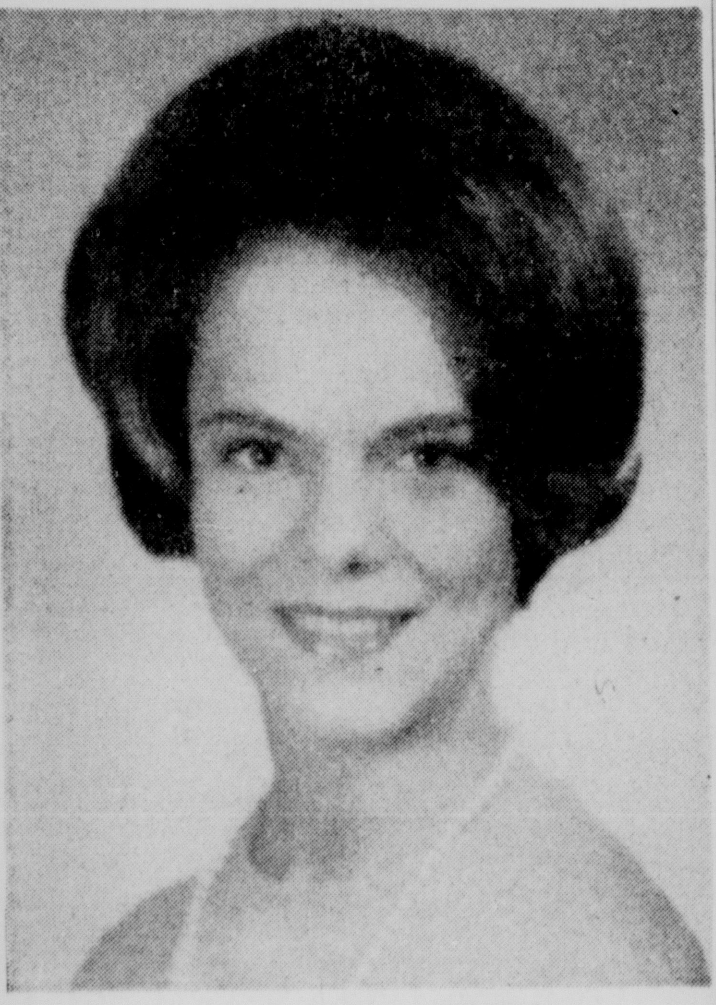
Miss Anne Putnam Cross To Be June Bride Of William King Stubbs Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. Wilford Oakland Cross of Nashotah House, Nashotah, Wisconsin announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Putnam Cross to William King Stubbs Jr. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William King Stubbs, 2106 Island Drive, Monroe.

The wedding is planned for the afternoon of June 5 to be solemnized in Zion Episcopal Church, Oconomowoc, Wisconsin.

Miss Cross, whose father is professor of Moral Theology and Ethics at Nashotah Seminary, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Wilcox of Durham, Connecticut and the late Reverend and Mrs. William Cross of Potomac, Illinois. She is a graduate of Hollins College, Roanoke, Virginia, where she received her B. A. degree in the class of 1963, and is presently employed with an advertising firm in New Orleans.

The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. James Quarles Graves and the late Dr. Graves of Monroe and of Mrs. Guyton Palmer Stubbs and the late Mr. Stubbs of Monroe. A second year student at Tulane University School of Medicine, Mr. Stubbs, was graduated from Princeton University, Princeton, New Jersey, where he received his B. A. degree in 1963. At Princeton he was a member of the University Cottage Club.



MISS REBECCA HOLT JOHNSTONE

Trimble-Johnstone Vows Calendared For June 5

Announcement is made today of the engagement of Miss Rebecca Holt Johnstone, daughter of Mrs. Charles Albert Lesene Johnstone of Mobile, Alabama and the late Mr. Johnstone to William Bradley Trimble Jr., Lieutenant (j.g.) USNR, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William Bradley Trimble of Monroe.

The wedding is calendared for June 5 at 5 p.m. in Trinity Epsicopal Church, Mobile. The father of the bridegroom, who is rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe, will officiate, assisted by the bride's uncle, the Rev. David Holt, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Ocean Springs, Miss.

Miss Johnstone was graduated from Murphy high school in Mobile and will receive her degree in June from H. Sophie Newcomb College, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classics fraternity, and Angel Flight, the Air Force ROTC sponsor group. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Holt and the late Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Johnstone, all of Mobile.

Mr. Trimble's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Everett Finch of Malvern, Ark., and Mrs. Charles Nelson Trimble Sr., and the late Mr. Trimble of El Dorado, Ark. Joseph Finch Trimble will be his brother's best man. Groomsmen will include William Fields Bailey Jr., Dothan, Ala., Waller Thomas Burns, Houston; Dean Foerster Echols, New Orleans; Yerger Inge Johnstone, Mobile and Edgar Adam Uden, Nashville.

Fashion Gets Glitter Complex

Watch gold and silver as they continue to add more sparkle to the fashion scene.

Metallic streaked cottons, not seen for some time, may be making a return, as are golden and silver footwear and gleaming Oriental and Spanish shawls.

Leather On The Loose In New Spring Apparel

NEW YORK — Look out. Leather is on the loose this spring — in an apparel collection that flows with ease, elegance and fashion excitement.

Women like clothes they can don and forget, but others will remember. The beautiful leather jackets, coats, suits, dresses and separates sauntering through spring fill the bill admirably, notes Leather Industries of America. The lines have life; the leathers — smooth, grained, suede, embossed — are supple but strong, easily worked into a fluid series of garments that say "freedom" to every woman and "female" to every man.

New leather coats and dresses have a structural simplicity that scorns ornamentation. In the softest suedes and creamiest grained leathers, elegant coats are seen in short and shorter - still lengths. Cut to curve lightly to the body, they nevertheless allow for striding room. Many are double-breasted or have interesting side closings. Saddle - stitching, two-tone or leather themes, and widened necklines keep styling details spare and smart.

With Spring '65 saluting fashions "on the move," you can put yourself in high gear and high style with a new leather dress. Simple but smashing is the "Courreges" dress, a slim stalk of smooth or suede leather with dropped waistline, short short sleeves and above - the - knee hemline. Perfect accompaniment to this dress is a contrasting leather coat plus matching leather boots. Both one and two-piece leather frocks follow this trend — trim short sleeves, sleek lines, kneecap lengths.

You may also dress up for spring in the leather blouson. The gently puffed top attaches at below - waist level to its short full skirt. Whichever leather dress is your love, you can find it in your favorite shade. Colors to suit any female's fancy are on tap: delectable pastels, bigger - than - ever white, gold, navy, lighter - than - navy, red.

For a suit that's trim and tailored yet as feminine as a powder puff, try leather

'Mod' or 'Ye-Ye' Look Favored New Silhouettes

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Sometimes all a fashion trend needs to get widespread acceptance is a catchy name. That's the case with a new young casual trend out of London and Paris. It's been around at least a couple of years, but when the London look was tagged "mod" and the Paris look was called "ye-ye," the American young crowd began snapping it up everywhere.

Just what is mod and ye-ye fashion? First of all, the silhouette is always easy. It may be straight, it may be blouson, it may be low - waisted, it may be skimmer. Second, the hemlines vary widely. If it's London mod, the hemline can well be as long as just above the ankle. If it's ye-ye, it will be as high as two inches above the knees.

Of course, designers seeking to interpret the look often sneak that hemline down to just - above knee length or even kneecap height, but below the knee it mustn't go unless it's to drop to at least mid - calf.

This simple silhouette, however, is trimmed in ways that dresses and suits haven't seen in a long while. We must remember that mod and ye-ye looks began with the older teen group, who have grown up in the era of plain, strict fashion. So they have fallen in love with all kinds of ornamentation.

The London mod, which is nothing but the shortened word "modern," goes all the way back to Victorian times for a demure, even granny look. Long sleeves, long jackets, white collars cut into every kind of shape, white cuffs, Victorian lace, ruffles, crochet and tatting, waistlines either Empire or down to the hip, differentiate the London mod look from the Paris ye - ye.

The ye - ye began with a very short - skirted blouson - top dress, the skirt being pleated for as much swing as possible. So the ye - ye look in dresses is flirty rather than demure. Otherwise, the Paris ye-ye has taken to American sportswear ideas with a vengeance, and these are coming back here in the Frenchified versions.

Important ye-ye details are hip - hugger cowboy pants, aviator's caps, ribbed sweaters with crochet sleeves, big industrial zippers on parkas, skirts, culottes, suit jackets, and a generally swagger air that is also related to another London group, the Rockers, who have otherwise had little influence on fashion.

The London mod look may be said to have begun with Mary Quant, whose deep - plunging Chelsea collar is becoming standard on many fashions not otherwise especially mod. Even Butterick patterns has a group of her clothes for home sewers, with the long granny dress, the demure low - waist dress to wear with high socks or tights.

In junior dress collections, such as that of Sue Brett, mod white collars on skimmers are combined with zip fronts, low kicky pleats from the ye-yes.

COMPLETING PLANS for silver teas in Monroe and West Monroe as a benefit for the Heart fund drive are from left to right, Mrs. J. Bennie Andrews, Mrs. Cy Epler, co-chairmen for the event; Frank McDermott, 1965 Heart Fund chairman for Ouachita Parish and Mrs. Irene Reid. The teas, planned for Sunday, February 28, will be held in the homes of Mrs. Irene Reid, Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Ike Hamilton, in West Monroe, from 3 until 5 p.m.

Silver Teas February 28 To Benefit Heart Fund

In observance of Heart Month during February the heart fund drive in the Twin Cities will be climaxed on Sunday, February 28 with two silver teas, planned simultaneously in Monroe and West Monroe, from 3 until 5 p.m.

The silver tea benefit in Monroe will be held at the home of Mrs. Irene Reid, 1621 Emerson, with a similar event planned in West Monroe at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Hamilton, 2025 Hicks Street, off Arkansas Road.

Heart drive co-chairmen are Mrs. Cy E. Epler for Monroe and Mrs. J. Bennie Andrews, West Monroe. Frank McDermott is 1965 Heart Fund chairman for Ouachita Parish.

Mrs. J. B. Kugler, Heart council member, will greet guests calling during the appointed tea hours at the home of Mrs. Reid, where Oriental decor prevails. Assisting Mrs. Reid with courtesies will be Mrs. Epler, Mrs. A. L. Dickerson and Mrs. A. K. Christensen, and alternating at the tea and coffee services throughout the afternoon will be Mrs. William King Stubbs, Mrs. Dewitt T. Milam, Mrs. J. C. Theus, Mrs. David Agnew Sr., Mrs. J. B. Thornhill, Mrs. M. Carey Thompson Jr., Mrs. Henry E. Guerriero and Mrs. Jack E. Pankey.

Assisting Mrs. Hamilton with courtesies as members of the planning committee will be Mrs. Bill Norris III, Mrs. Tex Kilpatrick and Mrs. Andrews. Receiving guests into the brick-floored Hamilton home, at the sunken living room will be Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Jack Dew, member at large of Ouachita Parish Heart Council; Miss Josephine Cascio, vice-president of the council; and Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett, secretary-treasurer of the council.

Mrs. Oscar Cloyd and Mrs. Dixie Ware will be hostesses in the den and pouring between the hours of 3 until 5 p.m. will be Mrs. Charles Chisholm, Mrs. F. C. McConnell, Mrs. A. J. Lester and Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr.

Dr. August Danti, president of Ouachita Parish Heart Council, Mr. McDermott, Pat Mitchell, field representative for for Louisiana Heart Association and Paul Goldman, member at large of the council, will assist in greeting guests and will answer any questions pertaining to the heart association.

Men, as well as women throughout the Twin Cities are invited to attend the teas and wives are urged to encourage their husbands attendance.

Couple Plans Vows In Texas

Forthcoming marriage of Miss Zola Bleer, daughter of Mrs. Nettie Bleer of Longview, Texas to G. E. Underwood Jr., son of Mrs. Ouida Underwood of West Monroe, is announced by her mother.

The wedding will take place Saturday, February 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the East Mountain Church of Christ. Dell Gage will be officiating minister.

After the wedding the couple will leave on a short wedding trip and will return to live in Longview, where Mr. Underwood is employed.

QUICK BANDAGE

Instead of discarding worn white socks, launder in hot suds, and cut off the toes. Then store them with your emergency kit to use as a ready-made bandage for a scraped or cut knee or elbow. Just pull the heel over the joint for a snug protective cover.

King Home Setting For Review Club

A spring atmosphere prevailed throughout the Ralph B. King Jr. home on Island Drive February 15 when Mrs. King was hostess to members of the Review Club. Arrangements of camellias were noted throughout the entertainment area.

Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., president, opened the meeting with a peom on "Finding Happiness," and the club collect was repeated in unison. Mrs. J. C. Loftin gave a talk on "Life in the Americas," presenting articles on Argentina, Brazil and Jamaica.

Mrs. N. R. Spencer, International Clubs chairman, presented an informative report on Radio Free Europe, expressing the feeling that whoever controls communications, controls the world.

In continuation of the year's theme of toward excellence - in various areas of life, Mrs. Loftin, member of the advisory board, introduced the afternoon's subject, "Toward Excellence in Our Daily Lives." She presented Mrs. George T. Walker, who reviewed "Don't Just Stand There," by Inez Robb, an author noted for her razor-sharp wit and a capacity to work up a storm of moral indignation.

Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., reviewed "Because I Was Flesh," by Edward Dahlberg, the story of the author's life and a portrait of his mother, who shaped it.

During the coffee hour that followed Mrs. Huenefeld presided at the coffee service in the formal dining room where assorted pastries were served to Mrs. James R. Brown, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. W. Tom Davis, Mrs. Calvin Folds, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr., Mrs. Noland Harvey Jr., Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Huenefeld, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. Lestar Martin, Mrs. Robert Powell, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. N. R. Spencer and Mrs. George T. Walker.

NLSC Club Entertained At Hootenanny

Gunby Dining Hall on Northeast Louisiana State College campus was scene of a hootenanny and potluck supper Monday night, February 15 for members of NLSC Women's Club, their husbands and families.

Hosts for the occasion included Dr. and Mrs. Frank Martin, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Whatley, co-chairmen; Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Adams, Mr. and Mrs. James Coats, Dr. and Mrs. John Goorley, Mr. and Mrs. Hope Tarver, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Woodrow Flanary, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Hurvie Moak, Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Harmon, Dr. Annie J. Deupree, Dr. and Mrs. Buckley Qualls and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Mitchell.

Each member brought a covered dish for the supper served buffet style from a table decorated with a crescent arrangement of pink roses. Approximately 104 members and guests attended the event.

Entertainment for the hootenanny, coordinated by Stan Wyatt Jr., was provided by Gary Fields, Marty Fisher, Sage Redding, Bobby Durham and Dwight Devine, all students at Northeast.

MRS. WILLIAM CHARLES WATSON JR.

Nancy Castleberry Weds William C. Watson Jr.

In a ceremony at 3 p.m. Sunday, February 14 in the First Baptist Church of Crossett, Miss Nancy Josephine Castleberry became the bride of William Charles Watson Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Neil Castleberry and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Talley Jr.

Rev. B. G. Hickem officiated at the exchange of vows, preceding which Miss Sue and Miss Mary Lucille Talley, sisters of the groom, lighted the candles. Mrs. Felton Taylor, organist and Miss Linda Ellis, soloist presented appropriate music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of slipper satin fashioned with fitted bodice and keyhole neckline accented with a medallion of Alencon lace. Long sleeves tapered to lily points over her hands. The modified bell skirt was designed with pleated fullness in the back with a chapel train sweeping from a self fabric rose at the waist. Her veil fell in tiers from a Queen Anne cap of satin roses centered at the forehead with a pearl drop. She carried the Bible belonging to the Delta Gamma Chapter at the University of Arkansas, on which rested a white orchid bouquet.

Miss Carol White was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Auvergne Weatherall of Pine Bluff; Miss Jo Henson of Monroe, cousin of the groom and Miss Mary Pat White, cousin of the bride.

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was his brother, Hunter Talley. Ushers were Neil Castleberry, brother of the bride; Chuck Tremor of Hamburg; Dennis Carter, Jim Furr of Monroe and Hu White, cousin of the bride.

A reception followed in Fellowship Hall of the church. Mrs. Jimmy Ross served the cake and Mrs. Harold Glen Young presided at the punch bowl from a table centered with an arrangement of white carnations and stock in a silver bowl, flanked by branched silver candelabra holding white tapers.

Misses Alice Teague and Martha Smith assisted in courtesies and Miss Ada Jean Castleberry, cousin of the bride, was at the guest book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Amarillo, Texas, where Mr. Watson is stationed with the army.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and is a member of Delta Gamma sorority, SNEA and ACEI. Mr. Watson attended Mississippi State University where he was affiliated with Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

Melba Beasley Becomes Bride Of Sidney Wilhite

The pastor's study of the First Baptist Church, West Monroe was scene of the ceremony Sunday, February 14 which united in marriage Miss Melba Jean Beasley and Sidney Ross Wilhite. Dr. Clifton Tennison performed the double ring vows at 4 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bird Beasley, 2626 North 10th, West Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Wilhite, 200 Fairview, West Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white cable knit suit with matching accessories and a white fur hat. She carried a white pearl Bible, crested with a large orchid, showered with ribbon streamers. For adornment she wore a heart-shaped diamond necklace, a gift of the groom.

Miss Nancy Lea Jordan, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a navy blue suit with hat of white fur and navy velveteen ribbon, and other accessories in cranberry shade. Her corsage was an orchid.

Serving as best man for Mr. Wilhite was his cousin, Don C. Antley.

For the occasion Mrs. Beasley, mother of the bride, wore a light brown suit with fur trim, brown accessories and a white cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Wilhite was wearing a beige suit with accessories to match and a white cymbidium orchid.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Wedding cake and punch were served by Mrs. A. H. Hamel and Miss Biddy Dupree from a table centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and red hearts in a cherub compote, lighted with white candles. Miss Lynn Wilhite, sister of the groom, presided at the coffee service and Mrs. Theron Dupree served the groom's cake from another table.

The couple is at home at 407½ Speed in Monroe. Mrs. Wilhite was graduated from West Monroe high school, attended the University of Mississippi and Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Phi Mu. Also a graduate of West Monroe high school, Mr. Wilhite attended Louisiana State University and Northeast. He is presently employed by Adams Paper Converting Company and a student at Northeast, and also a member of the United States Army Reserve.

Flowers Add Fresh Note To Spring Styles

As far back as ancient Greece, flowers have been worn to accent ladies' fashions. The Greeks adorned themselves with garlands, and women ever since have been wise to the romantic effect of flowers. Empress Josephine of France selected the rose as her official flower, and bouquets played a courtly role in the reign of Louis XIV.

In spring of 1965, flowers are still delighting viewers and smart gals are still wearing them to compliment their fashions. This season's new styles lend themselves especially well to floral accessories; their look is young and vital, their effect like a breath of fresh air.

A round collar looks even more charming, for instance, when pinned with miniature carnations in a soft spring shade. And high-standing pockets on suits or blazers take on new freshness with a trio of yellow daisies tucked inside.

Practically any of the new styles can be shown to better advantage with spring blossoms.

And, if you're looking for a springtime gift, a tiny nose-gay or corsage is always welcome.

PROTECT BABY

Drape a clean terrycloth towel over baby's high chair to absorb perspiration and protect his bare back and legs from sticking.

New Rainwear Steals Spring Coat Sales

So-called raincoats are moving into spring coat businesss further with every season. It's becoming harder to tell a raincoat from a regular coat, with so many fabrics being finished to repel water.

The all-weather coat is the proper name for these coats that not only look like regular coats but often have more styling dash. Since they are usually priced well below conventional coats, their designers will take more chances on high fashion looks. It's a rare all-weather coat that rises above $35, and most are priced well below.

It's in this field that laminates and the new chemically quilted fabrics have made such an impression, while higher price makers like Lawrence of London go in for the most beautiful of cottons, silky poplins, silks and patent looks.

Red, White Theme Noted At Cotillion Club Dance

Appointments in red and white set the theme for the Valentine dance held by the Cotillion Dance club Saturday night, February 13 at the Paragon Supper Club ballroom.

Red carnations and white hearts were arranged in a brass container on a table near the entrance, which also held a white Valentine tree with red hearts tied by red ribbon to the branches, entwined with green ivy.

The bandstand, covered with moss, was banked with magnolia leaves and red camellias and centered with a huge valentine heart. Red satin hearts were suspended from the ceiling at vantage points in the ballroom.

Twelve tables at which members and guests were seated around the dance floor were decorated with ivy, red candles in hurricane globes and bouquets of red camellias centered with red cherry trees.

General Caldwell's band provided music for dancing from 9 p.m. to 12 with breakfast served at midnight.

Officers of the club include Mrs. Elton Upshaw Jr., president; Mrs. Bill Ledoux, vice-president; Mrs. Lestar Martin, treasurer; Mrs. James L. Dennis, membership chairman and Mrs. Terry Reeves, decorations chairman.

Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomas, Crossett, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. David DeVillier, Eunice; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Altick Jr., Winnsboro and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy.

Club members include Mr. and Mrs. Jim Altick, Mr. and Mrs. Armand Breard, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mr. and Mrs. Dickey Crowe, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brockman, Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Beuford Jacka, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lauve, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ledoux, Mr. and and Mrs. Guy Luno, Mr. and Mrs. Lestar Martin, Mr. and Mrs. David Marchman, Mr. and Mrs. Biggie Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Reeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. Cole Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Chug Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Talley, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kight, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Upshaw Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ebert Van Buren, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wardlaw, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wroten, Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Yerger, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Corrent, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Don Larisey, Mr. and Mrs. William McKay, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Lassiter, Mr. and Mrs. James McClendon, Mr. and Mrs. John Birdsong, Mr. and Mrs. George Snellings III, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eberle and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Phillips Jr.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Bob Erle Clark, Mer Rouge; Dr. and Mrs. Harry Winters of Columbia; Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Barham, Mr. and Mrs. King Mott, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards Barham, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Brown, Mr. Mrs. Duke Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Bob D. Pipes, all of Oak Ridge and Dr. and Mrs. George Gowan of Winnsboro.

PLANNED MONOTONY

The "one print" look is a new decorating trend in home furnishing circles . . . draperies, window shades, wall coverings, chairs and sofas . . . all get into the act with even a lamp shade in the same print. A new touch is to quilt the fabric used on the latex foam rubber cushioned chairs and sofa.

Young-Tippen Vows Read In West Monroe

An arch of candelabra entwined with greenery centered with one large magnolia and flanked by baskets of white gladioli formed a setting in Baucomville Church of Christ for the wedding of Miss Bettie Gaile Tippen and James Dewey Young.

Jurd Brantley, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. February 6. Soloists were Mrs. Peggy Brantley and Henry Evans.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Tippen, 106 Mauldin Drive, West Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Young, Evergreen, West Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, with bodice overlaid with lace, featuring long tapered sleeves, and scalloped neckline. Appliques of the Chantilly lace enhanced the long train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of pearls and she carried a triangular shaped bouquet of white pompons.

Miss Glenda Hebert, maid of honor, wore a street length dress of pink crepe, designed with tucked bodice and full skirt, defined at the back waistline by a bow. Her accessories were matching pink and she carried an arrangement of pink chrysanthemums.

Candlelighters were Miss Arlene Rawls, niece of the bride and Miss Marilyn Chilton, niece of the groom. They wore identical frocks of pink peau de soie, styled with scoop necklines and bell shaped skirt. Flower girl was Lorrie Brantley and train bearer, Renee Skipper. They wore dresses of pink nylon with lace jackets and pink velvet headbands.

Richard Byrd attended Mr. Young as best man and ushers were Terry Hebert and Robert Young. Robert Truett Jr. was ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pink nubby weave model with black accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy ensemble with black accessories and a white chrysanthemum corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the First National Bank social room, for more than 100 guests. The serving table was covered with a pink cloth overlaid with white net and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations. Miss Sharon Tippen, sister of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake and presiding at the silver punch service was Mrs. Sue Parr.

After a wedding trip through South Louisiana the couple will be at home in Trimph, where Mr . Young is employed. For travel the bride wore a pink brocade suit with matching accessories and the corsage from her bouquet.

...On Dit...

by Marillyn Taylor

In addition to regularly scheduled holidays, such as are enjoyed throughout the country, Monroe has a number of particular traditional events during the short, full month of February. One of these is the presentation of the new provisional class of the JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE, which is shown on the society front today.

These young women, in affiliating with the League, pledge themselves to effective community service through this organization and others in the Twin Cities. New provisional members this year are MARILYN ANDERSON, PAT BLANCHARD, CHARLOTTE BOURLAND, JOYCE BRAKEFIELD, CAROL CUDD, CAMILLE DENNIS, GWEN HARDY, BETTY HASTINGS, ANGIE IRWIN, ANN KEMP, CAROL KILPATRICK, HELEN LEWIS, JAN MAHAFFEY, JO MATTISON, NANCY STAAB, MARTHA STINSON, DORRIS SIUDY, MARTHA UPSHAW, and NANCY WARDLAW.

Each year the new provisionals are introduced to active members at a party hosted by the incoming and outgoing presidents of the league. The party was held for this group last Friday, at the home of CAROL McDONALD, retiring president with OLIVE SARTOR, president-elect, co-hostess.

Flowers in the living room carried out a gold and blue theme. On a table near the entrance stood a compote filled with blue Dutch iris, yellow stock, and acacia. Yellow roses overflowed from a silver biscuit box on the mantel. In the dining room, in lieu of a centerpiece, Carol tied the low-hanging chandelier over the table with masses of rust-colored chrysanthemums. These same blossoms were used again in an arrangement placed on the Mexican chest in the family room.

Coffee was served in the dining room, sherry and bottled soft drinks in the family room. Dainties served included cucumber sandwiches, shrimp sandwiches, peanut sticks, cheese almonds, shortcake and lemon squares.

Those assisting were FRANCES HEUY, JOY McCUE, CLARA MONTGOMERY, CAROLYN SIMPSON, JEAN HAMILTON, PETE KELLY, ANN SLAGLE, OLIVE MUNHOLLAND, FRANCES GUTHRIE, PAT GODFREY, CAROLINE McRANEY, BARBARA VREELAND, MIGNON EMERSON. Approximately ninety guests called between ten and twelve.

□ □ □

Valentines in pinks and reds was noted when three couples entertained at a reception at Bayou DeSiard country club Saturday night. Hosts for the party were the MORRIS PHILLIPS, DONALD PHILLIPS, and ROBERT HARROPS.

In the club entrance hall was a tall white manzanita tree tied with camellias, shading from lightest pink at the top to deepest red at the base. In the branches were two red cupids highlighted with pink sequins.

The hostesses greeted their guests at the entrance to the ball room. Marjorie was wearing a sheath of white crepe worked in bugle beads and sequins, the waist outlined with crystal drops. Joyce chose teal blue silk with white beading, while Shirley wore ice blue taffeta, the Empire bodice overlaid with matching lace.

Centering the pink-covered refreshment table was a thirteen-branch candelabra arranged with pink stock, red roses, and tall pink tapers. A pink cloth was also used on the dessert table, which held a cupid holding pink stock and red roses. Over one hundred guests called between seven-thirty and nine-thirty.

Last weekend RUTH and CUTHBERT LEE were present at the baptism of their granddaughter, MARGARET LYNN GOODWIN in the First Presbyterian church of Baton Rouge. The sacrament was administered by the baby's great-uncle, the REV. DAN FRANK GOODWIN, pastor of Broadmoor Presbyterian church in Shreveport. The parents are MARGARET ANN and RANDALL GOODWIN, who have two older children, RANDALL, JR., and LEE ANN.

A Valentine motif was carried out at the dance which honored BILL RILEY III on his thirteenth birthday last Friday night. Bill's parents were hosts in the young people's room at Bayou DeSiard country club. Large Valentines, with hearts and cupids, were used on walls and ceilings. The punch table was centered with a free tied with hearts and red camellias. About forty young people danced to recorded tempos.

In Monroe, at least, February brings the annual musical at Strauss Playhouse, produced by Little Theatre. This year's offering, "Sound of Music," opened Friday, is to run another week. Cast and crew celebrated at the theatre Monday evening, honoring leading lady CAMILLE WOOD on her birthday. During rehearsal break, the birthday girl received a large cake embossed in yellow and green "Happy Birthday, Camille". The cake was prepared by those faithful, seldom cheered heroes, the stage crew. And some of the loveliest voices in town sang the appropriate song — in four part harmony, yet.

Another highlight of February's calender hereabouts is Mardi Gras. A number of balls all over the Twin Cities celebrate this holiday. Invitations were in the mail this week to members of Bayou DeSiard country club for the annual Maskers' Ball there. The double-fold cards featured on the front a caricature of Rex, Lord of Misrule, with crown, mask, dancing slippers, and other symbols of the season.

"Famous Personalities" is the theme of Bayou DeSiard's party, which is to be at eight in the evening this coming Saturday, February 27. BERNICE WOODS is general chairman of the event.

George Washington's birthday is commemorated annually by members of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Three area chapters, Fort Miro, Chief Tusquahoma, and Abram Morehouse, join for luncheon at this time. The affair was held this year at the Paragon club, last Saturday at noon. Red, white, and blue streamers ran the length of each table, centered with white branches tied with cherries and hatchets. At each place was a blue-covered menu, with silhouette of George and Martha Washington on the front. Inside was a picture of Mount Vernon and the menu for the day.

Names of dishes served reflected the luncheon theme: cherry fruit supreme; shish kabob a-la-sword; Martha's company rice; snap beans, Virginia style; Potomac salad; the Generals' peppermint ice cream; Continental Army coffee; Mount Vernon rolls.

Also honoring his birthday tomorrow, we quote today the poem "George Washington," from Rosemary and Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

Sing ho! for grave Washington,
The staid Virginia squire,
Who farms his fields and hunts his hounds
And aims at nothing higher!
Stop, stop it's going wrong again!
George liked to live on farms,
But when the Colonies agreed
They could and should and would be freed,
They called on George to do the deed
And George cried "Shoulder arms!"
Sing ho! for Emperor Washington,
That hero of renown,
Who freed his land from Britain's rule
To win a golden crown!
No, no that's what George might have won,
But didn't, for he said,
"There's not much point about a king,
They're pretty, but they're apt to sting
And as for crowns, the heavy thing
Would only hurt my head.
Sing ho! for our George Washington!
At last I've got it straight.
The first in war, the first in peace,
The goodly and the great.
But when you think about him now,
From here to Valley Forge,
Remember this, he might have been
A highly different specimen,
And where on earth would we be, then?
I'm glad that George was George.

Best-Dressed Like Sweaters

The Misses Anne and Charlotte Ford, new to the Ten Best-Dressed List, have made it at an unusually early age, barely into their twenties.

With their mother, Mrs. Anne Ford, they have formed a look-alike trio the past couple of years since they moved to New York from Detroit.

Latest among their European acquisitions are sweaters from Micia of Rome. Mrs. Ford has a black and white mesh - knit tunic sweater with an ostrich feather collar. Anne Ford chose a tunic in melon pink and lilac mixture with ruffled collar and cuffs.

Charlotte's favorite was a knit dress with white ribbed hemline bands, which she had made in the above-knee hemline to wear with Courreges' white boots. That's the sweater life when you're a bestdressed Ford.

Ellyn Wedemeyer Weds George Charles Phillips

Of interest in Monroe is the marriage of Miss Ellyn Wedemeyer and George Charles Phillips, which was solemnized Saturday, February 6 in Saint Luke's Methodist Church at Houston, Texas with Rev. James Heacock officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wedemeyer and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. George O. Phillips, all of Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Neville high school and of the University of Oklahoma, where she was a member of Alpha Phi social sorority. She is presently teaching in the Houston Public Schools.

Mr. Phillips is a graduate of Neville high school and of Louisiana Tech, where he was affiliated with Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is employed with an engineering firm in Houston where the couple will reside.

Lack Of Warmth In Grandparents Abnormal

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married two years. Our little girl is one year old. She walks already, says a few words and is a darling child.

My wife's parents are fine, intelligent people in their early fifties. When we invite them to our home they are cordial but we've never been invited to their home for a meal.

Not once have they picked up our child or played with her. They show no interest in their other grandchildren either. Last week I was so hurt by their actions I asked my mother-in-law for an explanation. She said, "We raised our children, educated them and now we are through. We want nothing to do with baby sitting or diapers. We have earned peace and quiet and we want to spend our leisure time with our friends."

Is something wrong with them, or is it us? — BWD

Dear BWD: Did you ask your mother-in-law to do diapers or sit with your child? If you did and she refused I would not criticize her.

But in-laws who have never picked up a grandchild do not sound normal to me. Such a lack of warmth is beyond belief. These people are to be pitied because they are missing life's sweetest rewards.

Dear Ann Landers: When are homemakers going to assert themselves and receive the credit they deserve?

If I tell my husband at dinner that I have had a hard day he says, "Doing what? I wish I could stay home and loaf around like you do."

One evening I said something about "our money" and he yelled, "What do you mean OUR money? When did you last earn a dime?"

If it weren't for the children I'd chuck it all and go back to work so I could have a few dollars to call my own. My husband makes me feel like a beggar. Whenever he hands me a few dollars he makes such a big deal out of it you'd think I was a charity case.

Several months ago a friend of mine had a nervous breakdown. My husband said, "What did SHE have to worry about? She had a beautiful home, a nice husband, three swell kids nad no job!"

Say something, will you? I'm — FROTHING

Dear Frothing: The housewife is either the best-paid or the worst-paid woman in the world, depending on the man she's married to.

If her husband is an ignorant, insensitive slob (like yours) she is the worst-paid. If her husband is a thoughtful, understanding guy (like mine) she's the best-paid.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the vexed veterinarian who criticized you for calling him a "Vet":

When my wife and I lived in London, we always took our dog to a You-Know-What in Kensington. It was an embarrasingly posh establishment. The waiting room was filled with chauffeurs and pedigreed pooches. Among the patients were the King's (now Duke of Windsor) Corgis. We paid our bill in guineas (and that's real money). No one ever thought of calling the man anything but a vet and he didn't mind at all.

Here in Connecticut, however, the man who takes care of our hound looked down his nose when I called him by the popular abbreviation. He hastened to tell me he is not a vet, but a doctor — and would I please call him "Doctor?" I responded, "I presume your fees are tax deductible, Doctor?" He had to admit they were not, but now I call him doctor just the same. — HARTFORD, CONN.

Dear Heart: Here's your letter and the subject is closed. After I printed the last beef I received a deluge of mail from ex-servicemen who wanted to know what was wrong with the word vet. I pass, Brother.

Cheri Southard Is Bride Of Henry Pitard Jr.

The wedding of Miss Cheri Lea Southard and Henry Prados Pitard Jr., was solemnized February 6 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. W. Covington Jr., of Decatur, Ga., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Prados Pitard of El Dorado, Ark.

The Rev. Samuel Plezzl performed the double ring ceremony. On the high altar were seven branched candelabra holding tall white tapers with white flowers used in the altar vases. A pair of tall white standards holding arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums flanked the entrance to the sanctuary.

Given in marriage by her uncle, George Knight, the bride wore a suit of white lace with a veiled white hat and matching accessories. She carried a cascade bouquet of amazon lilies centered with orchids.

Mrs. Lavelle Ivy served as matron of honor and Hillard Meek attended Mr. Pitard as best man.

After a wedding trip the couple is at home at 2709 S. Grand in Monroe.

MISS CHARLOTTE HOGG

Charlotte Hogg Engaged To Robert O. McIwain

Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Hogg of Grayson announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte to Robert O. McIlwain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald C. McIlwain of Columbia.

A Good Friday, April 16 wedding is planned to take place in the Olla Church of Christ at 6 p.m. Officiating will be Leo Powers, minister of the Ruston Church of Christ, and a reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Hogg has chosen Mrs. Troy W. Kennedy to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Peggy Hogg, sister of the bride - elect and Miss Freida Grant, cousin of the future groom and flower girls will be Rebecca Fore and Kim Kimzey, nieces of the bride-elect.

Ronnie McIlwain will attend his brother as best man and chosen as ushers are Gerry McIlwain, also a brother of the prospective bridegroom and Howard Hogg, brother of the bride-elect.

Miss Hogg is employed in Jena as a welfare visitor with the LaSalle Parish Department of Public Welfare. Mr. McIlwain is a senior in mechanical engineering at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, where he will receive his B.S. degree in August.

The couple will be at home in Ruston following a brief wedding trip.

CARPET-TILE

Combining carpet and tile in one is a 12-inch square of carpet bonded to a tile base with edges designed for interlocking to form a continuous surface. The seams between the 'tiles don't show when joined correctly.

Nuptials Unite Mary Lewellyan, Winfred Jones

The wedding of Miss Mary Clarice Lewellyan and Winfred Earl Jones was performed by Rev. W. R. Blair on February 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Lewellyan, 509 Hall St., Monroe. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ervin E. Jones, 700 South Fifth, Monroe.

For her wedding the bride wore an off-white suit with a white veiled pillbox hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow-centered white flowers.

Serving as best man and matron of honor for the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Edwards.

A reception followed in the home where the traditional wedding cake was served by Miss Donna Woods. Mrs. Byron Edwards presided at the punch bowl and Miss Connie Stamper, cousin of the bride, served coffee.

The couple is at home in West Monroe where Mr. Jones is employed.

Patriotic Theme Featured In Annual George Washington DAR Luncheon

A patriotic setting was created in the ballroom of the Paragon Club on Saturday, February 13 for the annual George Washington birthday luncheon held jointly by Abram Morehouse, Chief Tusquahoma and Fort Miro chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. J. Metris Bell served as general chairman for Chief Tusquahoma and co-chairmen were Mrs. James A. Brown, Abram Morehouse and Mrs. Zell Smith, Fort Miro chapters.

Mrs. Archie Dickerson greeted guests in the foyer of the club. Mrs. James L. McGuire invited them into the ball room where Mrs. Bell, Miss Frances Flanders and Mrs. Conrad McDuffie extended greetings.

Receiving with Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, regent of Chief Tusquahoma; Miss Carrie Dee Drew, regent of Fort Miro; Mrs. James Madison, regent of Abram Morehouse, were Taylor O'Hearn, guest speaker, Mrs. O'Hearn, Mrs. James B. Shackelford, vice president general, National Society; Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, past vice president general, national Society; Mrs. Arnold Rosenzweig, state librarian, National Society; Mrs. Paul Stinson, director of 3, Louisiana Society and Mrs. Lester Corley, program chairman of Chief Tusquahoma.

Presiding at the registration tables were Mrs. James A. Brown, Mrs. Joe Mott Jr., Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. C. E. Buckley, Mrs. W. J. Veasey, Mrs. D. L. Agnew Sr., Mrs. J. Otto Miller and Mrs. Ruth Hundley. Other hostesses and committee members extending courtesies were Mrs. B. B. Handy, Mrs. W. L. Husted Sr., Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Mrs. J. W. Stanley, Mrs. A. W. Wilkins, Mrs. J. P. Zoll, Mrs. H. D. Montgomery, Mrs. J. V. Jones Jr., Mrs. Harold Fink, Mrs. J. W. Yeldell, Mrs. W. T. Smith, Mrs. Neil Mott, Miss Catherine Barham, Mrs. A. C. Volk, Mrs. Donald Cannon, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds and Mrs. J. C. Stewart.

Mrs. H. M. McGuire, presiding regent, called the meeting to order and after the ritual, Mrs. Lloydelle Herring, director of music at Ouachita Parish junior high school, led the National Anthem. Mrs. Herring directed the Ouachita Parish high school ensemble in several selections appropriate for the occasion, which have been prepared for the Music Festival.

Mrs. McGuire welcomed members of DAR chapters in District 3, LS, DAR and their guests. She introduced Miss Carrie Dee Drew, general chairman of the annual conference, Louisiana Society, DAR, which will convene in Monroe March 2, 3 and 4, and announced that two featured speakers will be Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, president general, National Society, and Dr. Robert Morris, noted columnist, lecturer and author. Also introduced were the distinguished guests and committee heads for the luncheon .Mrs. F. P. Robinson, state chairman, introduced the DAR Good Citizens of the various chapters who were special guests for the event.

Taylor O'Hearn of Shreveport was guest speaker and in observance of February as American History month, chose as his topic, "America's Present Position in History," and in closing with Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, stated "America still citadel of freedom, with God's help we can keep it that way."

Focal point on the head table was a patriotic arrangement with silhouette of George Washington centered behind a massive bow of red, white and blue ribbon, with a ribbon runner extending to either side of the table. Blue place cards, picturing a spinning wheel, a symbol of the DAR, spinning white yarn, and blue menu folders with silhouettes and George and Martha Washington set in frame with red ribbon tie, in which an old fashion style menu was enclosed, completed the decor.

Other tables with streamers of the patriotic ribbon on white cloths, were centered with greenery, replica of cherry tree, cherries and hatchets, to carry out the designated theme.

Reservations list included the following DAR members and guests: Mrs. Lasley Richardson, Mrs. Oliver Lowery, Mrs. G. Lyman Gladney, Mrs. J. C. Ellington, and Miss Jean Ellington, DAR Good Citizen from Boeuf River; Mrs. W. W. McDonald Jr., Mrs. Paul Stinson, Mrs. T. L. Colvin, Mrs. Louise Brooks, Mrs. Charles Moss, Mrs. A. V. Three Armhole Dresses Newest Fashion Idea

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The sage who observed that two heads are better than one had nothing on Mary Bruce here who has decided that three armholes are considerably better than two in a dress.

Now her two hands are so full, with patent law conferences, fabric buying, supervising the growing number of workroom ladies, and taking quick trips to New York to arrange fashion press shows and national distribution that she wishes she had a third arm and hand to go with her three arm-holed dress idea.

Although it sounds complicated, the style is as simple as a cheongsam. It is comfortable and flattering on so many figure types that Florida's Gold Coast socialites buy them dozens at a time in varying lengths and fabric treatments.

SIMPLE TO WEAR

If it were not for their urging, Miss Bruce, who is tired of this and brimming with new style concepts she is eager to get on with, would have limited herself to the sane pace of her charming boutique shop in the heart of Coconut Grove.

Putting on a Marie, as she calls them, is like slipping into a surgeon's robe. You extend your arms through two of the arm holes with the slightly shaped front side to you. The rest of the garment wraps across the back to the side and slips over the right shoulder like a coat closing or a panel — depending on its styling treatment.

The garment has no snaps, buttons or zippers to keep it firmly in place it is easy to press, and instead of taking up closet room, folds neatly in a drawer.

Short-short versions are done in colorful terry cloth for the beach. In knee-length cottons and linens lined with contrasting fabric the styles are daytime costumes with or without collars and sleeves.

Floor-length silk Maries splashed with Hawaiian flowers are elegant hostess gowns. And in brocades and laces the styles is the belle of the charity ball.

Mary's Florida customers do not think in terms of fur, but her northern costumers are eager to be wraped up in triple-armholed fur coats.

As a consequence, when Mary Bruce returns to New York where she began as a designer she will introduce what may possibly be the only collection of clothes with basically only one design.

BRIGHTEN ALUMINUM

Here's how the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggests brightening a discolored aluminum pot. Boil some water and cream of tartar in it. Use 1 teaspoon to 2 tablespoonfuls cream of tartar per quart of water, depending on how dark the pot is.

Matching 'Out' In Furnishings

"Matching" as in "suite" is "out" in fashionable furniture this year. The "related" look is "in." A sofa and two chairs resemble each other and coordinate harmoniously without exactly matching. "In", too, is opulent and luxurious latex foam rubber cushioning for the coveted new super - loungy furniture silhouette.

THE WEDDING of Miss Ada Marie Punchard, Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Punchard of Sicily Island to Lennie Jeff Lawrence Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Lawrence of Monroe, will take place March 5 at 7 p.m. in Calvary Baptist Church, with Rev. L. L. Morris officiating. The couple will be at home in Monroe.

Norman-McClain Wedding Plans Are Completed

Plans have been completed by Miss Clair Elise McClain of Pine Bluff and William C. Norman Jr., of Crossett and Pine Bluff, for their wedding which will take place Saturday, February 27 in Trinity Episcopal Church in Pine Bluff at 5 p.m.

The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, William Craig McClain Jr. of Pine Bluff. She has chosen as her matron of honor, Mrs. John Murray of Fort Eustis, Virginia, sister of her fiance. Selected to serve as bridesmaids are Misses Becky Hill, Ellen McClain, and Kay Willis, all of Pine Bluff. Junior bridesmaid will be Miss Ellen Nichol, and flower girl will be Miss Marie Nichol, both cousins of the bride-elect.

William C. Norman Sr., of Crossett, will attend his son as best man. Named as groomsmen are Talbot Benton and Rufus A. Martin Jr., of Pine Bluff; James Spellings of Dallas, Tex., Jon Outcalt, Cleveland, Ohio and Lucien G. Gwin of Natchez. Serving as ushers will be John H. Means III, Stanley Cook Jr. and Howard Wichern, all of Pine Bluff. Junior usher will be Currin M. Nichol Jr., cousin of the bride.

Acolytes will be W. A. Keintz and W. H. Kennedy III. Misses Martha Jones and Marti Bellingrath will distribute rice bags to guests during the reception, which will be held following the ceremony in the Parish Hall.

Gold Bracelet Is Big Fashion Accessory

As make-up and clothing get simpler and simpler, watch the growing fashion emphasis placed on unusual pieces of jewelry.

The simple gold bracelet is the big accessory news of the moment but fashion authorities forecast a growing demand for gold and enamel jewel-encrusted "animal" bracelets incorporating a growing favorite, the jeweled snake.

Real or fabulously fake, jewelry is making the big come-back.

MISS LILLIE ANN DUKE

Black Or Brown May Accessorize Camel Coat

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: I must choose accessories carefully, as I am on a three-child budget. I have a camel color coat, am planning to buy a brown pair and a black pair of shoes in lizard - grain calf. Should my bag match? I have a black dress coat. Should only the black shoes be used with it? What about glove colors and lengths?

A: While either black or brown accessories may be used with the camel coat, black only is best for the dress coat. With the camel coat, the two colors can even be mixed, thus saving money. That is, black grained bag can be worn with both coats, with both colors of shoes, but not a brown bag with the black shoes. One pair of black gloves will do for both coats, but brown may not be used with the black. Length of gloves should be long enough to go up under the sleeves.

Q: How long should a coat be for this season? I'm confused with all the talk about different length hemlines.

A: Coats can either be the exact length as dress hemlines, which are generally just below the knee, or they can be shorter, seven - eighths or three - quarter. But they aren't worn longer.

Q: As I am 70, I usually wear black. I am invited to a wedding and wonder if black would be proper. It's a morning wedding late this month.

A: Black is usually not worn to weddings, as being too somber a color, so wear at least a dress or suit of another color, even if your coat is black. You can also brighten the costume with a white or colorful hat of a spring rather than winter kind. Also, wear a white or bright scarf with the black coat.

Q: At 5 feet and 115 pounds, I feel my 36D bust size is too large. What style clothes should I wear to minimize it?

A: Choose skimmer lines with a flare toward the hem, avoiding straight skirts and belted waistlines. At the top, wear collars that come to a V or U below the chest, and which have something soft, but not frilly, such as an ascot flip-over tie. Avoid fitted lines around the bust area or Empire waists, as these will accent the bust.

Q: With a black silk suit, bodice and lining of white organdie, I plan to wear black silk pumps. What should the handbags and gloves be? Should I wear a hat always?

A: Handbag can be black silk faille with a gold or rhinestone closing, it can be black satin, or it can even be white, as in quilted satin. Gloves should be white kid with an outfit as fine as this, and I believe it isn't really complete without a small hat, perhaps in white satin.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped self - addressed envelope.

Long Distance Fashion Buying

Women may one day be able to see fashions at any time in their own homes, place orders without ever going to a store. Picturephone is the gadget that may do it for them.

Picturephone is a telephone with TV, so to speak, which visitors to the World's Fair have seen. Calls may be placed right now to and from centers in Washington, Chicago and New York.

Recently, designer Wesley Tann had a model display three dresses on the device, which an attendant in Washington described back to him, to see how accurately the screen showed up details like fabric surfaces.

Results were encouraging, and Mr. Tann foresees the first step could be connections between store buyers and dress manufacturers. Beyond that, Picturephone may someday be in every home, with veiwing and shopping done at one's ease.

Lillie Duke, David Thompson Plan Wedding

Approaching marriage of Miss Lillie Ann Duke to David Lynn Thompson is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Duke, 510 Wheelis, West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Thompson, 710 S. 8th, West Monroe.

Vows will be exchanged by the couple on March 5 at 7 p.m. in Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe. Dr. C. B. Thompson, uncle of the bridegroom, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Duke is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Aday and Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Duke.

Miss Mary Jane Rawls, cousin of the bride-elect, will serve as maid of honor and Charlie Thompson will attend his brother as best man.

Brush and Palette

by Jan Bank

This Sunday will be your last chance to view that delightful bit of "serious" whimsey, "The Youth Art Exhibit" at the Masur Museum of Art, 1400 South Grand, in Monroe. Everyone, adult and child no matter how young, has enjoyed the art world created by children that decorates the various galleries of the museum. One gallery is devoted to children from many sections of our nation and from countries throughout the world who were winners in previous International Red Cross Youth Exhibitions. The rest of the museum is adorned with paintings and ceramics from our area elementary and junior high schools. In one of the upstairs galleries you'll find a charming wall hanging done by students from Clara Hall school, sea shells placed on burlap in a most effective manner from Sallie Humble School, and Lida Benton school has selected pictures done with toothpicks and even a small delicate looking toothpick sculpture. Lexington, Lee Jr. High, Lexington, Sherrouse, Lakeshore, Clara Hall, Lida Benton, Sallie Humble; they are all represented with a variety of colorful imaginative works.

AROUND US

Art is every where around us, we need only to be aware of it and of course the younger we start to sharpen our visual senses the better. In addition to the fine art program conducted by our city schools, the recreation department also provides art instruction. Conducted by Mrs. Ivy Oliver, the program enjoys continued success year after year due, no doubt, to it's personable teacher. Mrs. Oliver bore the honorary title "the Grand Lady of Art" at one of the Art Festivals held in Columbia. She has been contemplating discontinuing her services. . .for some ten years now but each year the appreciation of her students takes hold of her heart strings and keeps her on the job. The advanced group, her "teenage" class, meets after school on Thursdays, at Julia Wossman Tecreation Center elementary students meet at the same recreation center on Fridays after school until 5 p.m. and on holidays from 1 p.m., on. Art classes for young people are held at Benoit recreation center on Saturday mornings from 10 until 12. Students are requested to bring their own supplies.

A print show will open Wednesday at the Museum featuring the lithographs, etchings and block prints of art students from Northeast State College. There is quite a bit of experimental work in the collection, providing the impetus for an interesting exhibit. Bry Hall Gallery has a show of etchings by Cyril, in fact the title of the show by the internationally known artist touring the country is simply "Cyril". The Gallery is open 8 to 5 week days and till noon on Saturdays.

Let me remind you again, 1400 South Grand, between 2 and 5 p.m., no admission charge, Masur Museum of Art, last day for childrens art show.

AUXILIARY MEMOS

Hostesses this week at the museum will be Sunday, Feb. 21 Mrs. B. Thornhill and Mrs. Robert Layton, Monday, Feb. 22, closed, Tuesday Feb. 23, Mrs. Hugo Angelini and Mrs. Louis Smith, Wednesday, Feb. 24, Mrs. John Salisbury and Satchie Naiden, Thursday, Mrs. Earl Grasser, Mrs. Robert Cudd, and Mrs. Jack Masur. Friday, Feb. 26, Mrs. Jack Inabnet, Mrs. William Frost and Mrs. Earl Grasser. Saturday, Feb. 27, Mrs. Robert Szold.

HERE AND THERE

So many students have visited the museum during the childrens exhibit that it would take an entire column of names to recognize them all. Cub scouts, Brownies, Girl Scouts, and Boy scouts have also come in masses, much to the delight of everyone connected with the show. Now it is hoped that once introduced to the viewing experience the young museum goers will return to see every exhibit. Last week I told you about being at the museum while some of the school children made the grand tour. A few days later the mailman delivered some messages I shall always cherish, I think if I received such momentos years ago, I would now be an elementary school teacher. Beside a well composed thank you note from fourth grade students, the envelope contained several reports done by the students concerning their visit to the museum. I found the girls' notes more precise, articulate, in general delightful descriptions of a particular work that any Momma would be proud her daughter had written. Reports by the boys were a great deal more candid which only goes to show that by the age of nine we girls are well on the road to knowing when to please and how. I would like to share these treasured possessions with you, I quote exactly from the reports "That was the first time I ever saw what kind of pictures was in a museum. I saw lots of pictures and they were all good. Some were pictures of- people and some were of buildings and some were just different kinds of paints. I saw great big pictures and little pictures and middle sized pictures. All of the big pictures and a pretty good bit of the other pictures had a tag that said the name of the person who drew the picture and how much money it was worth. But some do not have a price. They have the pictures in a big, big, big, house. They have a room where they get arrowheads. In the same room they have clay forms. There used to be some people who lived there, but they gave their house to Monroe and Monroe used it for a museum. A boy in our room had his picture up in the museum. I saw the prettiest pictures I had ever seen in my life and some of the pictures were made by people the same age as me."

ANOTHER LETTER

Part of another letter reads, "There was a picture in the museum that was very good. It was a portrait of a little girl. It looked as though some one had just said a funny joke. The artist had painted the painting or picture right on the spot with the little girl still smiling. The picture reminded me of my little sister."

Not only did the letters reflect the childs personal experience in coming in contact with art and their keen observance of the museum and it's various paintings but it also challenged the more mechanical mind as the next letter proves (it also proves that the story I wrote last week about the little boy was not a product of my somewhat dramatic imagination, only the name was changed to protect the innocent).

"GOING TO AN ART MUSEUM"

"Tuesday, Feb. 9, 1965 our class went to the Masur Art Museum. It had mostly paintings, but it had pottery, arrowheads, and things like that. Mrs. Bank led us through the museum and Mr. Peterson drove the bus. I saw a boy in our rooms picture. It was a pig with an outline of yarn. In a side room there was a white button. Everyone was begging one another to press it. People said it called servants. I'm pretty sure it didn't though. But most of all I wanted to be in the picture a man took. The museum had a picture worth $150.00. It had clay statues from Lexington school. It had a door which people called a trap door. We didn't find out what the trap door and the little white button were. I was so active I nearly fell asleep on the bus when I tried coming back. It was more fun being active than looking at pictures and things. I never thought the art museum would look so much like a house."

I thank the teacher for her insight in choosing and sending me such wonderful letters. Perhaps someday my little friend will take a white button and a trap door, mount it on a huge board, sling a little paint here and there and then. . .pop artist, Jasper Johns, Watch out!

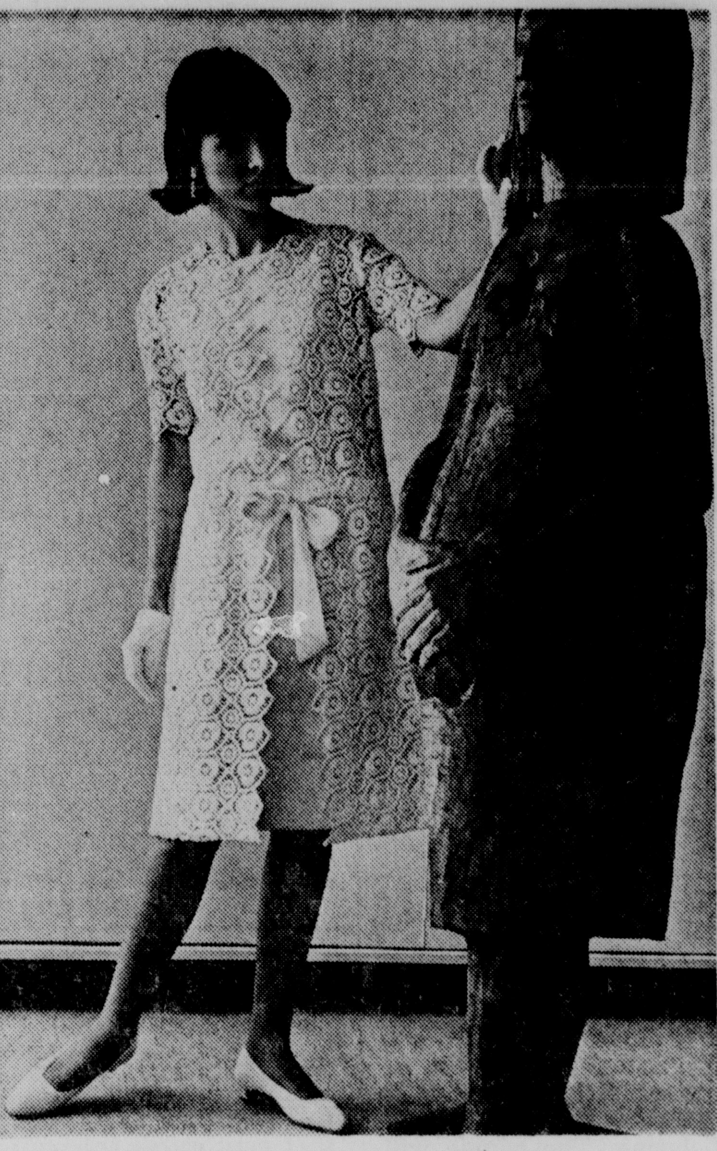
'Barely There' Look For New Shoe Fashions

The news this season in shoe fashions is "Low - Down and Barely - There". Women will be stepping out in low, sling-backed pumps, delicate T-straps and criss - cross sandal styles. Heels have sunk to their lowest heights in years.

Texture, too, plays leading role in shoe styles this season, with both gleaming smooth pale leather and richly - toned reptile effects sharing the spotlight. And, the textured look in stocking fashions is loosely woven and patterned by day, becoming delicately webbed or super-sheer by night.

Smooth, well-groomed legs are an important part of this new fashion look.

Soak feet in warm, soapy water, using a soft brush on toes and rough areas. A pumice stone will erase callouses and "pump bumps". Dry your feet thoroughly and push back cuticles with an orangewood stick. Cut nails straight across, then give two coats of polish in one of the soft, new "Barely - There" tones. Remember that your lipstick, too, should be a matching misty tone.



A BREATHTAKING LOOK for Spring is revealed in the pristine clarity of this cotton lace coat, its scalloped edges closing in tiny pearl buttons. The oversized satin ribbon caught through and softly tied. A slim, low-backed, naked Irish linen dress is the foil for this bit of enchantment by Mr. Mort.

RELISHING BATH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends the "heat-process" in the home preservation of pickles and relishes.

To maintain the texture, color and flavor of pickled fruits and vegetables, food specialists of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service advise processing these products in a boiling water bath — rather than cold-pack or open-kettle canning.

EASY FILLING

One of the easiest-to-prepare fillings for white cake is utterly delicious: apricot preserves mixed with brandy.

BRANDIED CHERRIES

To prepare brandied cherries the speedy way, just drain canned dark sweet cherries and marinate in brandy. Delicious over vanilla ice cream!

FUR INSTANCE

Fake fur is becoming so popular as a home furnishings fabric that some rooms are beginning to look as if they have been on safari. One very favorite new piece of furniture is the large round hassock on casters for easy mobility. It is large enough to seat two people and support them in ecstatic comfort on latex foam rubber cushioning.

Picture And Frame Should Harmonize

By MARGERY McELHENY
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — A picture frame serves as a support for the picture and also as the connecting link between the picture and the wall.

The picture is the center of attention, so the frame should never be so heavy or dramatic that it overpowers the picture.

The frame should focus attention on the picture and draw the eye to the center of interest in the picture. It should harmonize in color and weight with the subject matter and strengthen the composition it frames, never dominate it.

The frame should surround, but not halt, the movement of color and line in the picture. When necessary, it should create an illusion of depth, size or added perspective to the picture.

Traditional picture frames are highly carved or composition copies of "period" frames. They are elaborate and ornamental styles usually finished in metal or gold leaf. In more formal styles, the frames may be finished in rich mahogany or walnut.

PROVINCIAL STYLES

Provincial styles rely on the effect of grain and coloring of natural wood for their charm and warmth. Maple, oak or chestnut are used primarily in raw, waxed, lightly stained, or antiqued finish.

Contemporary frames usually are finished in solid tones or with a patterned finishing material.

The selection of a frame depends on the style of the picture. A traditional frame, for example, blends well with a painting of rich coloring and formal subject matter such as the "old master."

Provincial style frames are best with fruit and floral prints, still lifes and primitives. Modern frames set off 20th century French and American art with their large bold color areas and dynamic forms.

Oil paintings and reproductions should be framed "close" after the print has been mounted. This means that the edge of the frame should be brought directly to the edge of the picture as opposed to separating the picutre and the frame by use of mat and glass.

FRAME WIDTH

The frame should be wide enough to balance the picture effectively. An 8 x 10 inch picture, for example, requires a frame at least one inch wide.

Detailed paintings, or those with many separate brush strokes will look best in frames which are finished in subdued colors or which carry very fine ornamentation. Paintings with large, quiet surfaces can use a carved frame or one with ornamental or textural effects.

The finish or color of the frame should bear close relationship to the picture itself. It should be basically neutral, but toned with a specific color from the picture or one that is in close harmony with the picture. A frame that is not quite as dark as the darkest colors in the picture is the most appropriate choice.

Blouses Grow Longer For Spring '65

The spring blouse crop grows long, goes over, not inside, the skirt or pants it's worn with. The colors are gay for shirts, but delicately ruffled styles are always white.

New in shirts are the Caprolon prints, all hot pinks, oranges and turquoises racing about in mad-artist strokes and swirls. Tunics for the patio feature such print ideas as giant sunbursts placed to one side on a white ground. The "Mod" look comes in giant gingham checks deeply edged with bedspread lace and fringe.

STUFF SHRIMP

Ever stuff shrimp? To do so, clean and devein large shrimp and split, but not all the way through. Fill the shrimp with a savory, buttery bread-crumb stuffing and pinch together. Dip in melted butter to coat well and bake in a hot oven for about 10 minutes or until cooked through.

Big Zipper Fad Abounds

The sudden fad for using big "old - fashioned" zippers on sports-wear and children's wear has produced a shortage of industrial zippers.

Just in case you haven't seen them, these are the metal zippers with big teeth used on sturdy work clothes. Paris's Emmannuelle Khanh started using them on some of her designs, and a fad was born. Now everyone's playing the game of zipper, zipper, who's got the zipper?

Many designs feature three or four zippers, one closing the jacket, one up the skirt, one to close each pocket. No the manufacturers are being forced to restyle their samples to use fewer of the big zippers, since they can't get enough.

Zipper makers must be holding their aching heads. After years of work to make zippers smaller, lighter, till they were practically invisible, some designer comes along and upsets the whole idea. Fashion can be a crazy business!

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities . . .

Be still and know that I am God.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

Pastor Feted Here On His 70th Birthday

What originally was scheduled as a meeting of the Men of the Church at Memorial Presbyterian Church, West Monroe, last Tuesday evening, turned out to be a surprise party honoring the pastor, Dr. Hugh Bradshaw, on his 70th birthday.

Fellowship Hall was filled to overflowing with members of the church and many other friends of the pastor. After a round of birthday greetings, he was presented the keys to one of his presents, a new car. In addition to this he received a gift certificate from members and scoutmasters of Troop 11, which is sponsored by the church.

ON PROGRAM

Elder F. L. Watts served as master of ceremonies, and others taking part in the program were Dr. D. L. O'Neal of Choudrant, executive secretary of Church Extension of Red River Presbytery; Rev. Earl B. Wiggins, pastor of Highland Presbyterian Church, West Monroe; Rev. John R. Bradshaw, son of Dr. Bradshaw, and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Denham Springs; Elder D. W. Reighney, and Buzzy Nelson of Scout Troop 11.

Following the program and presentation of gifts, refreshments were served.

Dr. Bradshaw, the second pastor to serve Memorial Presbyterian Church, came to that assignment from Duncan, Okla., in June of 1949.

After trying out the new car, the pastor recalled how he used to ride on horseback as a student supply pastor for churches in small coal mining towns in western Kentucky.

A native of Scranton, Texas, he was ordained to the ministry July 21, 1924 in Central City, Ky., by Muhlenburg Presbytery, and on the same day installed as pastor of a group of small churches.

He has an AB degree and honorary DD from Daniel Baker College, Brownwood, Texas; BD degree from Louisville Seminary, and master of theology degree from Princeton Seminary.

BACKGROUND

He served as pastor in Paduach, Ky., for four years. In 1930 he went to Mansfield, La., to serve the church there, as well as churches at Oxford and Smyra. Four years later he went to Belcher to pastor the Belcher and Dixie churches, an assignment which lasted for 10 years. From 1944 to 1949 he was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Duncan, Okla.

Dr. and Mrs. Bradshaw have four children, three sons and a daughter.

Sons, in addition to Rev. John Bradshaw, are Hugh L. Bradshaw, in insurance work in Dallas, Texas, and Dr. William N. Bradshaw, professor of biology at University of West Virginia, Morgantown, W. Va. Their daughter, Miss Beth Bradshaw, is a senior at Austin College.

A SPECIAL occasion, the 70th birthday of Dr. Hugh Bradshaw, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian Church, West Monroe, was marked by members of the congregation and other friends with a surprise party for him last week. Here Dr. and Mrs. Bradshaw prepare to sample the birthday cake.

FANATIC OR SAINT?

NOTRE DAME, Ind. (AP) — During World War II, Franz Jagerstatter was a German Christian who regarded the Hitler regime as immoral and refused to report for military service. Rejecting pleas from his defense attorney, his parish priest and his wife to abondon his "senseless position," he was beheaded for his "crime."

SAYS THEOLOGIAN

No Halt Likely In Reform Move

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

One of Europe's leading Catholic theologians, Father Hans Kung, said recently reform movements in the Catholic Church have "reached such a depth and breadth" they cannot be halted.

"Even if the movements which have been set free in the church by Pope John XXIII and the Vatican Council should be artificially braked," he said, "they would not permit themselves to be stopped."

He warned that any attempt by "obstructionists" in the Roman Curia to squelch the new spirit of renewal and reform "would lead to the most highly dangerous tensions" within the church and to "an extremely serious crisis of confidence" in the papacy.

NO NEW SCHISM

Such a crisis, he said, probably would not result in a "new schism" comparable to the Protestant Reformation, "but rather in a further quiet exodus from the church on the part of so many for whom the council has rekindled a new hope for a renewed church and a unified Christendom."

Father Kung is professor of theology at the University of Tubingen, Germany, and a leading adviser to progressive bishops at the Vatican Council. His statements were made in an article published in the United States by the Catholic magazine Commonweal.

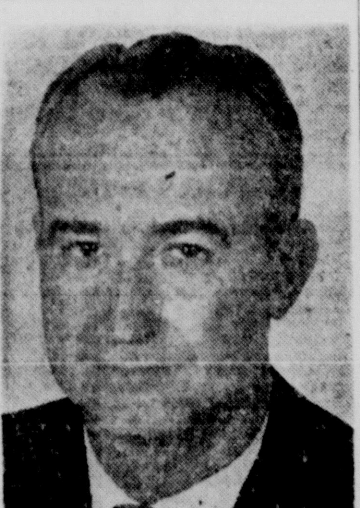
He said that the "prestige" of Pope Paul VI suffered "a powerful blow" at the last session of the Vatican Council.

SIDES WITH CURIA

Rightly or wrongly, "the larger part of the bishops, theologians and on-Catholic observers formed the fatal impression that the Pope — due to fear, theological uncertainty, concern for his immediate surroundings and Italian domestic policy, or whatever reasons — had put himself behind the obstructions and various maneuvers of the Curia." Instead of supporting the overwhelming majority of council fathers in the task of reform, the Pope seemed to be lending his office to backstage moves by the Curia to sidetrack the whole renewal movement.

As a result, Father Kung said, "confidence in the Pope, which had reached a hitherto unknown height in the days of John XXIII, appeared to many, both inside and outside the Catholic Church, to have sunk to zero."

Protestant churches across the land will observe "Race Relations Sunday" this weekend.



BILL MANN of Dallas, Texas, a well known evangelistic singer, will be song leader for the Methodist Mission of Love in the Ark-La-Tex, scheduled March 7-10 at Shreveport's Municipal Auditorium. He will team up with Bishop Gerald Kennedy, presiding bishop of the Los Angeles area of the Methodist Church, who will preach to audiences which are expected to reach the auditorium's capacity of 3,500 for four consecutive nights.

NEW CHURCH

NEW YORK (AP) —For 104 years, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Liberia has been a mission of the Lutheran Church in America. In January 1965, the African church of 6,326 members becomes autonomous and self - governing, although still affiliated with the American body.

Missionary Speaker At Church Here

A missionary to Japan since 1953, the Rev. Benson Cain, now on furlough, will be featured speaker at 6:30 p.m. services today at the First Presbyterian Church, Stubbs and North 14th St., Monroe.

The meeting will be open to members of all Presbyterian churches in the area, officials said.

Rev. Cain has been serving in Kobe, Japan since 1961, where his duties include teaching Greek and New Testament to Japanese seminary students, serving as pastor of a chapel, directing daily services in a downtown evangelistic hall where he also teaches English classes, and holding Sunday evening services in his home.

EVANGELIST

During his first years in Japan, Rev. Cain served as an evangelist in rural areas. Later, at the request of the Reformed Church in Japan, he moved to Kobe, a city of more than one million population, to become a faculty member of the Kobe Reformed Seminary, the denomination's only ministerial training school.

Rev. Cain is married and has five children.

Faith Links Improvement Is Objective

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In San Antonio, Tex., Jews and Christians sat down to an ancient fellowship banquet, the "haburah."

In New York City, church members boned up on the Bible under guidance of a Jewish teacher.

In Latrobe, Pa., Roman Catholic and Jewish scholars jointly analyzed the interconnecting strands of their faiths.

In Baltimore, Cardinal-designate Lawrence J. Shehan, the Roman Catholic archbishop, told a synagogue congregation that the Catholic Church was entering "a new world of relationships with the Jewish people."

Events of this kind are multiplying across the country as Christianity seeks to revive its original reciprocity with its parent faith, Judaism.

NEW CHAPTER

"A new chapter of Christian-Jewish history has already been ushered in," says Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, director of the Interreligious Affairs Department of the American Jewish Committee.

The object is not to woo converts, to out-argue, or to dilute differing doctrines, but rather to rekindle familiarity with one another, to learn mutually, and to approach common concerns — and distinctive views — as friends descended from one spiritual stock.

This also is the theme of Brotherhood Week, whose annual observance begins today, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

President Johnson, in a statement for the occasion, urged efforts "to sustain and deepen the spirit of liberty and equality" among the diverse peoples and creeds of America.

WEEK'S EMPHASIS

Interfaith gatherings, addresses and discussions, in many communities, will mark the week's emphasis.

Part of the stimulus for the trend came from the Vatican Ecumenical Council's preliminary approval last November of a statement repudiating the bias blaming Jews for Christ's death. It stresses that Jesus, his apostles and early believers were all Jews, as well as the prophets, and that Christianity was cradled in Judaism.

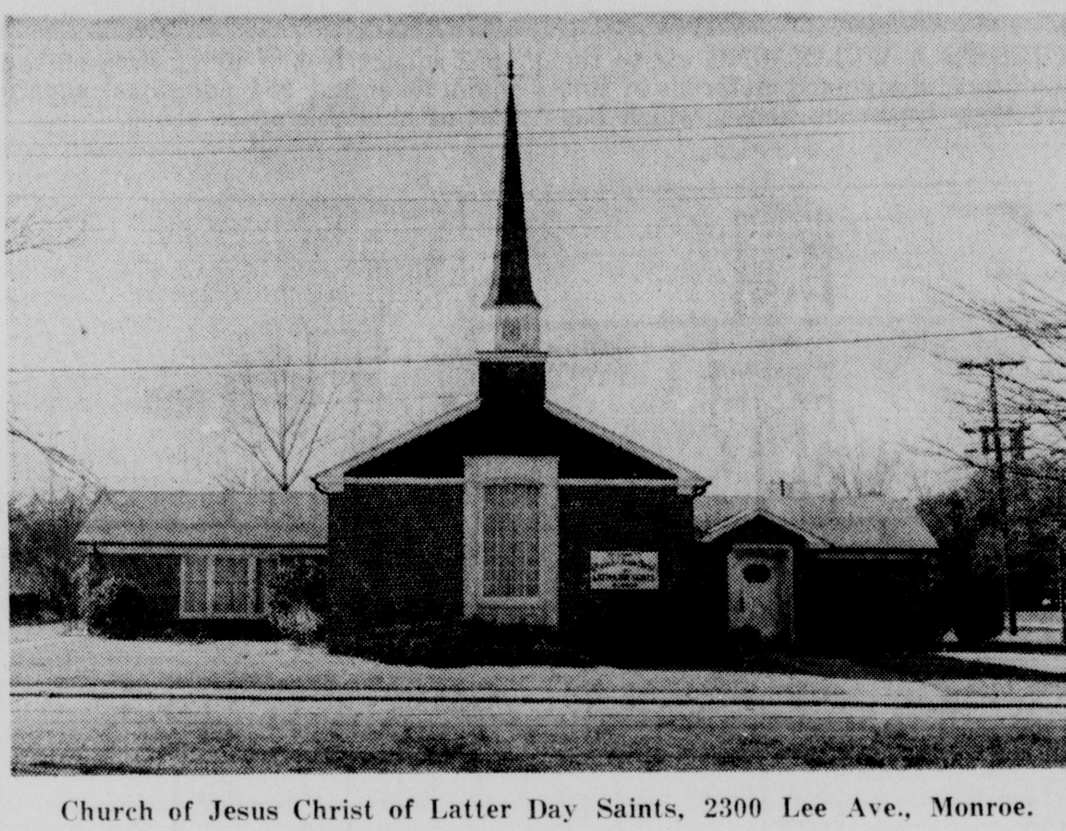
The action, still to be finally approved next fall, has been widely assessed as a turning point in Jewish-Catholic relationships.

It capped a chain of kindred moves by various church bodies, and it has been followed by a groundswell of activities to put principle into practice.

Since then, a joint Catholic-Jewish International Research Center has been started in Rome to analyze religious teaching materials and work to eliminate causes of prejudice.

MONROE BRANCH, LATTER DAY SAINTS

Church's Rapid Development Cited; Full Program Of Services Provided



Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 2300 Lee Ave., Monroe.

The Monroe Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), 2300 Lee Ave., Monroe, was started less than 25 years ago with a small membership, but it has shown a steady growth since that time.

Nationally, the Mormon Church movement was officially organized in 1830, with only six men as the original members. The denomination now has more than two million members.

In October, 1943, Lewis Thomas Bivins Sr., was ordained to be the first branch president (the title given to the ministers) of the church here, and Charles E. Wiggins and Marion Hatcher were selected to serve as counselors.

Elder Harold B. Lee, one of the Twelve Apostles of the Church, came from Salt Lake City, Utah, to ordain President Bivins as an Elder of the Priesthood of God. He set him apart as the shepherd over the congregation, then totaling about 30.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT

Through missionary efforts, baptisms were brought about and during the following years, the branch had a rapid development, with the membership now numbering around 800.

All jobs in the church are nonpaid. Members at large are called on to give the Sunday night sermons. They are given advance notice to allow them time to prepare the material. The branch president or one of the counselors delivers a sermon at least once a month. William Ober is the present branch president here.

A Relief Society was organized at the same time the branch church was formed here, as a branch of the original women's organization of the church. Barbara Hatcher was selected as its president, with Leila Crider and Martha Tucker, as counselors. Other officers and workers also were chosen such as Sunday school superintendent, records clerk, pianist and teachers.

In 1947, Lewis Bivins was called to be supervisor of all the Sunday schools of the church in the North Louisiana District, and Travis T. Tynes was named as the new branch president. In 1952, disaster struck. The chapel on North Second Street burned, leaving the members without a meeting place. However, they rented a hall until they were able to purchase a lot at Forrest and Lee Avenue. There they met in a small building at the rear until they raised funds sufficient to erect the present edifice, under the personal supervision of President Tynes, completing it in 1956. Tynes was released as branch president in 1958, being called to serve in the North Louisiana District Presidency, and has been succeeded in office in turn by Marion Hatcher, Robert Mowrey, Jay Terry, and Mr. Ober, now serving in that capacity.

AUXILIARY

The church has auxiliary organizations to serve its people in all facets of life. In Monroe they are now: Sunday School, with John R. Duncan as superintendent; primary for children 4 to 12, with Helen Frost as president; Mutual Improvement Association for young people, 12 years and older; Joe B. Smith, superintendent of the Young Men's division, and Annie Hayes, president of the Young Women's division. The M.I.A. provides classes and activities in theology, music, drama, speech, sports, camping, dance, and sponsors a Boy Scout Troop.

Relief Society, with Laurine Kelly as president. Lessons are given each Tuesday in theology, literature, social science and home making, with a day's activites each month called Work Meeting devoted to the practice and teaching of such skills as cooking, sewing, quilting, crocheting, use and care of home appliances, child care, and many more. A bazaar is held annually in late November or early December with a dinner and hand made items for sale. The ladies also go out each month in pairs to visit every home in the church, taking an inspirational message to the mothers in their homes and offering assistance when needed or requested. This is called Visiting Teaching.

Genealogy, headed by the branch president, with assignments as required. This department teaches the saints (members) how to trace their family lines and lends assistance when requested.

"This is the one most importent tenet and activity of the Church," said President Ober and in Salt Lake City it has the largest genealogical library in the world, where all records are available to anyone interested, member or nonmember. Many local genealogists have visited it. Members are also active in local genealogical groups, teaching classes, making available printed forms for recording family groups and backgrounds, providing invidual assistance, etc. In fact, the Ouachita Valley Museum in Monroe was the result of a group originally founded by a member of the Church, Mrs. Travis T. Tynes Sr. (Doris Whitaker Tynes), for the purpose of genealogical research, historical research, establishing a museum, whence came the Ouachita Historical Society and the Museum of today."

Meetings are regularly scheduled at the Latter-Day Saint Church as follows: Sunday: Priesthood Meeting at 8:30 A.M. Sunday School at 10:00 A.M. Testimony Meeting at 11:00 A.M. on first Sunday of each month only. Sacrament Meeting at 6:30 P.M., except no evening meeting on first Sunday. Tuesday: Relief Society Meeting at 1 P.M. on 1st, 3rd and 4th Tuesdays, with Work Meeting at 10 A.M. on 2nd Tuesday each month. Mutual Improvement Association, Boy Scouts and Genealogy at 7:30 P.M. Friday: Primary at 4:30 P.M.

Once each calendar quarter (dates selected) a Conference is held in Monroe for all branches in the North Louisiana District, which is attended and conducted by authorities from the Gulf States Mission, with headquarters in Shreveport.

The Monroe Branch of the Church has sent two full - time missionaries into the mission field. In January, 1962, Miss Marjorie Geverne Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Johnson of Natchitoches, Louisiana, went to the western states for a year and a half. After completing her mission, she returned to Utah and is presently living and working there. In July, 1963, Charles Ramsey Rugg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Rugg of Monroe, also went to the western states for a two year mission, and is presently located in Californa. He will return to Monroe in July of this year, at which time he expects to resume his studies at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Branch President Ober said, "A warm welcome is extended to anyone wishing to attend any of our meetings. Full - time, traveling missionaries are also located in Monroe and West Monroe, and are available at any time to call on those interested in learning more of the church and the Gospel of Jesus Christ as revealed and restored in the latter days."

DR. WALTER R. COURTENAY

Daily Series At Covenant Opens Today

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn, Dr. Walter R. Courtenay, will open a five-day series of services today at Covenant Presbyterian Church, 1901 Milton St., it was announced by the Rev. Wayne Gray, pastor.

Dr. Courtenay spoke at a series of services at Covenant Church last July.

He will preach at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. services today, and Monday through Thursday at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. services. On Thursday, he also will speak at the noon luncheon meeting of the Monroe Rotary Club. In another service today at 5:30 p.m. he will address a meeting of high school and college age youth.

'CONCILIUM' LAUNCHED

NEW YORK (AP) — The Paulist Press has launched a monumental Catholic publishing project, called "Concilium," keyed to and inspired by the Second Vatican Council. Plans are for the issuance during the next five years of 50 volumes by leading church scholars on the theme, "Theology in the Age of Renewal." The first volume, out this month, is "The Church and Mankind — Dogma," edited by Dutch theologian Edward Schillebeeck.

The Pastor's Corner

MORMONISM
Its beginning and development.

Mr. Ober, Monroe
Branch President
Latter Day Saints

Mormonism began in the early 1800's. A young man only fourteen years of age was interested in religion. There was a widespread religious movement in the country at that time. Everyone expected their neighbors to be affiliated with some church. Joseph Smith was interested, but was confused at the various sects which were active in that area. He lived near Palmyra, in western New York.

To settle his confusion, he went to a grove of trees to pray for wisdom as he was told in James 1:5, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." While in the grove, he experienced a vision. Space only permits a brief outline of his experience, although he later wrote a detailed description.

While he was kneeling and praying, he was seized by a terrific force and thrown on his back. He struggled with this force a long time. When he thought he was to be overcome, he saw a light over his head. It descended on him and he saw two personages whose brightness was greater than the noon day sun. One of them spoke to him saying, "This is My Beloved Son. Hear Him!" He was told by these Personages that the true Gospel was not on the earth. He was to be an instrument in the restoration of the true Gospel of Jesus Christ, and in the establishment of His Church.

'FIRST VISION'

Latter-Day Saints refer to this experience as the "First Vision". Joseph Smith learned in this vision that God lives; that Jesus is in His image, a separate and distinct person; that as in the days of Moses, Isaiah, Jeremiah and Paul, revelation is genuine and real. All of these things were different from what was being taught in that time.

When Joseph shared this experience with his family and friends, he met with belief from his family, but the various ministers treated the story with contempt and bitterness. They said that revelation and visions had ceased with the ancient apostles. While these people believed God had spoken to His servants the prophets in the days of David and Samuel, both of whom were young, it was incredible to them that a young farm boy of their own acquaintance would receive a revelation from God. But the odd thing was not that they did not believe him, even the ancient prophets were not always accepted in their lifetime, but that they reacted with such hatred and bitterness. Normally such a person would be treated with pity or generally be ignored.

For the next three and one-half years, Joseph Smith led the life of an ordinary farm boy. One evening he was engaged in prayer before retiring to bed and prayed for reassurance of his acceptance unto God. He received another Heavenly manifestation. His room grew exceedingly bright and he saw before him a personage dressed in white. He introduced himself as Moroni, a resurrected being. Joseph was told that Moroni was the last survivor of a cultured and civilized people who lived upon the American continent. He had buried the records of his people which had been inscribed upon golden plates by Moroni and his forebears over many centuries. Now they were to come forth, and were to be translated to become a power among men, "A New Witness for Christ." Moroni told Joseph Smith that, if he were faithful and worthy, he would become an instrument in the restoration of all things. He would be able to translate the records by "the gift and power of God." Moroni also explained the necessity of restoring the Gospel and Church of Jesus Christ.

REQUIRED TO WAIT

At this time, Joseph was approaching eighteen years of age. He was required to wait four years, during which he matured and proved himself, before he received the ancient records in September, 1827. Every year for those four years he had been instructed by this messenger where to go to find the plates. There was a large hill not far from his home, now known as the Hill Cumorah, where he found a stone box in which was a set of gold plates, gold leaves with engravings containing the history of the people of this continent, and the instruments known as the Urim and Thummim, spoken of in the Bible. Joseph went to the home of his wife's father in Harmony, Pennsylvania, and, with the aid of the Urim and Thummim and certain spiritual endowments which he had been given, translated the plates in sixty days. He had the assistance of a school teacher, Oliver Cowdery, and a well-to-do man, Martin Harris, in writing the translation. Other persons, one group of three men, and another group of eight men, saw the plates and handled them. These witnesses signed testimonials to the reality of the records and to the engravings thereon.

The Book of Mormon, from which we get our nickname of "Mormons," along with the early revelations which are known as the Doctrine and Covenants, and the Pearl of Great Price, are standard works of the Church. These do not supersede the Bible or take it's place. They are merely additional scripture which has been given to us that we may know the things which God has revealed to His people through the ages.

The Church was officially organized on April 6, 1830, with six men as the first members. Within one year the membership had reached fifteen hundred. It is difficult for us today to realize the intensity of the religious intolerance of that day. The climax was reached with the murder of Joseph and Kyrum Smith in the Carthage jail while under the protection of the governor of the state of Illinois. Finally the Church was forced to leave Nauvoo, the city they built which became the most prosperous in Illinois. Most people are familiar with the 1200-mile journey across the plains by ox team and hand carts, leaving their homes and everything they could not carry. Today the desolate Salt Lake Valley they saw has become a fertile showplace. They founded hundreds of settlements throughout the West in what are now Arizona, Colorado, California, Nevada, Idaho, New Mexico, and western Canada.

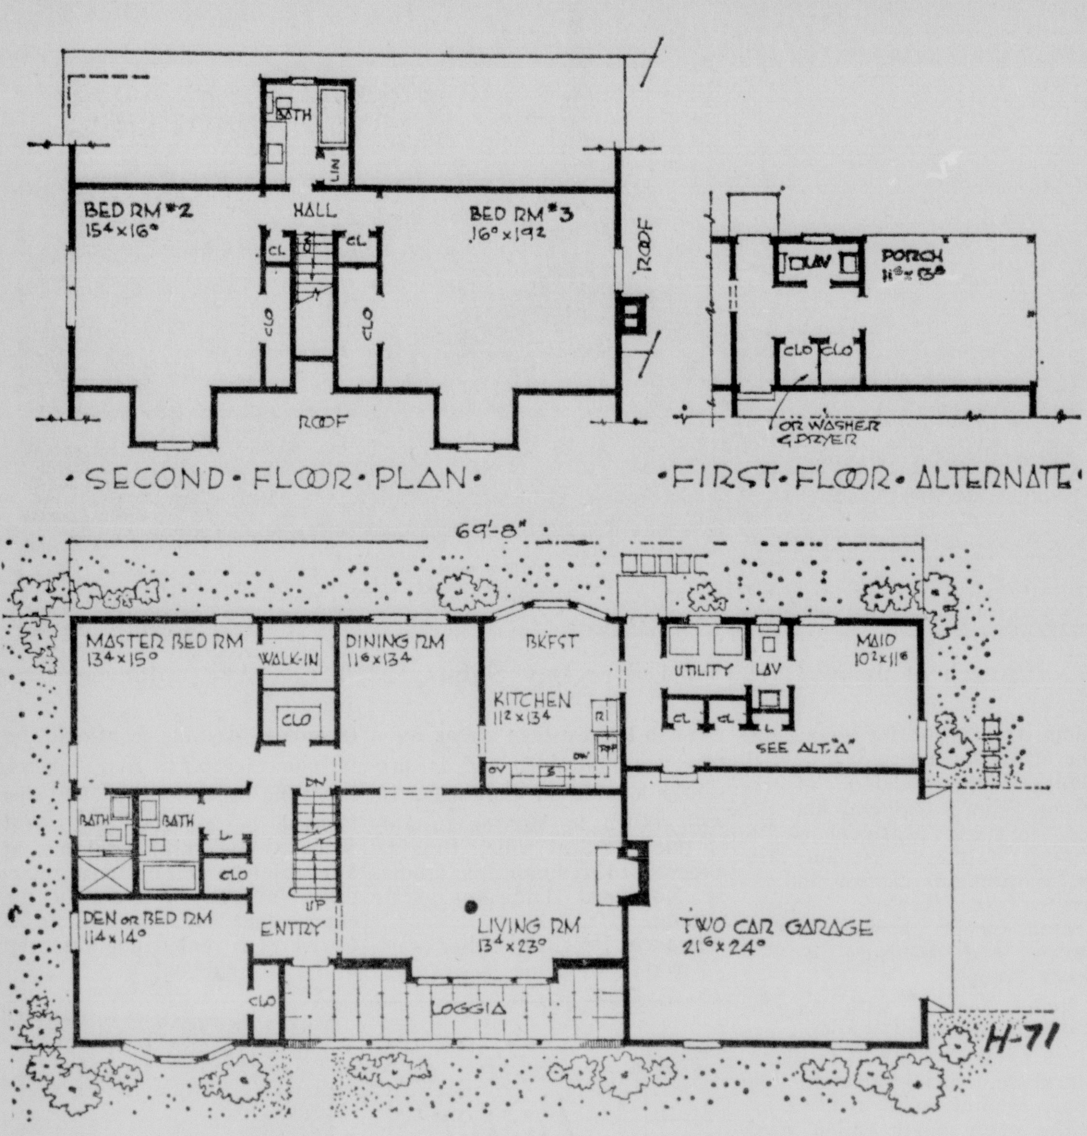
THERE'S A WELCOMING air to the traditional design and materials of this 1½-story expansion house, which has 1662 square feet of living area on the main floor and 954 additional square feet of habitable space above.



FLOOR PLANS: When the second-floor expansion area is utilized, this house converts from a two-bedroom to a four-bedroom residence. In fact, a fifth bedroom is possible in the space behind the garage, for which the architect gives alternate plans.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Traditional Charm Seen In Expansion House

By ANDY LANG

In building a new home with an expansion area, there is often a choice of finishing off the extra space during the original construction or delaying it until it is actually needed.

Generally, it is more economical to have the expansion section completed at the time the house is built. But some families are reluctant to put out extra money for rooms that will not be used at once. There is no one rule that applies to all, budgetary differences being what they are.

Whatever decision is made, it is essential that the house design selected include an expansion area which permits practical and economical use of the extra space. Design H-71, the latest in the House of the Week series, has this kind of layout. Architect Fenick A. Vogel has provided a second-floor plan for two large bedrooms, four closets and a complete bathroom. There dormers, two at the front and one at the rear, add a charming traditional note to the exterior. And the interior dormer space can be effectively utilized especially by youngsters who might need a private nook for studying.

FIRST FLOOR

For the family which does not immediately need the upstairs bedrooms, there are two bedrooms on the main floor, with five closets in this wing of the house. Two of these closets are available for the occupants of the master bedroom, one inside the room, the other just outside the door. Both are of the walk-in variety. This bedroom also has a private bathroom with a stall shower. A second bathroom, entered from the hall, is backed up against the first, an expense-cutting arrangement in the installation of plumbing fixtures.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-71.

The living room, 23' long, is directly to the right of the front entrance. It boasts a handsome, traditional fireplace, an extended front window and an unusual amount of wall space, making it appear even larger than it is. The adjoining dining room has windows looking out on the rear yard, with doorways to the living room, kitchen and bedroom hall. There is a handy L-layout of counters and cupboards in the kitchen, with a bowed rear window, somewhat unusual for this type of room.

To the right of the kitchen and behind the garage is an area for which architect Vogel has provided alternate plans. In one plan, there is a section for utilities, a lavatory, three closets and what is called a maid's room, but which we will more practically call a spare room. The alternate plan calls for a lavatory, two closets and a porch, covered and screened if you wish. There is even an alternate to this, with a washer-dryer combination suggested as a possible substitute for the two closets. This entire area, regardless of which plan is used, is accessible from the kitchen, the two car garage and the rear.

DEN OR BEDROOM

A look at the floor plans will show the front bedroom on the main floor designed as "den or bedroom" The theory here is that a small family which doesn't need this room for sleeping can turn it into a den or library, since it is easily reached from the front hall or living room.

There's a look of old-fashioned charm about the exterior, with its covered front entrance, matching dormers, bowed windows and wooden shingles. If you like a traditional house with a welcoming appearance and a well-designed expansion area, this one fills the bill.

Rose Blossom Fragrances Vary Greatly

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

You can get an argument with no trouble at all about which roses have the sweetest, strongest or the most fragrance. We've gone into the subject frequently and have concluded to our own satisfaction, if to no one else's, that the scene depends considerably on the individual nose.

Some folk have scent blindness, just as some do color blindness. Personal habits, such as smoking, may dull your sense of smell.

Recently, Marilyn Lane of The Miami News gathered a panel of what she described as educated noses for a serious sniffing session

The noses were attached to cosmetic buyers from Miami department stores. All have been sniffing perfumes, colognes, soaps and other items for years.

Roses, Marilyn noted properly, do not always smell like roses. There are more than two score elementary odors. Some roses emit the scent of apples in the sun, lemons, spices and herbs, depending on the oil they contain.

GROWN IN TESTS

The roses used in the test were Eiffel Tower, a pink hybrid tea; Helen Traubel, an orange-yellow; Sutter's Gold, yellow; Sweet Afton, a lovely pink, and Mirandy, a deep red.

The four judges circled the roses.

A majority found that Mirandy had the strongest scent. Red roses generally have more rose scent than others.

The panel reported Sweet Afton had a distinct lemon scent, although one judge found an apple-like fragrance. Members also reported identifying clove from Eiffel Tower, apple and rose from Helen Traubel, and nasturtium from Sutter's Gold.

They agreed to rest their noses a bit before deciding which scent would be best for the perfume industry. The concensus was Sutter's Gold, for its not-so-sweet delicacy.

Eiffel Tower won as the best all-around rose for color, beauty and fragrance.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Timely Designs

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center missed the regular monthly program generally presented by Dr. John Wright, due to his illness. We hope he will soon be well. The program substituted was entitled "Designs, At A Moment's Notice." So often we find that we need an arrangement on a moment's notice. Especially if company is coming unexpectedly to our home.

Now is a time when flowers are scarce so this program was based on designs made with foliage and accessories. These accessories included fruits, potted plants, weathered wood, and figurines. We always have foliage of some type in the yard that we can cut quickly for line material or filler.

Weathered wood is very handy to have where we can put our hands on it. In my case I went to the attic where I store the pieces that I have cleaned and pruned for designs. Almost all of us keep the fruit bowl or basket filled, especially when there are youngsters in the home.

Many of us buy interesting accessories or receive them as gifts. They are usually tucked away in a book case or on a shelf, and are the elements with which our "Moment's Notice" design is made.

FRUITS, NUTS

The first design contained fruits of all types — grapes, apples, oranges, bananas, and a few pecans. Into a pineapple designed container these fruits were quickly placed. This container was one that I had termed a "white elephant," simply because I never used it. This proved to be the ideal accessory container for the informal design containing fruits of all types. To finish this design I simply place a grouping of fern in the top to resemble the leaves of the large pineapple. The fruits showing through the basket weave wire made a very colorful and interesting design suitable for the luncheon table or patio.

CURVED DRIFTWOOD

The next design was inspired by a large, curving piece of driftwood that I placed on a bamboo mat. For height I placed a potted foliage plant to the back. Three lotus pods were placed within the central part of the design. For focal interest a large hand-carved frog figurine was placed on the mat in front of the curving wood. To make him contrast in color I placed a sea grape leaf under him (dried light brown). This resembled a lily pad. Thus the design had the feeling of an out-of-doors scene, appropriate for the den or family room.

CONTAINER FOR GRAPES

Design three was made with weathered wood, also. An interesting pine knot which resembled a rocket served as a container for black grapes. For height a green water bottle containing variegated euonymous was placed to the back. Black grapes also hung from the lip of the water jar which created a flowing line throughout the design. For accent, sprigs of the variegated foliage were placed within the line of grapes. This would be a quickie design which would serve on the buffet table in a moment's notice.

The last design was one that would be suitable for the boy's room or den. Driftwood again served. This piece was bulky, forming a horizontal curving line. A tall, erect pine branch was placed to the back, right side of the wood. A large needle holder secured the pine in place. This resembled a tree in the forest. To finish this scene and add life and interest I placed three frolicking brown, ceramic horses near the base of the wood. Simplicity is the keynote for these designs. There isn't time to fret over them—so, it really is an enjoyment to make these once in a while for our own home designs. It gives us a chance to practice using our accessories. From designs such as these we may get more substantial ideas for our interpretive designs in the shows. We learn to have more confidence in ourselves each time we try to create an original design. Try it — often.

Next Wednesday our timely Garden Center program will be presented by guest, Mrs. Woodrow Hathorn, Monroe Camellia expert. It is timely because it follows the Camellia Show that is being held now in Monroe at the Central Bank, sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club. Mrs. Hathorn is an active member of this club.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Fertilize Bulb Beds

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This is the time to fertilize established plantings of bulbs. Just as the foliage is coming out, daffodils, hyacinths, tulips and all the spring flowering bulbs can use the food supplied by scattering a complete fertilizer over the beds where they are growing.

If there is a mulch on the beds, the bulbs will benefit more from the feeding if the mulch can be raked off lightly and replaced after the fertilizer is scattered on. Sometimes, this is not possible, and gardeners just put on more fertilizer than they would use without a mulch.

Do not forget to feed the groups of bulbs that one always has spotted about a garden. It is easier to feed these clumps than to lift them and they will go on multiplying and flowering for a long time with an annual feeding.

In most gardens, the small groups of bulbs, here and there, give the garden a great deal of its character. Unless your soil is very, very rich when you first plant bulbs, they will exhaust the food in it in three or four seasons. Then, they will just stand there and multiply without flowering.

OLD CLUMPS

Most gardens are full of old clumps of perennials that have ceased to flower. If the plants are worthwhile, feed them fairly heavily right now and take them up and divide them later. Spring flowering kinds may reward you with some bloom, and the summer and fall blooming ones may be divided in April and May. This hardly applies to the tall bearded irises that are overcrowded, as fertilizer may rot the rhizomes and, if buds were not formed last summer, you cannot induce them to flower now by feeding them. They must be lifted and divided in early or mid-summer.

If you have any of the old, ordinary, un-named Salvia farinacea, lift it and divide it and increase your show of this beautiful light, powdery blue perennial that blooms for such a long time. The variety, Blue Bedder is supplanting the really blue ordinary type. While Blue Bedder is all right, it is violet and not blue at all. We have plenty of violet petunias that supply this color in the summer garden, and we must not lose the lighter more nearly blue ordinary Salvia farinacea.

Perennials should be rated by the length of time they will flower in a garden as well as by the beauty of their flowers. Under this kind of scoring, the native Salvia farinacea will outdo every other perennial which we can grow here in the Southern States.

It is drought resistant, easy to grow and needs only to be divided up every few years to really show off. In most gardens, it fades away from complete neglect because people do not seem to realize that any plant which flowers so profusely needs to be fed and divided. Seed catalogues seem to offer only Blue Bedder these days, so you will have to get the old true blue from another gardener.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The size of a bathroom often has litle relation to the dimensions of the rooms in the rest of the house.

Bathroom sizes run in cycles. Therefore, the size of your bathroom depends not on how large your house is, but when that house was built. But whether it's large or small, the bathroom can yield additional storage space by utilizing the area under the sink or, as it's more formally called, the lavatory.

By placing a cabinet under the sink, a double purpose is served. One is concealment of the plumbing lines. The other — and primary purpose — is to provide a place for the storage of towels, hand cloths, soap, cleansers, brushes, etc. A big advantage of using this space is that it ordinarily is wasted and that utilization of it in no way cuts down the size of the room by filling any useful wall area.

Construction of the cabinet is simple, since you are building little more than a box, except that there will be no back to it. By leaving off the back, the cabinet can be made in your workshop or some other part of the house and then slid into place without interfering either with legs of the lavatory or the pipe lines. Shelves can be placed in the cabinet easily by using special shelf brackets. Be sure to place the shelves in such position that they can be removed in the event that it is necessary at some later date to make a repair under the sink. (You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y., 11431.)

MATERIALS

You can use lumber, hardboard or plywood for the front door and sides of the cabinet, attaching it to a simple framework of 1 by 2's.

Spray Now For Insects

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Now that the camellias are blooming our attention is drawn to scale, if plants are infested with scale insects. Early spring is the best time to spray to control this insect.

A good material that has proved quite effective is dimethorte (cygon). Be sure to follow the manufacturers directions for proper mixtures. A few gardeners have called regarding the use of cygon. Some individuals are of the opinion that this will cause the plant not to bloom. According to our LSU specialists in horticulture, this is absolutely not true. Your home demonstration agent has used cygon for several years and has experienced excellent results. The only harmful effect noticed thus far in using cygon is if several applications may defoliate the plant. I have used it as a soil drench on several large camellia plants badly infested with scale and have been most pleased.

EMULSION

Our old standby for control of scale is oil emulsion. If this is used the spray should be applied before new growth begins, about late March. Be sure to follow manufacturer's directions.

Our specialist recommends that you, Mrs. Gardener, remove and destroy leaves that are heavily infested with scale insects. Prune out non growing branches on inside of plants.

Another job for you, Mrs. Gardener, is to begin a scheduled spray program if you have roses. The job needs to be started as soon as plants begin to leaf out. The best control is to take preventive measures. Once black spot is present, it becomes quite difficult to control. If a coating of a fungicide such as dithone, maneb or phattan is on the foliage at all times, disease problems will not be too severe.

SUGGESTIONS

If you, Mr. or Mrs. Gardener, use dusts or sprays to control disease or insects on plants, following are some suggestions for using them safely: First always read the label before using dust or spray. Keep dusts and sprays out of reach of children and pets. They should be stored outside the home under lock and key. Always store sprays and dusts in original containers and keep them tightly closed. Never keep them in anything but the original container. Never smoke while spraying or dusting, avoid inhaling sprays or dusts. When directed on the label, wear protective clothing and masks. If dusts or sprays are spilled on you remove contaminated clothing immediately and wash thoroughly. Wash hands and face and change to clean clothing after spraying or dusting. Always dispose of empty containers.

PORTABLE LAMPS

You, Mrs. Homemaker, should be in the know when shopping for lamps. To spread light over the seeing area in a location, a lamp must have good height. If you use short, squatty lamps in two or three locations then consider them simply as decorative. Today's home furnishing styles generally call for tall or medium height lamps, so the home can have good lighting plus smart styling. Be sure your lamp shades are wide enough at the bottom to permit the light to spread over the entire working area and deep enough to conceal the light bulb from view, whether seated or standing. Shades should have white or near white lining to reflect as much light as possible, and be sufficiently dense to prevent glaring blub brightness from shining through the material of the shade.

A THOUGHT

Remember to be kind to your enemies, because after all you made them.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

This column goes to press on Thursday so we can't report yet on opening night reaction, but from all appearances, "Sound of Music" will be a smash success.

The "sold out" sign is already out for several performances and other nights are filling rapidly, indicating the genuine enthusiasm Monroe's Little Theater members always show for a gay, beautifully staged production, especially if it boasts some of the most tuneful songs written in years.

The foresight with which a director casts his show sometimes seems to border on witchcraft, so accurately does he divine just how a person will fit into a role. And Executive Director Lonny Fraze made some uncannily wise selections for "Sound of Music." Looking at the cast, and the roles they portray, it is difficult to imagine anyone else in that role!

HIGH SPIRIT

Camille Wood is carrying the high spirit of Eliza (the cockney waif of "My Fair Lady") into Maria, the shy postulant of the Tyrol Alps. Her energy is amazing. Even after weeks of intensive rehearsals, she is able to sing the lively songs of "Sound of Music" with freshness and vitality.

The military background of Sgt. Major Bill Blythe serves him well in his characterization of the retired captain of the Imperial Austrian Navy. The disciplined efficiency which he, as Captain von Trapp, demands of his household, including his seven motherless children, is reminiscent of the days of the Junkers.

With so large a cast, and a limited amount of space, we can't discuss every role in this play, but V. P. Dalrymple as Max, the lovable dandy without a trace of character, and Charlotte Turpin as Elsa, the lovely millionairess, will stand out for their brilliance. Their duet, "How Can Love Survive," is wonderful for its comic satire.

SOMETHING ELSE

In last week's column we left out two of the girls who sing in the nun's chorus, Mary Greenwood and Betsy Taylor. And since then, two of Little Theater's most faithful supporters, Beryl Franklin and Scherk Bogan have joined a ball scene as the debonair and elegant guests who were a part of every Austrian party in the gay years before Nazism swept through the peaceful mountains.

A large bouquet is due our musical director, William Herring, director of the Ouachita Parish High School choir. Bill has had wide experience in musical comedy work. Many of our audience will remember that he conducted the music for the Jackson (Miss.) Little Theter production of "Bye, Bye Birdie".

A play with the magnitude of "Sound of Music" not only requires a large cast, it calls for a tremendous amount of backstage effort. A fine group answered Technical Director Chris West's call for a crew. Garland Moore accepted the job of stage manager and Suzy West is serving as his assistant.

OTHER HELPERS

Rick Walters and Bill Turpin are on lights while Joellen Thompson handles sound. Prop girls are Claudia Roberts and Sally Wing.

Dressers for the many fast costume changes are Suzie Ernst, Kathy Jones, Kathy Fontana, Loretta Jones, Mrs. Valda Taylor, Mrs. June Swayze, Mrs. Pat Meriwether, Ann Southwell, Hazel Oliver, Jo Brian and Maggie Doyle.

The hard working stage crew are Danny Martin, Ed Alger, Steve Parker, Travis McNeill, Joe Mangin, Robert Crittenden, Van Marsh Jr., Rick Taylor, Gary Fontana, Tom Ernst, Dennis Cooke and Cliff Farnam.

For those who haven't reserved their seats yet, the box office at Strauss Playhouse will be open each day from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m. for the run of the show, except the day of the matinee, Feb. 28, when hours are 10:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. The telephone number is 323-1235. Or reservations may be had by writing Box 868, Monroe.

Comedy Slated By Tech Group

RUSTON (Special) — "Come Blow Your Horn," a comedy by Neil Simon, will be presented by the Louisiana Tech Theater Players in collaboration with Gene Jones of Olla, a graduate student, March 2-6 in the Little Theater here.

The cast for the play includes John Barham, Clinton, playing Alan Baker; Peggy Romero, Kaplan, as Peggy Evans; Willie Reese, Franlinton, as Buddy Baker; Jerry Shidal, Monroe, N. C., as Mr. Baker; Lynda Brooks, Ruston, as Connie Dayton; Camilla McCartney, Ruston, as Mrs. Baker; and Alice Kahn, Shreveport, as a visitor.

"Come Blow Your Horn" opened on Broadway on Feb. 2, 1961, and ran for more than a year.

Engineers Pick New Officers

RUSTON (Special) — Members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Louisiana Tech have elected officers for this semester.

They are Ronald C. Loyd of Hosston, president; Jimmy R. Goodwin of Tullos, vice president; Patrick C. Kelly of Minden, secretary, and James M. Langford of Ruston, treasurer.

STAMPS

U.S. Plans Issue On Churchill

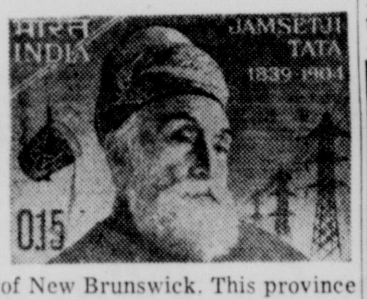
The U. S. Post Office Department will issue a commemorative stamp this year in memory of the late Sir Winston Churchill who endeared himself to the hearts of many Americans during the war years and was even made an honorary U. S. citizen by President Kennedy. Sir Winston's mother was an American and he often reminded the world of that fact. No date or place of issuance has been announced as yet.

Other news from Postmaster General John A. Gronouski's office gives the time and place for the following 5 cent commemoratives: Civil War Centennial Series — Appomattox, Va., April 9; Magna Charta — Jamestown, Va., June 15; Salvation Army — New York, July 2; Herbert Hoover — West Branch, Iowa, Aug. 10; Traffic Safety — Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3.

India has issued a new 15 naya paisa stamp honoring Jametji Tata, Indian industrialist, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. He is best known for the progress made in the field of steel production and electric power generation in India. The stamp depicts a portrait of Tata with a background showing a ladle pouring molten steel and electric power transmission lines. The dates of his birth and death, 1839 - 1904, are inscribed below the portrait.

Nepal has issued a two denomination set of stamps to commemorate the coming of age of His Royal Highness Birendra Beer Bikran Shah Dev, the Crown Prince of Nepal. It was his 19th birthday. The denominations are 10 and 15 paisas and each shows his portrait.

Canada's first postage stamp of 1965 honors the purple violet, floral emblem of the Province of New Brunswick. This province has a rich stamp history and issued the first adhesive "postage labels" used in North America, preceding the U. S. by four years. An original sheet of these stamps is on display in Kent, England.



Malta has issued a new definitive set of 19 stamps showing various aspects of Maltese history from the Neolithic Age to the present day, reports the Crown Agents in Washington. The periods highlighted are Neolithic, Punic, Roman, Knight of Malta, Maltese Navy, French Occupation, Maltese Corps of the British Army, British Rule, International Eucharistic Conference, Self Government, Gozo Civil Council, State of Malta, Independence, Allied Forces Mediterranean, The Maltese Islands, Patron Saints.

CAMERA ANGLES

There's Difference In The Two 'Hows'

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

I recently watched a couple of photographers in action and could see the difference between "knowhow" and "guess - how." Neither was a professional photographer, that is, one from whom perfection might be expected. But one moved smoothly, adeptly and quickly and the other hesitated, checked incessantly and changed his mind often in handling his camera.

It boils down to the basic ability of knowing your camera and mastering the simple mechanics of loading film, taking and setting your exposure adjustments, focusing and shooting flash. Actually these are all mechanical adjustments which a photographer should attend to automatically so that he might concentrate his major attention on the subject matter.

BETTER PICTURES

It is reasonable to suppose that anyone devoting full attention to the subject in front of the camera, studying the pose and camera angle and alertly watching for the peak instant to capture an expression or physical action, will get better pictures than a person fumbling with camera adjustments.

We are all aware that experience is the best teacher. In other words, if an amateur took enough pictures he would acquire the necessary experience and confidence that comes with "know-how."

Though experience is best, it isn't the only method of learning — there is another way. It is called practice, a form of camera homework. You start by gathering all the instruction booklets for the cameras or equipment that you own. They should be studied with the camera or equipment at hand for reference. A review of instructions often leads to greater understanding of the equipment as well as the operations.

The next step is a dry run of the various procedures that are part of camera handling. Many people find it troublesome to load film. Sacrifice a roll of film if there isn't an outdated roll to practice with, but load film again and again and again. Eventually you'll discover there's a knack to doing it smoothly and correctly. After that, there'll be no fumbling.

HOLDING PRACTICE

It pays to practice holding your camera until you find a steady, comfortable grip while changing from vertical to horizontal views and back again. And learn to squeeze the release button to get away from any possibility of camera movement that comes with jabbing a finger.

You can also practice setting combinations of shutter speeds and lens openings so that you can shift to a faster or slower speed or to a larger or smaller aperture without an instant's hesitation.

Fumble-free focusing is another skill that can be acquired through dry run practicing. Shift your subjects from close-ups to distant objects and see how fast you can zero in on the target. Learn to estimate distances and check your estimates with the distance scale. Many professionals shoot a "six-foot" or an "eight-foot" or a "12-foot" shot, knowing the precise settings for a perfect exposure at those distances. From a series of test photos you can make up your own camera settings for any future pictures involving a close-up, a full length or a group, especially in connection with flash shooting.

CALCULATIONS

Become thoroughly familiar with the calculations concerning your flash unit and your favorite film. Test the guide number on a practice roll of film and make sure no slight adjustment is necessary. After a test, attach your own scale to the back of the flash reflector for future reference and instant setting.

All of this homework with your camera will add up to better pictures in the future. They say "practice makes perfect" so if you would like perfect pictures you shouldn't object to prior practice.

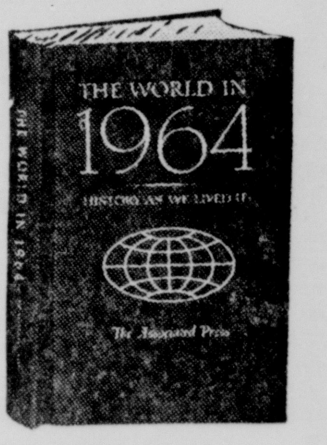
What's one YEAR in his Young Life?

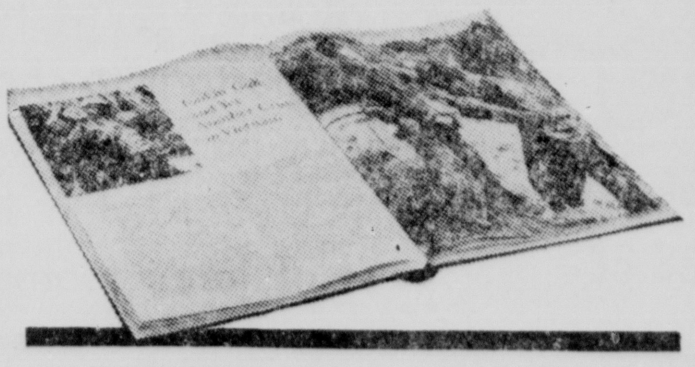
Take the year of 1964. To a carefree youngster it was a time to play, study, and play some more. Meanwhile there were riots in Panama, and quakes in the land of the midnight sun. Great figures such as Hoover and MacArthur passed on as the Great Society was being born. There were headlines almost daily on the war in Viet Nam, and on riots in the streets of the north and south. The Warren Report reminded the world of a tragedy still in everyone's mind. Other events crowded in.

They are recorded for now and forever in The Associated Press' 300-page volume --

THE WORLD IN 1964
HISTORY AS WE LIVED IT



In a few years, the carefree boy will be a serious student. He will want to have a true insight into this year and other years. By having this first-of-a-series volume published by the world's foremost news and newspicture organization in your home library, you will own a history and reference book unmatched elsewhere. Be sure you send for one for yourself or for a student in your family. "THE WORLD IN 1964" is available through this newspaper exclusively.



THE 300-PAGE, HARD BACK VOLUME CONTAINS:

• Month by month, the stories that struck home to newspaper readers. • Hundreds of black and white news photographs, displayed so you can appreciate them. • About 24 pages of color photographs. • Maps, including a double spread world map in color spotting the year's news events. • A chronology of the year's major events for easy reference. • An almanac of basic current information on U.S. and foreign governments, sports, business and economics, births, deaths and marriages.

THE COST: ONLY $3 FOR A MAJOR PUBLICATION THAT ORDINARILY WOULD RETAIL FOR $8 OR MORE.

Great Wind Blows From Sun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Out in space a great wind is blowing from the sun.

It is not like an earthly wind, but is made up of patrons and alpha particles, and is propelled outward by the sun's energy at a speed of 200 to 300 miles per second.

When these particles reach the vicinity of the earth, strange things begin to happen. The earth itself is a huge magnet and this has a profound effect on its environment.

Space scientists, probing with specialized and highly sophisticated satellites and orbiting laboratories, are now able to draw a pretty clear picture of what happens to the solar wind when it strikes the earth.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration told Congress about it last week when they appeared before the House Space Committee to support NASA's request for $5.2 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1.

The first reaction occurs about 55,000 miles away from earth. In the direction of the sun there the solar wind first touches on the earth's magnetic field and forms a sort of shock wave that curves back on each side of the globe in a parabolic shape.

That boundary separates the undisturbed solar wind of space from the turbulent inside region disordered by the magnetic field. It was discovered by Explorer 18.

About 40,000 miles from earth in the same direction is another front called the magnetospheric boundary. This was observed by Explorers 12 and 14.

The region between these two boundaries is now being measured with instruments on Explorers 18 and 21, and also with a satellite called OGO1. The letters stand for Orbiting Geophysical Observatory.

Another satellite mapping these mysteries is called IMP, or Interplanetary Monitoring Probe. Both OGO and IMP are in long cigar-shaped orbits, bringing them close around earth at one end of the cigar and far out in space at the other end.

Closer to the earth are several fixed belts of electrons called the Van Allen belts. They were among the first of these phenomena discovered when the United States began exploring the near reaches of earth.

Elsewhere there have been observed regions of intense electron fluxes which are not permanently trapped as in the Van Allen belts, and which apparently come and go.

The earth's magnetic field is swept out behind it by the solar wind. Instruments on Explorer 18 have mapped this magnetic tail out to 130,000 miles, or halfway to the moon. There are indications that the tail extends well beyond the moon. In many respects it resembles the tail of a comet.

The nearest electron belt to earth, less than 1,500 miles out, is an artificial one.

It was produced on July 9, 1962, when the United States exploded a nuclear device high above the atmosphere over the South Atlantic. There are still remnants of it left.

2 Hospitalized After Collision East Of Monroe

Two persons were hospitalized following a collision late Friday on state highway 594 about a mile and a half east of Monroe.

Michael Howell, 21, 909 Atkinson St., and Nancy Thomas, 23, 3312 Owl St., both of Monroe remained in St. Francis hospital Saturday with various cuts, bruises, and abrasions. They were rushed to the hospital by a passing motorist.

Another person, Bobby Sharbond, 13, of Rt. 3, Monroe, sustained bruises and abrasions but was not hospitalized.

State Police who investigated the accident said the collision occurred as the auto driven by Lonnie W. Sharbond, 52, of Rt. 3, Box 16, Monroe, was heading east on La. 594 as the vehicle driven by Nancy Thomas entered the highway from a private driveway.

Both autos were towed from the scene by wreckers. State Police estimated the damages to the two autos at about $1200. Sharbond's auto was hit in the front, and the Thomas auto was hit in the left side.

Investigating officers charged Nancy Thomas with failure to yield.

Dinner At Tech Will Highlight Engineers Week

Highlight of activities of Louisiana Tech's observance of National Engineers Week, Feb. 21 - 27, will be a joint dinner meeting with the Monroe section of the Louisiana Engineering Society Wednesday at the Tech student center.

James W. Evans, executive vice president of the Hazeltine Corporation of Little Neck, N. Y. and a 1943 Tech engineering graduate in electrical engineering, will be principal speaker. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Evans of Ruston.

The Hazeltine Corporation is a pioneer in designing, developing and manufacturing electronic and electro - mechanical equipment and systems.

Two Die In Fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Fire swept through three homes here Saturday, and the bodies of two Negro men were found in the ashes.

They were Herman Jackson, 54, and the other man tentatively identified as David James, 70.

Businessmen Get New Tax Writeoff Windfall

NEW YORK (AP) — Business got a $700-billion windfall during the week. It will spur the economy.

President Johnson announced an easing of the impact of certain "reserve ratio" tests set forth by the Treasury Department in 1962, when it revised depreciation rules to permit faster writeoffs.

As a result, the amount of depreciation deductions many businesses are allowed to claim in calculating deductible income in their tax returns will be affected.

These deductions are designed to permit them to set aside money for replacing equipment as it wears out.

The "reserve ratio" tests, intended to make certain that businesses don't write off their equipment more quickly than they replace it, originally were to be enforced this year.

Now businesses have another year of grace.

The President made his announcement in an address to 1,100 business leaders attending a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board in Washington.

"The new rules will further encourage business to scrap old equipment and bring in new — and they will further help business to cut costs but to raise efficiency, to hold the line on prices but to keep our expansion going," he said.

The new rules were welcomed by spokesmen for steel producers, railroads, airlines and other companies.

Robert C. Tyson, chairman of the finance committee of U. S. Steel, commented: "If this hadn't happened, we'd have had to do some cutting somewhere."

He estimated that otherwise U. S. Steel might have lost 20 per cent of its depreciation writeoffs, which totaled $336 million last year.

Johnson also called for "a partnership for prosperity" among business, labor and government.

"The old rhythm of recessions cannot again be easily excused as either inevitable or unavoidable," he said. "The self-interest of any segment cannot again be justly raised above the self-restraint of all segments."

An estimate of the amount of business expansion in the final three months of 1964 was revised upward by the Commerce Department.

The gross national product—total of all goods and services—reached an annual rate of $634.5 billion in the fourth quarter. This was an increase of about $6.2 billion over the third quarter. The gain earlier had been calculated at $5.1 billion.

For all of 1964 the GNP totaled $622.6 billion, a gain of $38.7 billion or 6.5 per cent over 1963.

The Commerce Department also reported that new factory orders for durable goods in January rose 1 per cent from December. The total was $20.9 billion, up from $29.70 billion the previous month.

Factory shipments of durable goods edged to a record $20.7 billion from $20.6 billion in December.

Another favorable development was the report that publicly held corporations paid cash dividends of $1,385,200,000 in January, a gain of 17 per cent from the $1,187,500,000 a year earlier.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York said that deepening U.S. involvement in Viet Nam and the aggravation of balance-of-payments pressures have occasioned uneasiness in business and financial circles in recent weeks. It added, however, that there has been no discernable effect on actual business operations.

The automobile industry turned out its 4-millionth car of the 1965 model year during the week. Output for the week was estimated at 202,000 passenger cars, compared with 202,336 the previous week and 169,900 a year ago.

New car sales continued to run at a record pace in the first 10 days of February, when 234,869 U.S.-built cars were delivered.

The steel industry poured 2,676,000 tons of steel during the week, a gain of 0.1 per cent over the previous week, as the mills continued to operate at near capacity. Users were striving to build stockpiles as a hedge against a possible strike May 1.

However, there was talk that the May 1 deadline for agreement on a new labor contract may be extended because of the deadlock in the United Steelworkers Union election.

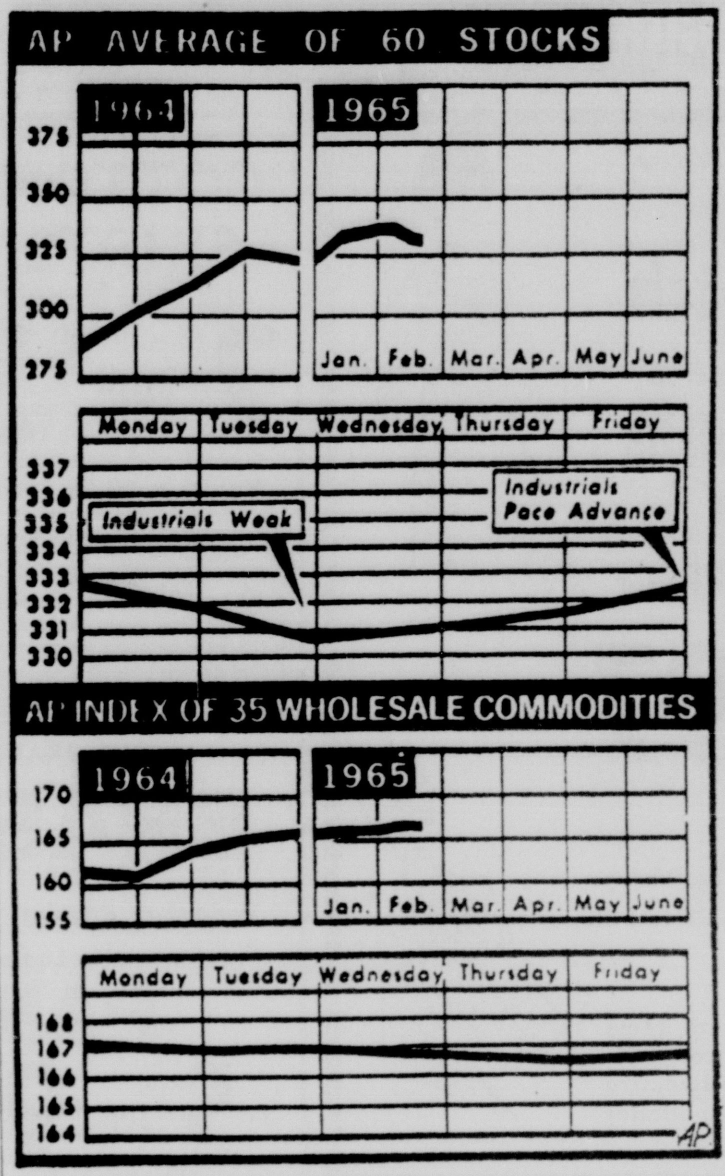
The price of aluminum sheet products went up. The move was initialed by Consolidated Aluminum Corp. and was followed by Aluminum Co. of America and Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp.

In one of the biggest merger agreements in recent years, Pure Oil Co. approved the offer of Union Oil Co. of California. The transaction was estimated at $660 million.

TAP, TAP, MRS TAPPEN

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — When a 50-foot elm tree fell on the William F. Tappen home, all six members of the family escaped injury — and only five of them were shaken by the crash.

Mrs. Tappen slept through it.



FOR THE SECOND straight week the Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved lower, closing Friday at 332.4 from 332.7 a week ago as shown in the above chart. The commodity index made its first weekly decline in a month when it closed at 166.7 from 166.2 in the preceding period. Food chalked up the largest loss. (AP Wirephoto)

MONROE DISTRICT

Level Pace Set In Area Drilling

Figures released by the Monroe Oil and Gas District office of Duncan S. Cook, director, revealed the same number of completions and new locations for the week ending Feb. 18 as the previous week.

The seven oil and gas wells drilled and completed in the district were in the North Shaw field of Concordia Parish, Calhoun field of Lincoln, two in the Monroe Gas field of Ouachita Parish, Buckhorn field in Tensas and two in the Monroe Gas field of Union Parish. (See listing below).

Applications to drill for the week were in Avoyelles, Concordia (2), LaSalle (2), Rapides (2) and Morehouse parishes. (See listing below).

Completions and applications to drill maintained about the same level as in the past few weeks. Continued fair weather should bring about increased activities in the district's fields.

Two re-completions were reported: Olla field of LaSalle Parish, Placid Oil Company's LaCent O&G No. 16, 13 BOPD, MCF gas and Monroe Gas field of Union Parish, Feazel, Anderson, Montgomery and Ford No. 8, 580 MCF gas, Monroe Gas Rock (formerly Harrell Sand.)

In the overall picture, there were 39 locations, 26 active, 43 inactive and three abandoned.

Hits Application

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — State Rep. Taylor O'Hearn called on all members of the Louisiana Legislature to join him Saturday in opposition to an application by Texaco.

Texaco wants to shift some of its coastal wells to offshore classifications for higher production allowables.

In a statement, O'Hearn opposed Texaco's application.

The Caddo Parish Republican said "approval of Texaco's request would be a terrible blow to the oil industry in Louisiana and would take income from many thousands of farmers and other landowners receiving royalty payments, as well as small independent oil operators. . .

Stock Market Loss Slight On Average

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a slight loss on average last week as the pace of trading simmered down from the previous week when the list fell sharply.

Wall Street seemed to be getting used to the idea of a continuous crisis in Viet Nam. News of the latest political-military upheaval in Saigon barely rippled the surface of Wall Street on Friday when stock prices scored a small gain.

The market's loss on the week was merely a loss in the Dow Jones industrial average and The Associated Press average. Based on the number of stocks rising as against those falling, the market was actually higher. Enough influential blue chips represented in the more closely-watched averages fell, however, so that these indicators were down a bit.

The AP 60-stock average was down .3 at 332.4.

A number of blue chips which have been prominent in the big rally this year to boost the Dow industrials above the "magic" 900 level were resting on their oars.

The week's total volume was 27,988,210 shares compared with 29,694,710 the previous week.

The airlines, very strong recently, stumbled on profit taking. Railroads, however, came up strong late in the week because of the new Treasury rules easing depreciation to an estimated extent of $400 to $600 million in tax returns for business this year.

Bonds ended the week mostly unchanged. U.S. government issues inched up until Thursday, then fell back after the Federal Reserve said its member banks free supplies of cash had diminished further.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged in dull trading.

On the New York Stock Exchange, corporate bond volume for the week totaled $56,358,000 par value, down from $59,990,000 for the week before.

Of 508 issues traded, 198 advanced, 201 declined and 100 were unchanged. Forty-three hit highs for the year. Seven dropped to lows for the year.

Oil Operators Appeal To LBJ On Imports Cuts

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Independent oil operators have made a direct appeal to President Lyndon B. Johnson for assistance in reducing oil imports.

H. A. True Jr., president of the 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Association of America, sent the White House this week a letter saying curtailment of Defense Department oil imports and foreign oil purchases would ease the administration's balance of payments problem.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., and 35 other senators wrote President Johnson a similar letter last Sept. 1.

The letter from the senators was referred to Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who in turn asked the Defense Department to make a separate reply on questions raised about military purchases.

The White House probably will take similar action on the letter from True, a Casper, Wyo., independent operator.

Less than two weeks after taking office on Nov. 22, 1963, Johnson told Udall he expected the Interior Department and not the White House to chart the administration's basic petroleum policies.

The President apparently has not changed his mind. At least he has made no public statements pertaining to the petroleum industry although he undoubtedly has been kept up to date on Interior Department decisions and reports.

The 36 senators told President Johnson the $300 million a year the Defense Department is spending for oil petroleum purchases is a substantial factor in the balance of payments problem.

True said the trade deficit due to oil, including the Defense Department foreign purchases and transportation costs paid to foreigners, has averaged $1.5 billion the last seven years. This, he said, is more than 40 per cent of the nation's total inbalance of international payments.

Second Well In Smithdale Field Tested

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The second well in the recently-discovered northeast Smithdale oil field of Amite County tested Saturday at a rate of 184 barrels of oil per day from perforations in the Tuscaloosa zone at 11,023-30 feet.

The new oiler is the Biglane, Shortridge Webster, Williams No. 1, McDonald sec. 11-4n-6e, northwest of the discovery well.

Another new oil field find in Adams County appeared near at a wildcat well west of the Glen Aubin field. The well is Serio-Punches No. M-1, Hamilton sec. 18-5n-3w, with reports oil shows were logged in four Wilcox sands below 6,566 feet. Total depth is 6,810 feet with production casing set at 6,670 feet.

Shell Oil Co. drilled below 4,300 feet in the Fender No. 1, sec. 27-2n-10e, second try in the Bay Springs oil field of Jasper County. The new start is west of the discovery well and is to be drilled to 17,000 feet. The discovery well continued to flow 612 barrels of oil per day from a sand in the Cotton Valley zone at 14,528-44 feet.

In Smith County, Pan American Petroleum Corp. is reported running electrical log to 16,520 feet in its wildcat, the Sorey No. 1, sec. 27-4n-8e, northwest of Bay Springs. Also in Smith County, Pan American and Larue-Smith Production Co. were drilling below 15,500 feet in their wildcat, the Williamson No. 1, sec. 23-3n-9e, with the venture to be drilled to 16,500 feet to test the Smackover lime zone.

In the recently discovered Pisgah oil field of Rankin County, California Co. ran production tests at its West No. 2, sec. 23-7n-4e, to test commercial worth of oil sands at 9,900 feet and at 10,186 feet. The potential producer is southwest of the discovery well and has production casing set to 10,600 feet.

In Hinds County, California Co. drilled below 8,100 feet in its wildcat, the Noble No. 1, sec. 13-5n-4w, southeast of Edwards. The venture has contract depth of 13,500 feet.

A new wildcat test in Yazoo County is to get underway with Southwest Gas Producing Co. clearing location for its Passons No. 1, sec. 23-10n-2w, near Bentonia with contract depth at 7,500 feet.

In the Merit field of Simpson County, Phillips Petroleum Co. finaled its School No. C-1, sec. 16-9n-4e, flowing 256 barrels from perforations at 13,806-16 feet.

Livestock Mart Trade Summary Of Week Listed

Grain Futures Price Shifts Mostly Minor

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market, pressed from both sides by strong influences, finished last week without radical price shifts.

A major depressing feature was the persisting strike of International Longshoremen's Association dock workers at Southern ports. The stoppage tied up all East and Gulf ports for about one month, but there were only two at week's end where no settlement was in sight — Galveston and Miami.

Partial resumption of work perked up soybean futures prices in the face of a pressing foreign demand for American soybeans. The strike killed millions of bushels of potential sales for wheat.

Rye and oats were caught in the strike squeeze, with little hopes of developing any overseas business to help with prices.

Soybeans closed 1¾ to 3½ cents a bushel higher for the week, March $3.02¼-¾; wheat ¼ higher to ⅝ lower, March $1.48⅞-1.49; corn ¾ lower to ½ higher, $1.27½; oats, ⅜-1½ lower, March 67¾-⅞; rye unchanged to ¾ lower, March $1.20¾.

Mormon Leader Much Improved

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — President David O. McKay, 91, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) was reported much improved Saturday and received a bouquet of carnations from President Johnson.

Latter-day Saints Hospital said President McKay was "quite satisfactory and he seems to be improving each day."

The flowers from Johnson arrived Friday night. Johnson and President McKay met twice during the 1964 campaign and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir sang at the presidential inauguration.

President McKay entered the hospital last Sunday night with lung congestion described as a result of a heart condition for which he was hospitalized last August.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Literature And History On Tap

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Books added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week have added a great deal to the strength of the literature and history collections. "Story Jubilee" is a very fine collection of short stories collected by White and Hallie Burnett. It contains some of the best short stories that have been published in the Story magazine. "The American Spirit in Literature" by Bliss Perry will be most helpful to students of American Literature. A delightful collection of humorous verse is "Marriage Lines" written by Ogden Nash. "Modern Theatre, Vol. 4" is a very good collection of modern plays, collected by Eric Bentley. "If You Don't Mind My Saying So" is a very splendid book of essays written by Joseph Wood Krutch. Mr. Krutch is a great American naturalist and this book deals with the subject of man and nature. "It All Started With Europe" is another of the very humorous books written by Richard Armour. "The Colours Of Clarity" is a very scholarly and erudite book of essays dealing with contemporary literature and education written by John Holloway. An usual book of poetry is a collection of "The Poems of Queen Elizabeth I of England." This book was edited by Leicester Bradner. "Chaucer, Poet of Mirth and Morlity" is a very fine study of the works of Chaucer, written by Helen S. Corsa. This book will be most useful to college students who are studying Chaucer. An English translation of "Andorra" by Max Firsch is a fine addition to our collection of modern German literature. "Platonov" by Anton Chekov is an addition the Russian literature section.

Helen Wright and Samuel Rapport are the authors of "The Great Explorers" which gives much fine information about the great age of discovery. "Lowell Thomas' Book of the High Mountains" written by Lowell Thomas will be very popular with those who like to read about adventure in far-away places. Many patrons of the library enjoy books in the field of Archeology. A new title is "Scechem" written by George Ernest Wright. The author gives much new information about this Biblical city. "A Traveler In Italy" by Henry Canova Morton is a new editon of a standard work and presents a fascinating picture of this country. "No Cause For Panic" by Russell Baker is an interesting discussion of life in the United States today. "The Inside Passage" by Anthony Bailey discusses projected plans for an Intercoastal Waterway along the Atlantic Coast. Another discussion of contemporary conditions is "The American South in the 1960's," written by Avery Leiseron. A delightful book of reminiscences is "Ranch Wife," written by Jo Jeffers.

"Athens, City Of The Gods" by Angelo Procopiou is a beautiful book which will be enjoyed by many different people. David C. Douglas has written a most interesting account of "William the Conqueror and the Norman Impact Upon England." Students of English history will find this book most informative. Colin and Margaret Legum have given us an interesting book on "South Africa" which sheds a great deal of light on conditions in that country. "The Teaching of American History in High Schools" has been subjected to a sharply critical look in the new book by Maurice G. Baxter, Robert H. Ferrell and John E. Wiltz. There are two new books about the Civil War. One is "A Tour Guide To the Civil War" by Alice H. Cromie and the other is "When Sherman Came" written by Katherine Jones. The first one tells how to find the battlefields and the second one is a discussion of the impact of the Civil War and Sherman's march to the sea on Southern Women.

Iwo Jima Costly Battle For Marines

IWO JIMA. By Richard F. Newcomb. Holt, Rinehart. $5.95.

Just 20 years ago the United States Marines launched the biggest and most costly battle in the Corps' 168-year history, an amphibious assault against a little five-mile rock called Iwo Jima, smack on the route to the Japanese homeland.

The generals had hoped to blast the Japanese out of their fortifications and caves within 10 days The the battle was officially over in 26 days and 9 hours—with mopping up still a problem. The Marines had 4,189 killed in action and total casualties of 19,938.

As one officer of the supporting force put it, Iwo was "the most expensive piece of real estate the United States ever purchased. We paid 550 lives and 2,500 wounded for every square mile . . ." But Iwo was needed as a bomber base.

The viciousness of the combat was such that one unit "in nine murderous days had moved 3,000 yards."

Newcomb presents a tremendous flow of hour-by-hour developments, filled with individual stories of the men and officers, the medics, the bulldozer operators, the frogmen, pilots and spotters, ammunition carriers and all the other participants.

He begins with the Jepanese preparations for defense, carries through the assembly of the task force, describes fully the carriage of D-Day, relates the famous flag incident on Suribachi, and then details the grinding struggle up across the airfields to the top of the island.

His text is supplemented with photos, maps and a whole set of appendices.

But the most remarkable thing about the book is the "presence" it conveys, the on-the-spot, you - are - there feeling. The author achieves this by telling what hundreds of individuals (even including some Japanese) experienced; their acts of heroism, their reactions under fire, their grim jokes in the face of death.

Newcomb, who has written two other accounts of Pacific fighting, "Savo" and "Abandon Ship!", served in the U. S. Navy as a correspondent. He has combined diligent research and a graphis narrative for this story of a great battle.

Several cases will be presented to the Grand Jury when it convenes.

HEART PALPITATES FOR FLYING

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — William H. (Bill) Long was bounced out of Army flying because of a "palpitating heart." But he's still flying.

Long, now 80, has logged about 8,000 hours — nearly a year — of flying time and still manages to fly his 1947 light plane up to six days a week. The Army turned him down as a flyer, though, in World War I.

Long taught himself to fly in 1908 and in 1910 became an associate of aviation pioneer Glenn Curtiss. He helped build a plane Curtiss flew from Cleveland to Cedar Point over Lake Erie and Curtiss gave him instruction in flying techniques in return.

Long now owns the Lorain City Airport.

Memories Of 1930s Girlhood

REAPERS OF THE DUST. By Lois Phillips Hudson, Atlantic - Little, Brown. $4.75.

There are two aspects to Mrs. Hudson's well-delineated collection of stories.

In one sense, this is a carefully observed recollection of a time and place — the 1930s, when a depression choked the nation's economy and terrifying dust storm wrecked the hopes and physical endurance of many Western farmers; the place was North Dakota, and later the fruit country in the state of Washington.

In the other sense, this is like an autobiographical novel, a look backward into the time of little girlhood. In this respect, it has many sensitive evaluations of the human equation.

There are stories about drought, destructive dust storms, an eccentric old water douser, and about a vicious cold wave; pictures of a boisterous, old-fashioned Halloween and a comically unorthodox Christmas entertainment in a village; stories about migrant workers and the class distinctions that enchained them; pictures of old school days in many schools.

But woven into the fabric of these themes are touching vignettes of a little girl's trusts and fears, her heartbreak over a doll, her feelings about her family, her pride in learning to work and earn.

Civil War Book On Battlefields Highly Lauded

A TOUR GUIDE TO THE CIVIL WAR. By Alice Hamilton Cromie. Quadrangle Books. $7.95 cloth, $2.95 paper.

This guide comes too late for all but the stragglers among the war centennial tourists. But it is a valuable and worthwhile work.

Here are listed not only battlefields (including obscure ones like Scary Creek, W. Va., and Lone Jack, Mo.) but monuments, museums, forts, historic homes, cemeteries. Each is described and located clearly.

One of the most charming characteristics of Mrs. Cromie's book is its informality. This is not a stiff, colorless compendium; it is lively, interesting reading even if you have no intention of going near the places described. The author has researched some odd angles of history, too. For example, the fact that Abraham Lincoln's substitute in the Union Army is buried in Stroudsburg, Pa.

Even in so vast a compilation, omissions are inevitable. One which occurred to this reviewer was the nonmention of Altoona, Pa., as the site of the northern War Governors Conference in 1862. Mrs. Cromie has anticipated such transgressions when she refers in her forward to the "speck-picking tournament." But don't let such quibbling mislead you. The Tour Guide is such a good book that we wish it had come along long ago.

Heart Sunday In Area Today

COLUMBIA (Special) — Heart Sunday will be observed in Caldwell Parish today, according to Dr. Harry H. Winters, chairman of the 1965 Heart Fund Drive in this parish.

The home demonstration club members will combine their efforts with the members of the Caldwell Parish High School Key Club to conduct a parish - wide program.

The Caldwell High Band set up road blocks in Columbia Saturday to collect for the Heart Fund Drive.

Grandparents In Amusing Moments

THE PINK CIGAR. By Martin Panzer. Fleet. $4.50.

The main audience for Panzer's comic observations will be the semi-young set, which may feel itself a little foolish when it is propelled from fun and games into the rocking chair brigade.

For, as the book says, there is a new world — "the world of young grandparents. Today life begins with your child's baby."

These are the days of many student marriages and early parenthood, and a good many people who are fiftyish, but still feeling pretty spry, are becoming grandparents, And never never mind the cane, or the lavender and old lace.

In the author's case, there was a 24-year-old daughter, whose husband still was working on his doctorate in physics.

The new Grandpa and Grandma found there were all sorts of new, surprising situations — remote-control problems of baby care, delicate protocol with the son-in-law and the relatives-by-marriage, perplexities over visiting arrangements at the old split - level homestead, touchy questions of the new baby's progress, and many others.

And in this household, there also were some continuing problems of parenthood, involving a young daughter and a young son.

Pranzer makes the whole affair lightly amusing.

Building Permits For Past Week Show Increase

Activity on the building permit scene in Monroe for the period ending Feb. 19 picked up considerably over the previous week as 14 permits, totaling $122,850, were issued by the Building Inspector's Office, Dale B. Martha said.

During the week ending Feb. 12, Martha said, only five permits, amounting to $135,629, were issued.

The largest permit issued during the period went to Rack Service Co., Inc. for the construction of a one-story masonry and steel building which will be used for an office and warehouse. The $60,000 structure, which will be located at 2601 Newcombe, will contain three restrooms and ten rooms with a metal roof. There will be 28,800 square feet in the building.

Other permits went to Rosa Gibbs, addition of one - story frame building at residence at 4205 Barlow, $100; Mid - South Homes, Inc., erection of one-story brick veneer building at residence at 1905 Crescent Drive, $9,000; Mid-South Homes, Inc., erection of one-story brick veneer building to be used for residence at 208 Oregon Trail, $9,000; D. C. H. Whitaker, alteration of one-story frame building at 1013 N. Third, $850.

Johnny E. Davis, addition of one-story frame building at residence at 3610 Johnson, $2,200; Sherrouse Realty Co., demolish one-story metal building used for office and warehouse at 906 Breard; Mable Nicholas, addition of one-story frame building at residence at 1613 Breard, $500; Bruce McCurdy, removal of one-story frame building used for residence to Rivertown, outside the city, from 614 Plum St.; Sherrouse Realty Co., removal of one-story loading platform from 906 Breard to outside city; V. Matthews, removal of one-story frame building used for residence to outside city, Richwood, from 1016 Calypso.

Ed Tenore, erection of two-story brick veneer building for four unit apartment at 402 Filhoil, $25,200; J. W. Webster Jr., erection of one-story brick veneer building for residence at 1908 Howard Drive, $14,000; and Howard Griffin, alteration of two-story brick building used for warehouse at 805 S. Grand, $2,000.

Nervous Attacks Hit Pearl Bailey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey was readmitted to Mt. Sinai Hospital Saturday when doctors say she suffered "extreme nervous shock" as the result of prowlers near her home.

Miss Bailey, 46, was released from the hospital last Wednesday after more than two weeks of treatment for exhaustion. At that time, doctors said the singer was well rested, but they prescribed an additional period of convalescence at her San Fernando Valley home.

Doctors were confident then that she would be able to return to night club work some time next month.

Burdick Novel Abounds With Implausibility

NINA'S BOOK. By Eugene Burdick. Houghton Mifflin. $5.95.

There is a puzzling amalgamation of melodrama and absurdity in Burdick's novel.

The story begins with an American bomber pilot, Rodney (oddly, he never is called "Rod") Cartwright, parachuting into Occupied France. He is rescued by a teen-age French girl, Nina Faures. As she gets him off to safety through the underground, she and some odd accomplices are captured (the narrative is confusing at this point) by the Nazis.

Rodney goes home at the end of the war to become an affected, wealthy snob, married to Charity, a cameo-type, sexually frigid daughter of the nouveau riche, who (the author says fascinates the fashionably elite circles in which they move.

Rodney and Charity make a post-war visit to France, and Rodney runs into Nina in a night club. There ia a long flashback to Nina's gruelling experiences in a camp for political prisoners, a really stark account of the position of a criminal element in the camp. As the narrative resumes, Rodney falls into a bizarre affair with Nina.

It seems that when Nina lost her innocence in the war camp, she was turned into a vampire. Plain and unglamorous, she has acquired (it says here) a magnetic, virginal attraction for all males within 50 yards — including, finally, an underground veteran who had been emasculated by an explosion. She leads poor Rodney, who is elegantly muscle-bound between the ears, into some scenes of lust and (symbolically, no doubt) gluttony.

Some of the passages have a narrative tension. Some have a slick, amusing sophistication. But they are interlaced with curious lapses into pulp-fiction implausibility and flossy absurdities. This pseudo-sexy, pop-dramatic novel has almost as many self-contradictions as Burdick's previous mish-mash story of politics, "The 480."

American Survives In Britain

HOW TO LIVE LIKE A LORD WITHOUT REALLY TRYING. By Shepherd Mead Simon & Schuster. $4.95.

This ex-advertising man who wrote "How To Succeed in Business . . ." has been a resident of England for several years, long enough to catch on to many of the foibles of the island breed.

So now he satirizes them, using the format of his earlier book. His main character is an expatriate American. Buckley Brash, who typifies the bewildered States sider trying to make his way through the fog of British manners and customs.

There are light-hearted jibes at the lack of heating, the hazards of driving, the anomalies of the school system, the peculiarities of English status, the trickeries of caste, the oddities of speech, the supposed frigidities of the natives, the contradictions of what to wear and when.

The author calls this work " a confidential manual prepared as part of a survival kit for Americans living in Britain." His instructions on how to get rich over there are centered on the fact that capital gains are not taxed, but everything else is.

If the reader allows himself just a second for a bit of reflection, it may occur to him that this book is the result of an odd confluence of the American habit of overstatement and the English habit of understatement. Fortunately the result has some affectionate overtones of admiration for the English way.

Area Committee Meet Set For Library Week

Judge Mack E. Barham, Ouachita Parish chairman for National Library Week, has set a meeting next Thursday of the area committee which will plan and promote local observances of the event, Apr. 25 - May 1.

Judge Barham this week mailed tentative appointments to prospective committee members who are being asked to attend the 5 p.m. session in the Louis Locke Room of the main public library in Monroe.

Miss Frances Flanders, head parish librarian, is serving as vice chairman of the group.

"Prior observances in Ouachita Parish have been outstanding and we hope to make the celebration this year equally fine," Judge Barham said.

He urged fullest possible attendance. "This will probably be the only meeting of the entire committee," the chairman said.

Good Morning Everybody
(This Is K. Able Signal Again)

All the staff at Cablevision is getting kind of nervous. The theories that we have been working on to phase out the "Co-Channel" problems on Channel 12 and Channel 3 Shreveport are about to be put to the test. Loper Machine Works on 14th Street has made some special antennae brakets which must be hoisted up the tower and secured in place. These brackets although weighing several hundred pounds are designed for the very minute adjustment necessary to align our Channel 3 and Channel 12 antennae.

Hauling these brackets up and fixing them in place on our 500 foot tower without the assistance of a crane is no mean fete. This operation will take several hours and possibly run into two or three days before our pictures are cleaned up.

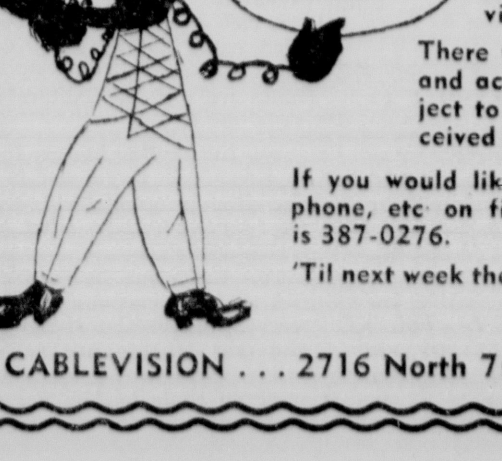
Meanwhile, Back to earth — our construction crew is working steady progress down Arkansas Road toward the river crossing. Wet weather has been a real problem in retarding our progress but we are progressing by dodging the showers.

The type of service to be offered by Cablevision will be the finest available. There will be at least 7 Channels of clear watchable television PLUS our special weather monitor (with back ground music) which will be at your service 24 hours a day PLUS FM & FM stereo for those subscribers who have the equipment to receive it. PLUS we will bring you the prime closed circuit events like the title fights when ever possible.

No expense is being spared to bring to the Twin Cities the best reception from those prime "difficult to reach" out of town TV Stations.

The Cablevision service charge of $4.95 per month per residential subscriber will not be changed, however there will be a reasonable installation fee payable by the new subscribers.

A full schedule of Cablevision's low subscriber costs will appear in this space in the not too distant future. Already we are getting calls from people who want our service. These are being kept on file and these people will be the first to be connected when Cablevision reaches their area.



PUT MY NAME DOWN!

There will be no residential time contracts and acceptance of our service will be subject to a good watchable picture being received in your home.

If you would like to leave your name, address and phone, etc on file with us . . . the number to call is 387-0276.

'Til next week then . . .

Projects Okayed By 4-H Council

Voting delegates from throughout the parish attended a meeting of the 4 - H Executive Council Saturday at the agriculture building auditorium in West Monroe.

A new method for selecting the outstanding 4 - H clubs for the year was the main item on the agenda.

A committee, set up by president Paul Spillers at an earlier date, proposed a point system by which they felt every club could benefit.

The committee report was presented by Janie Futch of West Monroe high school and accepted by the council.

The new scoring system will give every 4 - H club an opportunity to score points on every activity and event in which its members participate during the year.

Two projects the council voted to work on during the year are a local leader recognition activity to recognize adult volunteer leaders for services performed, and placing signs at the parish lines on I-20 to welcome visitors on behalf of 4 - H clubs.

Serving on the leader recognition committee are Sharon Parsons, Janie Futch, Lynnette Cage, Anna Tolbird, Jimmy Ware, Jimmy Flannagan and Joe Niswanger.

Assisting with the sign project are Frances Landreaux, Annette Viola, Kenneth Bassett, A. W. Medries, Max Tolbird and Jody Kelly.

Serving on the program at the council meeting were Vicky Funderburk, Pam McGee and DeWanna Ray.

Announcement of 4 - H activities and events in the next few months were made by J. Floyd Kent, associate county agent, and Mrs. Donna Moore, associate home demonstration agent.

Plans include the general livestock judging contest at the fair grounds in West Monroe Feb. 27, the parish 4 - H dress revue in the agriculture building March 27 and the annual achievement day on Saturday, April 10.

Adult leaders assisting with the meeting were Mrs. A. C. Goodling, Sister Francilla and George Abbot.

Other 4 - H members participating were Kathy Dorris, Ronnie Huff, June Smith, Debbie Dean, Bill Goodling, Paul Goodling, Anita Nelson, Lisa Poche, Kathy McClure, Gloria Avery, Linda Golson, Becky Brister, Nancy Govang, Donald Govang, Judy Jones, Deborah Bolin, Brenda Hutson, Vicky Brown, Judy Brown, Janice Bonnette, Carolyn Dayton, Dianne Dayton, Judy Ramsey, Debbie Boyington and Rickie Funderburk.

More Air Cadets Leave Academy

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Four more Air Force Academy cadets have been found guilty of violating the honor code, officials announced Saturday.

This brought to 109 the number of students at the service academy who resigned as a result of an investigation of cheating at examinations.

Action against the four cadets was taken by the Cadet Honor Committee, a student group, after reviewing the cases of 20 cadets. The four were found guilty of failing to report their knowledge of cheating. The 105 who previously resigned were more directly connected with the use of stolen examination questions, officials said.

Ruston High School Wins Top Honors

Ruston High School took top Sweepstakes honors in the 13th annual Speech and Drama Festival at Northeast Louisiana State College here Friday and Saturday. They received a total of 172 points.

Bolton of Alexandria was second with 166 points and Mt. Carmel of Lafayette was third with 162.

Winning the Monroe Little Theater award for the best play was St. Mary's Dominican of New Orleans.

Bolton won the first - place trophy in individual events competition, compiling a total of 53 points in the speech arts — oratory, extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading, prose interpretation, after - dinner speaking and drama. Mt. Carmel was second with 47 points. St. Frederick's of Monroe and St. Mary's Dominican tied for third -place honors, each with 44 points.

Teams from Bolton, Lafayette and Woodlawn of Shreveport took first, second and third place trophies, respectively, in boys' debate.

Mt. Carmel took top honors in girls' debating with teams from Ruston picking up second and third place awards.

Forty high schools from throughout the state were entered in festival competiton, reported Director James W. Parkerson of the Northeast State speech faculty. In all, more than 400 students participated.

Ruston picked up superior ratings in oratory, extemporaneous speaking, after - dinner speaking (2), boys' debate and girls' debate (2).

Bolton received superior ratings in oratory (2), extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading (2), prose interpretation, after-dinner speaking, drama and boys' debate (2).

Mt. Carmel received superior ratings in oratory, poetry reading, drama and girls' debate (2).

Taking first - place honors in boys' debate for Bolton were Fred Mongue and Ricky Ardoin. Lafayette High's runnerup team was composed of Trigg White and Phil Trice. John English and Don Rogers captured the third - place trophy for Woodlawn.

In girls' debate, Janelle Dupont and Sheila Stein won first-place honors for Mt. Carmel. The runners - up, from Ruston, were Catherine Lewis and Virginia Larance. Also from Ruston, Rebecca Walker and Hasson Jones took third - place honors.

The winning play, "White Queen, Red Queen," was directed by Sister Mary Francis of St. Mary's Dominican, New Orleans. The cast of six included Carole Rosato, Loris Erwin, Harriet Dawson, Sandra Lee, Marijane Woodruff and Betty June Gantar.

Northerly Winds Bring Cold Wave To Midcontinent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffeting northerly winds with gusts up to 80 miles an hour blew a fast-spreading cold wave into northern sections of the midcontinent Saturday. Temperatures were expected to drop sharply by tonight as far south as Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The arctic invasion transformed spring like weather into midwinter misery in some sections.

Winds up to 80 miles an hour pushed five empty railroad cars 90 miles from Portal, N.D., southeastward to Minot on Friday. The stock cars were blown off a Portal siding of the Soo Line, through a switch and onto the main line where they rolled along until stopping at Minot.

Icy winds up to 60 m.p.h. picked up large quantities of snow in the Dakotas creating blizzard conditions.

The mercury climbed above freezing in Fargo, N.C., for the first time since Thanksgiving, but the cold wave hit in the morning with the temperature at 40 degrees and by noon the city had a reading of 23 and a 40-mile wind.

The cold wave pushed into the Dakotas and Minnesota and cold wave warnings were issued for Saturday night for Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, and parts of Missouri.

The cold wave is expected to spread across Missouri and Kansas today.

Temperatures ranged from 5 at Minot, N.D., to 84 at Palm Springs, Calif.

A 2-inch snow whitened Billings, Mont., and warnings to stockmen were issued.

Near-record warmth prevailed south of the cold front. Temperatures were near the 70-degree mark in Missouri.

The mercury was expected to plummet to -25 degrees in northern North Dakota and Minnesota.

Skies were sunny over most of the country.

Seven Persons Die In Wreck

BARSTOW, Calif. (AP) — Seven persons — two of them apparently on their way to be married in Las Vegas, Nev. — died early Saturday in a two-car, head-on collision about 40 miles west of the California-Nevada border.

San Bernardino County Coroner Edward P. Doyle said four of the victims were from Pasadena, Calif., and the other three from Las Vegas.

The California Highway Patrol said a bridal veil and dress were found in one of the cars, and that officers had been informed that two of the victims were en route to Las Vegas to be married.

Labor Disputes Stall Shipyard In Mississippi

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP)— Disputes over new labor contracts at the huge Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. continued this weekend, with virtually all 14 locals involved rejecting what the company called its final offer.

Despite the reported rejections, no official strike has been ordered. But union members indicated that pickets will form at plant entrances Monday. No work was scheduled this weekend.

"I hope to continue talks Monday," Dean said.

Dean pointed out that rejection of Ingall's proposed contract does not necessarily mean a strike will result. He described three work stoppages last week, caused by failure of about half of the production workers to report for work, as a device to pressure Ingalls into further negotiations.

Workers reported to their jobs in limited numbers Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Work on 13 ships and an oil drilling barge under contracts totaling about $200 million was sharply curtailed.

One union official said he doubted that a formal strike would be called because locals feared a federal injunction would be brought, barring a halt of work on a Navy nuclear submarine under construction at the yard.

Ingalls, a division of Litton Industries of California, is the largest shipyard on the Gulf Coast and one of South Mississippi's largest single employers. Its weekly payroll is about $1 million.

Alexandria Man Reported Lost After Air Raid

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Air Force Maj. Robert F. Ronca, 41, of Norristown, who led last week's U.S. air attack against North Viet Nam, was reported missing in action Saturday in a telegram to his mother.

Ronca's mother, Mrs. Adeline Ronca, of nearby East Norriton Township, received an official telegram reporting that Ronca was "missing in flight since 2:15 a.m. EST, Feb. 19."

The telegram, signed by Col. R. V. Travis, commander of England Air Force Base, La., said "an extensive search" was being conducted for the flier.

Joseph Ronca, brother of the missing flier with whom Mrs. Ronca lives, said Maj. Ronca's wife, Mildred, received an identical telegram from Col. Travis Saturday. Mildred and the couple's six children live in Alexandria, La.

Maj. Ronca, an Air Force pilot for 22 years with 39 combat missions in World War II and 101 in Korea, led a flight of 24 F-100 fighter bombers Feb. 11 in a strike against the Chap Le military complex 40 miles north of the 17th parallel into North Viet Nam. Ronca was awarded the Air Medal in Saigon last Saturday for his part in the strike.

Maj. Ronca is a member of the 613th Tactical Air Squadron, which is permanently based at England AFB near Alexandria.

Monroe Police Probe Theft Of Gun From Car

Monroe police are investigating the reported theft of a parked car here Saturday afternoon. W. E. Atchison, of 1201 South 8th St., Monroe, told police the .38 caliber revolver was taken from his parked car by someone who forced open the doors and glove compartment.

West Monroe police Saturday arrested two persons on charges of operating motor vehicles while under the influences of intoxicating beverages. The two were identified as 17-year old Tommy Crocker, Rt. 5, Box 21, of West Monroe; and Hulon B. Simmons, 32, of Choudrant, La. Additional charges of reckless driving were also lodged against the two.

A Jonesboro, La., man was placed under $700 bond by police here Saturday on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influences of intoxicating beverages, running a traffic light, and having improper driver's license. He was identified as Clein Johnson Jr., 26, Gen. Del., Jonesboro.

Also arrested by Monroe police Saturday was Cordell Johnson, 38, of 1301 Sycamore St., who was charged with felony theft. Officers said Johnson was picked up in connection with the reported theft of money from a juke box in Falletto Grocery, 1601 Breard St., sometimes between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Saturday. He was apprehended and charged with the theft about 10 p.m.

Six separate charges were lodged against a local resident by West Monroe police late Saturday. Louis Champion, 28, of 507 Phillips St., West Monroe, was charged with two counts of aggravated assault, two counts of simple assault, running a stop sign, and disturbing the peace.

Airliner Crashes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Yugoslav airliner crashed in a snowstorm 10 miles from Belgrade Saturday, killing all five persons aboard. The plane was being returned to its field outside Belgrade, with two pilots and three mechanics on board, after undergoing repairs here.

How Viet War Is Seen By Highest

EDITOR'S NOTE: The question of South Viet Nam is being debated on the highest levels of the U. S. government — and by the man in the street. Should the U. S. stay? Should it get out? Will there be victory, negotiated settlement, or Communist take-over? These questions have occupied the government leadership for some time. The following article shows what government officials have said about the situation in Viet Nam since 1961.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former President John F. Kennedy once likened South Viet Nam to the first in a line of dominoes; if it fell to the Communists, he believed, the rest of the dominoes would quickly topple.

Kennedy and other U.S. spoksmen also have insisted that political stability as well as military strength is the key to victory over Communism in the Southeast Asian republic.

"The present situation," said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara last week, "is grave but by no means hopeless."

The next day the Vietnamese government changed hands for the eighth time in 16 months.

What have McNamara and others said about Viet Nam since 1960 when Red aggression began to mount? Here is a chronology in their own words:

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Oct. 25, 1960, on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the Republic of Viet Nam.

"Viet Nam's very success as well as its potential wealth and its strategic location have led the Communists to Hanoi, goaded by the bitterness of their failure to enslave all Viet Nam, to use increasing violence in their attempts to destroy your country's freedom.

"Although the main responsibility for guarding that independence will always, as it has in the past, belong to the Vietnamese people and their government, I want to assure you that for so long as our strength can be useful, the United States will continue to assist Viet Nam in the difficult yet hopeful struggle ahead."

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, May 24, 1961, on his return from an Asian tour including a visit to South Viet Nam:

"While I made it clear, at the President's request, that we shall make any sacrifice, risk any danger, that the protection of liberty may call for, no where in Asia was there a request that we send American troops."

President John F. Kennedy, Oct. 24, 1961, in a letter to Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem on the sixth anniversary of the Republic of Viet Nam:

"I speak for the American people when I say that we are confident of the success of the Vietnamese nation, that we have faith in its strength and valor, and that we know that the future of the Vietnamese people is not Communist slavery but the freedom and prosperity which they have defended and pursued throughout their history."

A Defense Department statement, Feb. 8, 1962, announcing establishment of the "United States Military Assistance Command, Viet Nam:"

"The new command will enable the United States to carry out more effectively the expanded assistance and support requested by the government of the Republic of Viet Nam to help that country preserve its freedom and independence against Communist aggression."

McNamara, Feb. 19, 1962, at a meeting of military leaders and diplomats in Honolulu:

"Some of these guerrilla wars have lasted for as long as 10 years in other parts of the world, but I am hopeful this will not be the case in South Viet Nam. We must be prepared to be patient in our approach and not expect overnight or clear cut results for some period of time."

Admiral Harry Felt, U.S. Pacific commander, March 13, 1962, at a news conference in Taipei, Formosa:

"The armed forces of South Viet Nam are on the offensive. This is a relatively recent development. They are killing Viet Cong at a greater rate than they are getting hurt. This is progress in this long, difficult war. Are we winning? I can't say we are winning, but we're not losing. That's about the way it is."

McNamara, March 21, 1962, at a meeting with Pacific leaders in Pearl Harbor:

"There is every sign that the government and people of South Viet Nam have the will and the capacity, with our support, to win. I am pleased to learn that the country, carrying the war to the Viet Cong, inflicting higher casualty rate and capturing Viet Cong weapons and supplies in greater numbers. The impact of increased American training aid and logistical support to the Vietnamese forces is now beginning to be felt and will be more so in the months ahead."

McNamara, July 6, 1962, at a news conference in Washington:

"We can't expect termination of a war — and it is a war — in a matter of months. It will be years before it is concluded, and I believe it will be concluded successfully."

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at a news conference Sept. 19, 1962 in Honolulu after a Far East tour:

"I am most impressed with what the South Vietnamese have done. They are on the right track."

Adiral Felt Jan. 11, 1963, at a news conference in Saigon:

"The Communist guerrillas in Viet Nam are woozy. The war is taking a generally favorable course for the South Viet Nam government."

Admiral Felt, March 27, 1963, in an interview at Norfolk, Va.:

"The South Vietnamese are good fighters and they're killing four Communists for every man they lose."

Henry Cabot Lodge, Aug. 14, 1963, on being sworn in at Washington as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam:

"We're going to win this war."

McNamara and Gen. Taylor, Oct. 2, 1963, in a statement to President Kennedy after a trip to South Viet Nam:

"The major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965."

Write House statement, Oct. 2, 1963, concerning a report to the President and the National Security Council by McNamara and Gen. Taylor:

"The military program in South Viet Nam has made progress and is sound in principle, though improvements are being energentically sought. Major United States assistance in support of this military effort is needed only until the insurgency has been suppressed or until the national security forces of the government of South Viet Nam are capable of suppressing it. Secretary McNamara and Gen. Taylor reported their judgment that the major part of the United States military task can be completed by the end of 1965, although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of United States training personnel. They reported that by the end of this year the United States program for training Vietnamese should have progressed to the point where 1,000 United States military personnel assigned to South Viet Nam can be withdrawn."

President Kennedy, Sept. 2, 1963, in a nationally-televised interview:

"In my opinion in the last two months the government of Ngo Dinh Diem has gotten out of touch with the people. With changes in policy and perhaps with personnel, I think the chances of winning the war would not be very good. I don't agree with those who say we should withdraw. That would be a great mistake.

President Kennedy, Sept. 9, 1963, in a television-radio interview in which he said he subscribes to the "domino theory" whereby one falling domino topples the rest standing in line:

"China is so large, looms so high just beyond the frontiers, that if South Viet Nam went, it would not only give them an improved geographic position for a guerrilla assault on Malaya but would also give the impression that the wave of the future in Southeast Asia was China and the Communists."

Regarding reports of repressions of Buddhists by Vietnamese President Diem:

"We are using our influence to persuade the government there to take those steps which will win back support. That takes some time and we must be patient, we must persist."

An amendment to the foreign aid bill proposed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Oct. 15, 1963:

"Foreign aid should be extended to or withheld from the government of South Viet Nam, in the discretion of the President, to further the objectives of victory in the war against Communism and the return to their homeland of Americans involved in that struggle."

Historic Church Near Nashville Gutted By Blaze

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fire on Saturday gutted the historic Little Hermitage Presbyterian church which Gen. Andrew Jackson built in 1823 for his wife Rachel.

Only the four brick walls remain of the building, which was still being used as a community church. A few articles of furnishings were saved.

The site, which includes a Confederate cemetery, is across a highway from the Hermitage, the stately Jackson home which has become a national tourist attraction.

Cause of the blaze hadn't been determined but faulty wiring was suspected.

The church, which seated about 150 persons, was built on three acres of land donated by Jackson when fire destroyed the schoolhouse where Mrs. Jackson worshiped. He headed the list of contributors to its building fund and his slaves helped make the brick.

The general called it "Mrs. Jackson's church." He was a faithful member in his later years after returning home to Tennessee from the White House.

The church, except for wiring and heating, remained virtually unchanged. Until Saturday, the general's pew, marked with his signature on a silver plate, stood as it had when he worshipped there.

American Killed In Viet Fighting; Officer Wounded

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. Army enlisted man serving as an adviser with South Vietnamese government troops has been killed in a clash with Viet Cong about 240 miles northeast of Saigon, the military reported Saturday.

An American officer adviser with the same group was wounded about half an hour after the other man was killed Friday. The officer suffered a gunshot wound in his right hand and his condition was reported good.

A spokesman said the two Americans were accompanying government troops on combat patrol but no additional details were available.

In other actions reported Saturday, a Vietnamese home guard unit and a platoon of armored personnel carriers claimed to have killed 34 Viet Cong during a search and destroy operation in the northern province of Quang in. The report said the home guard lost one killed and two wounded.

Thirteen Viet Cong were claimed killed in another action in Quang Ngai Province about 325 miles northeast of Saigon in a similar operation. The report said one government soldier was killed.

Government forces in Hiep Duc District, about 345 miles northeast of Saigon, were reported attacked by an unknown number of Viet Cong. Government losses were put at two killed and eight wounded while the government claimed 20 Communists were killed and six weapons captured in beating off the attack.

COINS AND COLLECTORS

Good Reference Works Available

By JOHN BLUCK

It is not necessary for the collector of ancient coins to know Latin or Greek, thanks to the large number of fine reference works available.

A reading knowledge of these two languages would be helpful, but the collector without this facility need not feel that ancients are too sophisticated for him. Through the centuries scholars in many countries have carried out extensive research on ancient coins and have passed on their findings to today's collectors in hundreds of books. Societies of learned collectors, archaeologists, students of ancient history and museums have produced reference works within the reach of most collectors of ancients. In addition, there are several inexpensive reference works readily available at many coin shops which will introduce the collector to ancients quickly and at little expense. Some of these elementary reference works are available locally, and all can be ordered from the publishers by any coin dealer or book store.

The cost of a basic library for the collector just starting on ancients can be modest or impressive. For less than $10.00 a collector can buy the few books required to give him an overall look at the entire field of Greek and Roman coins. If his book budget is even more limited he can obtain for about $5.00 two elementary works covering basic knowledge of both ancient Greek and Roman coins. For about $25.00 the beginner can assemble a collection of books which will serve him well until he learns enough about ancients to specialize and require standard reference works.

The fact that reference works are not readily available in the majority of coin shops and bookstores has discouraged many potential collectors of ancients. The lack of books, however, need not be a deterrent to the local collect. The Monroe Area Coin Club book gift to the Ouachita Parish contains enough reference works to serve the needs of the beginner for some time. These cover both ancient Greek and Roman coins and provide some information on Byzantine pieces. In addition, there are other reference works in the library of a more advanced nature to satisfy the beginner. A few hours spent scanning these books should make it possible for the collector to decide whether or not he wishes to start collecting ancients.

The collector does not walk into a coin shop and buy ancient coins as he would Lincoln cents or a roll of Franklin half dollars. There are no coin dealers in North Louisiana who regularly handle ancients, although at least three dealers in New Orleans carry a small stock. Dealers who specialize in ancients are not numerous, but there are several large dealers who carry ample stocks at all times and who publish monthly or quarterly price lists. Unlike most dealers who specialize in United States coins, dealers in ancients usually will ship coins on approval to customers who provide suitable trade references.

Dealers can be of tremendous help to the beginner. Most dealers in ancients are extremely well informed about their specialty and are eager to pass on their knowledge to a beginner. Most of them also can provide reference works.

Since there are no ancient dealers in this area, the collector should check coin publications for dealer ads. A letter or postal card asking to be placed on a dealer's mailing list will produce price lists from which the collector may make selections on approval.

The cost of ancients is relatively modest. The beginner can obtain small bronze antoniniani (about the size of a nickel) of the late Roman Empire in Fine condition for as little as $1.25 each. Silver denari of the Imperial period (after Julius Caesar) in Fine to Very Fine grades are often priced in the $3.00 to $5.00 range for common varieties. The large Roman bronze coins of about half dollar size (sestertius) can be purchased in Fine or better grades for as little as $6.00 or $7.00 for common types of emperors who struck large numbers of coins.

Silver coins of ancient Greek city states and the kings after Alexander The Great are easier to collect than the Greek bronze coins. Bronze coins were struck in tremendous quantities, but the issuing city states often omitted identifying marks. This makes them difficult to attribute and consequently they are not as popular with collectors, although good quality bronze coins are inexpensive. Most Greek silver can be identified by the beginner with an elementary reference work.

Fortunately for the beginner, most reputable dealers identify the coins they sell. This identification usually includes such information as where the coin was struck, the date or period of its issue and usually an identifying number which refers to one or more standard reference works.

Coins of the Bible have always been of interest to ancient collectors, and this specialty is enjoying renewed interest today. It is possible to assemble a collection of Bible coins which will include the Tribute Penny, the Thirty Pieces of Silver coin type, the Widow's Mite and other coins mentioned in the Bible. In addition, there are many Judean coins of the First and Second Jewish revolts under Rome and coins issued by Pontius Pilate. From this short list it is easy to see why Bible coins attract many otherwise disinterested collectors to ancients.

Not everyone can or should be a collector of ancient coins. But the collector who ventures to learn something about them may find he has discovered the most interesting and satisfying aspect of the hobby of coin collecting.

SPECIAL REPORT

U.S. Economy At All Time High

By RICHARD SPAVY
Editorial Research Report

Can the American economy give us another — a fifth — year of unparalleled prosperity? Can we hit the $660 billion gross national product that the President's Council of Economic Advisers forecast for this year? In short, can we stand prosperity?

The upswing began just about four years ago. It is unique in that it has been almost uninterrupted and almost noninflationary. Never before in U. S. economic history has the country prospered for so long a time without general price increases.

When President Johnson on Feb. 11 held the first full Cabinet meeting of his own administration, the auguries were very satisfactory. Unemployment was at its lowest level in 87 months. Retail sales in January were 6½ per cent above the like 1964 month. The one millionth automobile of 1965 rolled off the assembly line in the first week of February—an all time record. Auto sales were at a rate of nearly 695,000 last month—a gain of 21 per cent over a healthy January 1964.

The Council of Econnmic Advisers had predicted "vigorous expansion" for 1965. The President told his Cabinet, "We look forward, with optimism and determination, to continued advances throughout 1965."

OBVERSE SIDE

All this of course is only the obverse side of the medal. There are breakers ahead, and some very serious problems are already with us. Teenage unemployment is a frightening affair. As the President observed in a candid talk to the Business Council in early December, teen-age unemployment at that time was almost three times the overall rate, at 14.5 per cent. "And among the non-white teenagers in our labor force," the President reported, "the rate is an almost unbelievable 30 per cent."

The President listed three other major concerns: the risk that a general upward movement of bank lending rates might slow down economic advance, the dangers of price rises, the nagging balance of payments problem.

Bankers already have indicated their intention to cooperate not only in keeping leading rates down but also in exercising voluntary restraint in limiting expansion of foreign loans an dinvestment to about the desired 5 per cent level. No rise in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate is predictable.

Some prices already have risen. The administration on Feb. 11 mailed questionnaires to the eight largest steel producers as part of its study of selective steel price rises.

Galvanized steel, textiles, fats and oils, and virtually everyone of the nonferrous metals have displayed price hikes. The index of industrial materials prices (copper, lead and steel scrap and tin) zoomed from 98.5 in January 1964 to 113.2 in November.

But the price rises already have been offset in large part by declines. The industrial materials index dropped back to 110.5 last month.

The next few months should tell the story for the year. The demand for steel appears so great that a strike may be avoided, but an inflationary wage settlement could be just as devastating to the economy. And nobody expected last autumn's automobile industry strikes, for that matter.

The general industrial inventory buildup is being viewed closely. In any event, the record of the past quadrennium is remarkable, especially when one considers the inflationary overtones of the 1964 auto settlement.

STRIPPED IN STORAGE

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Donald Tonniges bought a car but had trouble getting the registration changed and police towed away the vehicle.

The car stood at the police pistol range for 51 days while Tonniges pursued title and registration papers and thieves took their time stripping the car of just about everything movable.

"They even used my own jack to jack up the car and take the wheels — and then they stole my jack," Tonnigest told the city council later.

Sympathetic councilmen agreed to compensate Tonniges for $299.11 loss minus $30.50 for storage charges while the car was impounded.

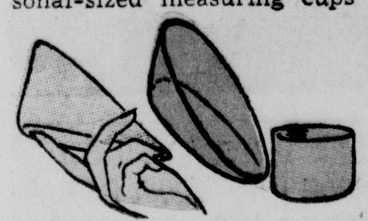
HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR FOLKS:
Do you know you can make a terrific flour or sugar scoop from the bottom of any plastic container such as liquid detergents and bleaches come in?

Cut off the top of the bottle with a pair of scissors at about a 45° angle. Scoops up any product beautifully.

Also, I found that you can make your own set of personal-sized measuring cups this way. For instance, if you use eight spoons of coffee each morning in your percolator, measure eight spoons of coffee in the bottom of a plastic bottle, mark it with a pencil and then snip off. Leave the little plastic cup in your coffee canister and only measure once each morning instead of eight times.



Oval-shaped bottles make especially nice measurers.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have found it very easy to patch contour sheets.

Lengthen your kitchen or dining room table (a standard kitchen table with two leaves should measure about 72 inches long and 36 inches wide.)

Place the contour sheet over the table.

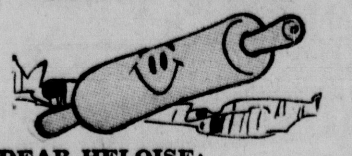
Pin a length of muslin a yard wide and as long as your contour sheet onto the sheet to keep it in place for easy sewing.

Remove it from the table and sew it on your machine.

You will find that patched-up contour sheets also make nice mattress covers. I use them both over and under the mattress.

Nancy

ROLLING PIN CARE



DEAR HELOISE:
I find the slight grain of a paper towel ideal for cleaning off a rolling pin. When I am finished with the pin, I store it in a long plastic bag.

Many people never wash a rolling pin. They think it ruins it.

Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
I wonder if any of your readers have ever starched their pot holders. You'd be surprised how much longer they stay clean, and the grease doesn't soak in, either. Just a little spray starch works fine!

Mrs. Raymond Schroeder

* * *

Folks, I tried this and it sure works. The pot holders do last longer between washes. Besides, you should see how easily the soil washes out when using this method!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
If you wish to save time and tears, buy a shaker of onion powder (not onion salt).

Then, whenever you want onion flavor in a salad, meat loaf, hamburger, etc., sprinkle in the powder. It is not expensive because it goes a long way.

Mrs. George Woodward

DEAR HELOISE:
If you like to watch television while lying down on a couch, cover bed pillows with two terrycloth hand towels.

I sew the towels together around three sides, leaving the end, or short side, open. On the open side I sew gripper snap-tape. I simply open the snaps, slip the pillow in between the terry towels and snap the grippers shut. When the cover gets soiled, I take it off and throw it into the washing machine with my bath towels.

I do not have to iron this cover, and it can be made inexpensively in any color.

For small pillows, I use towels with fringe on the ends.

Virginia Garrett

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who are on a budget or have a lot of children, mix a quart of instant dry milk with a quart of regular milk.

This is economical and, we think, it tastes very similar to regular milk.

If the instant milk is allowed to cool in your refrigerator overnight, it tastes better!

A Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a wonderful idea that works for me:

Instead of painting the flower pots in our house, I cut off the tops of old socks or the sleeves of old sweaters, and pull them over the outside of the pots.

The covers can be removed and laundered, they catch dripping water, and the color of the pot can be changed to match any whim.

Mrs. Arthur Baughman

DEAR HELOISE:
I have seven small children. Many a spilled glass of milk or juice is avoided by using small, instant-coffee jars for drinking glasses.

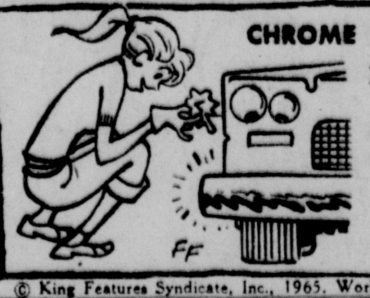
I remove the liner from the metal lid, punch a hole in the lid, screw the top back on and pop a straw through the hole. If the children topple the jar, barely a drop is spilled.

My children love to drink juice, milk, chocolate milk, etc., from these small jars. They are just the right size for small hands.

Any small jar with a screw-type lid can be used for this purpose.

Doris Mattero

CHROME CLEANER



DEAR HELOISE:
I clean the chrome on my car bumpers with a wad of aluminum foil. I just dip it in cold water and rub away!

It cleans the bumper like magic.

QUICK HORS D'OEUVRES

DEAR HELOISE:
I keep a complete assortment of crackers, pretzels, etc., in a flat cake box so I can quickly prepare a fancy tray when unexpected guests arrive! The crackers stay much crisper in a metal box than in open packages.

C. W. H.

DEAR HELOISE:
Keep your metal measuring spoons handy when ironing.

Those buttons which would be ruined by the touch of an iron can be saved by placing the spoon upside down over the button and then ironing around the spoon!
